Lindbergh's Life.
No Arsenic, Please, F. R.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.

THIS big city is enjoying zero weather, but Chicago men do not know it. Walking so fast, on business, they do not notice cold or heat.

MERCHANTS in other cities will like to know that James Simpson, owner of Marshall Field & Co., is doing more than 100 millions a year in his retail store alone.

Also, he is building four branches of Marshall Field in different sections of Chicago. New York merchants, patiently waiting for Sears Roebuck and Montgomery Ward to put branches in all New York's boroughs, please take notice.

MR. SIMPSON is at work on a building north of the Chicago River worth coming 900 miles to see. It will have 4,000,000 feet of floor space—biggest building in the world, with railroads inside the building, docks opening to the Great Lakes alongside the building, and wholesale businesses of all kinds gathered under one roof.

ADAM GIMBEL, of the big mercantile family, is in Chicago, opening on Michigan avenue a branch of Saks-Fifth Avenue. Good idea: much money is in Chicago. But why not open other branches in Brooklyn, Queens, the Bronx and Westchester?

THE mere statement that Col. Lindbergh is late in arriving at destination alarms the nation. That no word had been received from him at 5 p. m., Eastern time, yesterday, and that his radio was not working, meant nothing serious, as it turned out.

BUT Lindbergh's life, which he holds so lightly, is a precious possession of the American people. They will be truly grateful to Herbert Hoover if he will find work to keep Lindbergh on the ground, at least half the time.

IF A father, to cure his children of overeating, put arsenic in their food, you would say, "Something wrong with that father."

When a paternal Federal Reserve Board, mistaking itself for the national government, to cure what it considers overspeculation, ruins thousands of investors by forcing usurious interest rates, you say, "Something wrong with that Federal Reserve Board."

THE board is unnecessarily excited about four or five billion dollars of brokers' loans.

Learned financiers should realize that there is money in this country outside of banks' control.

Mr. Ecker, vice president of the Metropolitan Life company, has shown that the income of American wage earners is 60 billions of dollars a year. And they spend 15 billions less than they earn.

THOSE 15 billions are three times the total of brokers' loans. A nation that has every year 15 billions of spending money might borrow a third of its excess annual wealth for investment or even for speculation, without making criminal usury necessary.

LADY DE BATHE died yesterday at Monte Carlo, in her seventy-seventh year. As Mrs. Langtry, the Jersey Lily, she was known wherever English is spoken. Her reputation was due largely to her marvelous complexion, pink and white, NATURAL colors. Such complexions have gone out. Even little girls are daubed and plastered.

UP ABOVE, the Jersey Lily has doubtless renewed acquaintance with Albert Edward, who admired her when he was Prince of Wales. Will he look natural, flitting about with white wings, and a harp? Probably not. And how painful it must be for a sovereign, or a famous beauty, to be just like everybody else. Perhaps even ranking below Moody and Sankey.

THOMAS A. EDISON, on his eighty-second birthday, said, among other things, "We do not know one millionth of 1 per cent of anything. We do not understand electricity, light, sound. We know nothing of these forces or their future effect."

EDISON is as modest as Socrates, who, when called "wisest of the Greeks," said he supposed they called him that because he knew at least that he knew nothing.

Things are not quite as bad as they seem to Mr. Edison. We don't know what electricity is, but we do know how to use it.

We know that we do not live, as men once thought they lived, with heaven and a threatening God above us, hell and an eager devil below. We know that we are sailing, with our sun, through one universe, part of a cosmos that includes millions of other universes.

WE ALREADY can look out into space to a distance of more than a million light years. And the new 200-inch telescope now building is expected to extend man's vision as far as a billion light years. The distance that light can travel in a billion years, going 186,000 miles a second, is quite a distance.

A race that can weigh the earth and the sun, unite the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, lift steel rails with the mysterious power of the magnet, and produce such a man as Thomas A. Edison is not to be despised.

LINDY FLIES TO SAVE PLANE AT SEA

HOPS FROM MIAMI TO FIND LONE PILOT

BULLETIN.

MIAMI Fla., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Pan-American Airways, Inc., announced here early this afternoon that R. I. Dunten and Lieut. Steven Callaway had been rescued by an automobile ferry 60 miles northeast of Key West from the amphibian plane in which they were forced down yesterday. Neither had been harmed although they had drifted all night in the disabled craft.

Word of the rescue came after Col. Charles A. Lindbergh had hopped off to join the search for the plane and after naval seaplanes at Pensacola and coast guard boats had begun preparations to look for the amphibian.

International News Service.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 13.—A few hours after his arrival here from a Pan-American air mail flight connecting North and Central America, Col. Charles Lindbergh hopped off in the same plane for the Florida Keys to search for the missing plane Leoning.

The missing plane, flying from Havana to Miami, is believed to have been forced down somewhere in the Florida Keys late yesterday afternoon. The cutters Tallapoosa and Mallard, from the Key West Naval Station, have been searching for the plane ever since, but have found no trace of it.

Lindbergh.

Lindbergh took off from the Pan-American Airways field here at noon, a little more than two hours after he arrived from Havana, Cuba, on the last leg of his two-day Central American mail flight. With him were Col. John Hambleton, vice president of the Pan-American Airways, and John Donohue, mechanic.

The missing amphibian plane, "Leoning," was piloted by Stephen Calloway, who was making a solo flight. The owner of the plane, Richard F. Hoyt, of New York and Boston, chairman of the board of directors of the Aviation Corporation of America, had used it for a tour of the West Indies, but was returning to Miami from Havana by steamer.

Jardine Drops Out As Cabinet Eligible

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(INS.)—Secretary of Agriculture William M. Jardine announced today that he would retire from the cabinet on March 4 to devote his time to agricultural activities, with particular reference to the co-operative marketing phase.

Declining the opportunity to remain, Secretary Jardine will become general counsel for the Federated Fruit and Vegetable Growers and make his headquarters in Washington. He will work in close harmony with the Hoover administration's attack on the perennial "farm problem."

Ganna Walska Makes N. Y. Concert Debut

NEW YORK, Feb. 13. — (AP.) — Madame Ganna Walska, whose appearance in concert and grand opera have occasioned wide comment in Europe and America, made her New York concert debut in Carnegie Hall yesterday afternoon.

A large and friendly audience greeted the singer, who is the wife of Harold McCormick, of Chicago, and whose voice many critics have labelled as equal to the demands of concert and operatic roles. She was roundly applauded at various points in the program.

LINDY'S FIANCEE

ANNE SPENCER MORROW

Lindbergh to Wed Anne Morrow, Poet, Heiress to Millions

Special Dispatch to the Sun-Telegraph.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—We? While the whole world yesterday was worrying a little over the safety of Lindy, because of his failure to make his expected punctual landing in Havana on his mail flight, "We" became an entirely new word in the Lone Eagle's vocabulary.

The reticent, blond descendant of a Nordic sire, who flew one day into the hearts of mankind, on an aerial adventure not before achieved, had added a new chapter to his Horatio Alger story.

TO WED ANNE MORROW

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who roared out of obscurity to the heights of fame only a comparatively few months ago is to wed Anne Spencer Morrow, 22 daughter of Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, of the great financial house of Morgan.

Unlike the sun-god of mythology, who flew his chariot too close to the sun, thereby incurring the wrath of Zeus, rewards and orange blossoms now are to be added to the laurels of Lindy.

Anne Morrow is described as the exact opposite of Lindy, with the exceptions that she is of serious purpose, shy and dislikes publicity. Lindbergh is tall and fair; his pretty fiancee is small and dark. At college she was termed "more of an old-fashioned girl than a flapper," with no known romance while there, with strict attention for studies and little interest in sports.

TOOK WRITER PRIZES

At Smith she took prizes for her prose and especially for her proficiency in poetry.

Despite her studious inclination, Miss Morrow is described as having a fine sense of humor and a keen zest in life.

The official announcement of his engagement was made in Mexico City, yesterday. Henceforth when Lindy says "We," he will refer not to himself and a fabric of steel tubes and wings a part of which is a motor. He will refer to Miss Anne Morrow as well—and perhaps, through her, to the world-famous.

TO REMOVE TWO CROSSINGS

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 13.—Abolition of a grade crossing on highway route 76, connecting McKees Rocks and Coraopolis, was ordered today by the Public Service Commission. The crossing is in Coraopolis borough and Robinson and Moon townships, Allegheny County. A second crossing on the Ivanhoe road connecting with the state highway will be eliminated through the improvement. Construction of a bridge over the Montour Railroad tracks and a relocation of the highway will do away with the crossing. The bridge will be about 400 feet long. It will have a roadway 23 feet wide and a five-foot sidewalk.

Plot to Kill President Of Venezuela Foiled

BOGOTA, Columbia, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—An account of an attempt to assassinate President Juan Vicente Gomez, of Venezuela, was telegraphed here today by a newspaper correspondent at San Jose de Cucuta, a Venezuelan frontier town. The story said that the president escaped harm.

Leon Trotzky Lands At Constantinople

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Leon Trotsky, former leader of the Red army and an exile because of his opposition to the policies of the present regime in Soviet Russia, has arrived in Constantinople, from Russian Turkestan.

MISS MORROW'S FATHER ATTENDED SCHOOL HERE

Pittsburgh has a personal interest in the engagement of Anne Morrow, daughter of Ambassador and Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, in that this city was once the home of the father of Lindbergh's fiancee.

Ambassador Morrow was born in Huntington, W. Va., January 11, 1873, and when still a boy came to this city with his father, Prof. James E. Morrow. The family lived in Irwin avenue, North Side, then Allegheny. For a time Prof. Morrow taught in the old Fifth Ward (Allegheny) Public School, and then later in the Allegheny High School which latter school the future ambassador attended before going to Amherst. Prof. Morrow was the first principal at Slippery Rock State Normal School.

During the Morrow family's stay at Slippery Rock, Agnes Morrow, sister of the ambassador, married the late R. B. Scandrett, an attorney. Mrs. Scandrett left Pittsburgh some 10 years ago and at present is living in Decatur, Ga.

Since his graduation from Amherst in 1895 Ambassador Morrow's rise has been meteoric. During the World War he was a member of the Allied Maritime Transport Council and of the Military Board of Allied Supply. For his services he was awarded the D. S. M. by Gen. John J. Pershing.

FISH CLUB MEMBER CLEARED

Judge Nelson McVicar in Federal Court today granted a motion by government attorneys in closing the prosecution that the jury be instructed to acquit William Parchman, one of 14 defendants in the Union Fishing Club liquor conspiracy case.

Counsel for the defense immediately moved that binding instructions of acquittal be issued by the court in behalf of the other 13 defendants, including W. H. Robertson, city assessor, and Dr. F. H. Frederick, chairman of the city civil service commission. After hearing arguments Judge McVicar denied the motions.

COOLIDGE SIGNS CRUISER BILL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—President Coolidge today signed the naval building bill calling for the construction of 15 cruisers and an aircraft carrier.

The President's approval was given in spite of the measure's clause requiring that all the vessels be laid down by July 1, 1931, which he had opposed.

In addition to providing for the construction of the vessels, the measure calls for an international agreement establishing the rights of neutrals at sea in time of war.

Under the measure five cruisers are to be laid down in each of the three fiscal years 1929, 1930 and 1931. In addition, the construction of an aircraft carrier is authorized, to be begun prior to July 1, 1931.

DOWNTOWN GAS BLAST HURTS 6

Caught in a burst of flame in a manhole explosion in Diamond street, between Smithfield and Wood streets, this morning, six persons were burned.

A first explosion, caused by the snapping of a 4,000-volt electric cable, igniting grease and waste, lifted the cover of a manhole of the Duquesne Light Company conduit, startled pedestrians and extinguished lights on one side of Diamond street.

Cornerman John D. McPherson, who was nearby; D. R. Foster, of 1518 McFarland boulevard, Mt. Lebanon, manager of the S. S. Kresge store, 314 Diamond street, and J. H. Reese, 327 Grandview avenue, an employe of the store, ran to the scene. As they neared the spot flames shot up and enveloped them as water from a fire extinguisher struck the broken cable.

Robert Shuick, 17, of 1712 Fox way, and William Hess, 20, of 1209 Richmond avenue, and Francis Fydrich, messenger boy, pedestrians, also were slightly burned.

McPherson was taken to Allegheny General Hospital; Foster, Reese and Hess to Mercy Hospital. Shuick's burns were treated by a nearby physician. It was said their burns were not critical.

Shortly after the three were burned another explosion occurred.

Workmen of the light company attributed the blasts to bursting of a 4,000-volt electric cable and the flames to ignition of grease and fumes in the conduit.

Legislators' Pay Raise Bill Signed

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Gov. Fisher today signed "Senate Bill No. 1," the first measure to be finally passed by both houses of the 1929 General Assembly. It appropriates $184,500 to pay the increased salaries and mileage allowances voted the legislators by the last Legislature.

Senators and representatives will now receive $3,000 a year, and 10 cents a mile for traveling expenses, plus $150 for postage and incidentals.

Flu and Pneumonia Cases on Decrease

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(INS.)—Another material decrease in pneumonia and influenza deaths was recorded for the week ending February 9 by the Census Bureau today. Pneumonia deaths in 66 cities numbered 1,433, compared to 1,724 the preceding week. Sixty-four cities reported 349 influenza deaths, compared to 493. New York led the flu deaths with 74, compared to 124 the week before.

The Widow

MRS. SOPHIE BORKOSKI

Mrs. Borkoski, widow of the farmer beaten to death in coal and iron police barracks, who buries her husband today.

MRS. BORKOSKI IN POVERTY

A widow with four children faced a future of uncertainty today, but she faced it bravely.

She could have shown a little purse containing the only money under that roof—$10.

But Mrs. John Borkoski had only this to say:

"I'm not sure we want charity."

Nevertheless, the public insisted on responding to the plight of the widow whose husband's death has sent three coal and iron policemen to jail. To the Sun-Telegraph came unsolicited letters bearing cash contributions.

The Pittsburgh Coal Company, which employed the three policemen, who are charged with John Borkoski's death, announced it "will make provision for the care of his family."

The coal company's statement follows:

Pittsburgh Coal Company officials are not able definitely to ascertain what particular individual or individuals were responsible for

SLAYERS' VICTIM BURIED

The broken body of John Borkoski, mute forever, was laid to rest today in a little cemetery atop a hill near Imperial.

But the spirit of John Borkoski was crying in the high places of Pennsylvania's government, crying for justice. From individuals, organizations, from state and county officials, from leaders of the Legislature came an echo of those cries:

"The coal and iron police system must go!"

The slaying of Borkoski, Tyre farmer and miner, has raised an issue far larger than the slaying, with which three coal and iron policemen are charged.

That issue is:

Shall the system of terrorism imposed upon the coal fields by private "Cossacks" continue in this state?

Principal developments in the slaying today included these:

1 Corp. H. C. Johnson, of the state police, who investigated the slaying, was in Harrisburg, and shortly was to place in the hands of Gov. John S. Fisher a complete report of his findings. According to unofficial statements there was in that report data which would confirm the Governor in his expressed belief that Pennsylvania need no longer tolerate the coal and iron police.

2 State Representative Carl C. Baldridge, of Edgewood, will demand a state investigation of coal and iron police activities in Western Pennsylvania. Senator Herman P. Brandt will introduce a similar resolution in the upper house.

3 Senator W. D. Mansfield declared his intention of submitting legislation dealing with the situation in State Senate. Senator Frank J. Harris was working along the same lines.

4 State Representative M. A. Musmanno had drafted a bill calling for the abolishment of the coal and iron police system.

5 United States Senator Burton K. Wheeler, who personally investigated police activities here during the coal strike investigation for the Senate at Washington, condemned the coal and iron police system as harking back to barbarism and as having no place in a civilized community.

6 District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner termed the killing of the Santiago farmer-miner one of the most brutal he ever investigated

"ICE AGE" GRIPS EUROPE, COLDEST IN CENTURIES

International News Service.

The "ice age" has temporarily returned to Europe.

The whole European continent, from Scandinavia to Turkey, and the British Isles is gripped by the coldest weather in centuries. At some places the thermometer ranged from 30 to 40 degrees below zero.

Deaths from the cold are mounting into the hundreds.

Intense suffering prevails throughout all Europe.

Scores of ships are ice-bound. Hundreds of communities are isolated by snow and ice and crippled rail and telephone communications.

The crews of some ice-bound vessels are in danger of starvation.

In parts of Russia, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria and Jugoslavia packs of famished wolves are ravaging the countryside. They have killed and eaten many persons in rural districts.

Thirty-five Gypsies were found frozen to death near Lublin, Poland.

Throughout Central Europe thousands have been treated for frost bite.

Snow fell upon the French Riviera, noted for the mildness of its winter climate. The famous Mardi Gras at Paris proved a failure because of the snow and intense cold.

Ships putting into British ports from the North Sea and the Atlantic look like moving blocks of ice.

A wave of grippe and "flu" is sweeping Europe from the British Isles to the Balkans, and from Portugal to Russia. There are hundreds of thousands of victims.

At some places in the Balkans the snow has been piled in drifts 30 feet high.

Along the Bulgarian coast the Black Sea is frozen almost solid to a point three miles from the shore.

and promised speedy and appropriate prosecution.

7 Meanwhile Coal and Iron Police Pvts. H. P. Watts and Frank Slapikis and Lieut. W. J. Lyster were held in the Allegheny County Jail, charged with murder.

8 The Pittsburgh Coal Company issued a statement declaring that officials had been unable to definitely place the blame for the treatment of Borkoski, but that the company condemned unreservedly the brutality to which he was subjected and would make provision for the care of his family.

Corp. Johnson left here today with a stenographer, who was to type his report on the way to Harrisburg. Corp Johnson's instructions were to accomplish his mission speedily and thoroughly, for Gov. Fisher, once having moved to correct the evils of the Cossack system in the coal fields, was demanding swift action.

Johnson had gleamed much to lay before the Governor, although he would not comment on what he had been told and what he had seen. County Detective Frank L. Ritz, who accompanied Johnson on the investigator's survey, was of the opinion the report would cover the ground well.

MUTE WITNESS

The trooper viewed the body of Borkoski in the grief-stricken home at Santiago and conversed with the widow and her four children. They told him much, but the strongest accusations were mutely made by that silent witness in the drab front room of the mean little farm house.

John Burcosky's broken, battered body mutely cried for abolition of a police system that for years has fouled the robe of justice in Pennsylvania. And those cries must have found an echo in Johnson's report.

Into that report went also the story of John Higgins, who witnessed the brutal slaying of his friend, Burcosky. From county detectives Johnson gleaned a report of the admissions made by Watts and Slapikas.

Many of those statements conflicted, but they established with fair accuracy a story of almost unbelievable savagery. The policemen admitted that they had gone to "raid" the home of Burcosky's mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary Blussick, at Tyre. They said they had bought a pint of moonshine. Huggins said they had brought moonshine to the Blussick home themselves, although he admitted he had given the officers homebrew to drink.

ADMIT DRINKING

The officers admitted they had drunk moonshine, whether it had been bought at the Blussick home or not. They said they had been attacked. Higgins and Burcosky's widow alleged that the officers attacked Higgins, and that Burcosky intervened.

Burcosky was beaten, kicked and stabbed in the fight, and then he was taken to the coal and iron barracks at Imperial. There, according to Higgins and to reluctant admissions of Dr. F. W. Patterson, Pittsburgh Coal Company physician, Burcosky was tortured for six hours.

Higgins told detectives that Watts had jumped repeatedly upon Burcosky as the man lay on the floor moaning for mercy. Even the crunch of breaking bones did not deter Watts, Higgins said. Dr. Patterson said he had tried to halt the brutal business, but his pleas had gone unheeded.

And while anger and horror mingled in the public mind as the story of legalized brutality came to light, the family of Burcosky went quietly about their funeral arrangements in the drab house on a hillside overlooking Tyre.

Burcosky was to be laid to rest this afternoon in the small cemetery of the Roman Catholic parish of St. Columbkill, near Imperial.

Borkoski was buried this afternoon, with a quiet service in the Church of St. Columkill, near Imperial. There was no ceremony but the prayers for the dead. Then, with a cortege of miners and farmers to follow him, he was borne to a grave in the cemetery of the same parish on a hill that looks down upon Tyre, upon neighboring mine tipples and the coal and iron police barracks.

County detectives investigated the action of Justice of the Peace Margaret Morgan, of Sewickley, in holding John Higgins on charges of dry law violation made by Corp. H. P. Mechlin of the coal and iron police. Chief County Detective George Murren announced that nothing would be done by him to change that phase of the case, since Higgins had waived hearing for court.

Auto Victim Buried; Companion Better

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Feb. 13.—Ray Crumrine, Fredericktown boy, was said to be "out of danger" at the Brownsville Hospital today, where he is a patient recovering from injuries received when run down by a hit-and-run driver last Saturday, when his companion, Louis Percy, was killed. Funeral services were held yesterday for Percy.

Al. Smith and Party Arrive in Havana

HAVANA, Feb. 13.—(INS.)—Former Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York; John J. Raskob, chairman of the National Democratic committee, and a party of 14 arrived here from Florida today upon the liner Shawnessa, for a visit.

Today's Flagism

On February 13, 1776, James Wilson, member of the Second Continental Congress, offered in that body an address to the American people proposing and discussing political separation from England. This was the initial open proposal in Congress for American Independence. On this date in 1795, the University of North Carolina was opened to students, the first institution of its kind which offered education to the youth of the land. Education and the American Flag have gone hand in hand since the earliest Colonial Days.

ACCUSED POLICE HAVE RECORDS

Lieut. W. J. Lyster, one of the three Pittsburgh Coal Company police charged with killing in the death of John Borkoski, was convicted of a killing in Cambria County in 1923. In 1926 he resigned from the service, but the circumstances surrounding his leaving remained obscure.

Lyster

Lyster, a state trooper when he was tried for the Cambria County killing, was pardoned by Gov. Pinchot before he served a sentence. He was convicted, with another state trooper, of beating to death one Tony Missouri, a striking miner, in the Lilly (Pa.) riot.

Private H. P. Watts, second of the coal and iron police now charged with murder, was arrested in the killing of a Negro at Moon Run in October, 1927, while employed by the Pittsburgh Coal Company. The Negro was shot while walking away from a fight between two coal and iron policemen and a crowd of Negroes. A coroner's jury exonerated Watts.

SLAPIKIS

WATTS

Although Lyster's record was marred with the state police, J. D. A. Morrow, president of the coal company, testified before the Senate Investigating Committee that Lyster was "a fine officer" for the Commonwealth.

MRS. BORKOSKI IN POVERTY

the treatment of John Borkoski which resulted in his death.

The company therefore will make no statement which may prejudice or injure an innocent man. Its officials, however, condemn unreservedly the brutality to which Borkoski was subjected, and are co-operating with the county authorities to see that whoever is guilty is brought to justice.

John Borkoski was an employe of the company for many years, and regardless of any question of legal responsibility in connection with his death the company will make provision for the care of his family.

WEBSTER HALL AIDS

At the suggestion of several guests of Webster Hall, Maj. B. F. Jolley, managing director, today placed a box in the hotel lobby for the convenience of those who wish to contribute to the family. Maj. Jolly supplied the "nest egg" in the form of a personal check.

With one $10 bill between her and an indebtedness of approximately $700, the widow of the farmer-miner, said to have been slain by coal and iron policemen Saturday night, faces many financial problems and a rather doubtful future with four children.

FARM DIDN'T PAY

The debt includes notes made by her husband a few months ago when he moved to Santiago from another farm near Murdochsville which "didn't pay."

Their rent is $315 a year. Food and clothing for a family of five must be provided. There are seven cows which produce hardly enough to buy feed for other live stock. There are 24 pigs, 21 of them sucklings, the whole litter worth not more than $50 or so, according to Mrs. Borkoski.

The family has a little coal, but not nearly enough to last the winter, and hardly enough food to last a week, and all are poorly clad, the mother says.

Several contributions toward the relief of the Borkoski family came in today's mail to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Any further contributions in care of this newspaper should be addressed to the cashier of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Such money will be acknowledged and turned over to an organization recognized as being best able to handle such funds for the relief of the family.

NAMED FLAG PATRONS

SAMUEL HARDEN CHURCH

MRS. JOHN A. FRICK

CHURCH, MRS. FRICK JOIN FLAG CONTEST SPONSORS

Mrs. John A. Frick, president of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, and Samuel Harden Church, president of the Carnegie Institute, have accepted service on the National Board of Patrons and Patronesses of the Flag Contest of the United States Flag Association, being sponsored by the Sun-Telegraph and other Hearst newspapers.

Today

Interest among schools, clubs and organizations has reached a high pitch since the first questions were published in the Sun-Telegraph Monday. Applications for contest units have poured into the Flag Contest Editor's office from scores of towns in Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky.

MORE QUESTIONS TODAY

The second set of questions is published on this page in the Sun-Telegraph today. They are simple and easily understood.

Every school, organization or club can conduct a local flag contest of its own application to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. The contest consists of answering 75 questions on the American Flag and writing a short essay on "Old Glory's Greatest Glory," of such length that it can be recited in five minutes.

RULES O CONTEST

The condensed rules and regulations governing the contest are repeated herewith for the benefit of those who have not already seen them, and a complete set of these regulations will be furnished those who apply to conduct contests:

1. The contest is open to every boy and girl in the United States, regardless of race, creed and color, between the ages of 14 and 18, on Flag Day, June 14, this year, provided they, or their parents or guardians, are not employed by any Hearst Newspaper or Hearst Newspaper organization. Boys and girls whose eighteenth birthday falls on Flag Day are eligible to compete, but those whose birthday comes before that date are ineligible.
2. Boys will compete only against boys and girls only against girls, each receiving identical awards.
3. Contests will be conducted in the various communities of the United States by public high schools, or their equivalent in private and parochial schools, or by patriotic or civic organizations in the community. Each school or organization conducting a contest will be known as a "Local Contest Unit."
4. There must be at least 25 contestants in each contest unit. They may be all boys or all girls, or if a unit is conducting a contest for both boys and girls, at least six of the contestants must be either boys or girls.
5. Any school or organization may obtain authority to conduct a Flag Contest by writing to the Flag

Governor Finds Pertinent Facts In Killing

HARRISBURG, Feb. 13.—Some interesting facts will be disclosed as a result of the state's investigation of the killing of John Borkoski by coal and iron police, Gov. John S. Fisher said today. He stated that he had not yet received the complete report from state police, but had learned sufficient to know that it will be "very interesting." The Pittsburgh Coal Company, the Governor said, had assured him by wire they would make a complete report of their side of the case as soon as possible.

THREE MEXICAN BOMB PLOTS FOILED

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Bombs and threats of kidnaping today caused heavy police guards to be placed about the homes of prominent figures in public life.

Calles

Deportation of a Swede, an Italian and a consul of Bolivia were ordered.

Three more bombs were discovered in the offices and homes of prominent Mexicans whose names were not revealed. Police meanwhile have made no arrests in connection with the bomb found in the offices of Gov. Aaron Saenz, of Nuevo Leon, Sunday.

President Portes Gil, former President Calles and other prominent Mexicans have received threats against their lives, similar in appearance to threats received by Gen. Obregon prior to his assassination, police headquarters revealed.

Those to President Calles threatened kidnaping of his daughter, Ernestina, who is Mrs. Thomas A. Robinson, wife of an American. A heavy police guard surrounded their homes today.

Three persons are under arrest in the dynamiting of the presidential special train Sunday morning. Their names were not disclosed. Forty-nine women and 19 men arrested Saturday at the funeral of Jose de Leon Toral, assassin of Gen. Obregon, were turned over by police to the governor of the federal district.

GARDNER AIDS DEFENDANT

The spectacle of a district attorney testifying for the defense and his first assistant going on the stand for the prosecution was offered in Criminal Court today in the trial of Alderman George S. Wilson, Charles W. Collins, investigator for the Children's Service Bureau, and George F. Andrews, private detective, charged with conspiracy and extortion in the prosecution of slot-machine operators.

The case went to the jury of eight women and four men at 12:30 today.

GARDNER ON STAND

District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner testified that Wilson's reputation was good. He added that Wilson explained to him that prosecution of the racketeers was dropped on payment of costs at the suggestion of Collins.

Assistant District Attorney Andrew T. Park denied, for the prosecution, the testimony of Collins that he, Park, had advised Collins to drop prosecution upon payment of costs to the alderman, because the grand jury "didn't want to be bothered" with the cases.

DEFENSE RESTS

The defense rested its case with the calling of Gardner and there was a possibility that the jury would return a verdict today.

Assistant District Attorney Roy T. Clunk, presenting the commonwealth's case, charged that in numerous cases Collins, Wilson and Andrews conspired to arrest slot-machine racketeers and, without legal procedure, drop the prosecution when the costs were paid.

Toscanini, With Kin "Harmonies," Arrives

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Arturo Toscanini, director of La Scala Opera in Milan and guest conductor of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, arrived today on the liner Paris, accompanied by harmonies of his own. With him were Signora Toscanini, whom he described as "a symphony;" his son, Walter, whom he calls "a concerto," and his daughters, Wally, Carla and Wanda, who are "tone poems." Signor Toscanini is here for a season of 21 concerts, most of which will be held in New York.

Civil War Veteran Buried by Legion

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Feb. 13—Last tribute to Capt. Edmund Dunn, one of the last five Civil War veterans of this city, was paid today when the full membership of the American Legion Post and Howitzer Company, One Hundred and Tenth Infantry, gathered at the residence for the funeral service. They marched to the cemetery where the late commander of the dwindling G. A. R. Post was buried with honors of war.

Kidnaping Threatened In Letter

A letter received by former President Calles of Mexico threatens to kidnap his daughter, Ernestine, wife of Thomas A. Robinson, New Yorker, now engaged in business in Mexico City. Calles' life also was threatened and similar messages were received by President Emilio Portes Gil.

LINDBERGH TO MARRY ANNE MORROW SOON

all-powerful banking house to which, through his marriage, he will be associated.

MAY WED IN MEXICO

The marriage may take place in Mexico City in June, the Mexican Capital being temporarily, the home of the Morrows, while the head of the family is serving there as United States ambassador.

Ambassador Morrow announced the engagement of his daughter to Lindy. If he realized he was adding a new chapter to a Horatio Alger story with few parallels in modern times, he did not show it, for his manner was almost casually genial. At about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, one of his secretaries informed the correspondents in the Mexican Capiol, the Ambassador would have a statement for them at 4:15 p. m.

The correspondents, generally, having no inkling of what was coming, believed this statement would be about existing conditions in Mexico, following the attempt on the life of its president. Col. Lindbergh himself was then at La Fe, a little seacoast town about 100 miles from Havana, where he had been forced to make a landing on his homeward mail flight from Honduras.

Ambassador Morrow was seated at his desk, but he rose and greeted them cordially. He was a little more affable than usual, but that was the only noticeable change in his manner.

THE BIG NEWS

He held a single sheet of paper in his hands, and after resuming his seat, said:

"Well, I have a story for you today, boys, and here it is."

On the sheet of paper he then handed to his callers was the following brief statement:

"Ambassador and Mrs. Morrow announce the engagement of their daughter, Anne Spencer Morrow, to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh."

The Ambassador sat quietly at his desk while the correspondents hurriedly glanced through the statement, and when they began to bombard him with questions—questions similar to those they had asked last December when the rumor of Lindy's engagement to his daughter first was circulated, he smilingly said:

"That is all, boys, absolutely all that I have to say. You see I am in on this only a few hours myself. Maybe the family will tell you more, but I can't. That's all I can tell you now.

"Col. Lindbergh is coming here, and the time and the place of the marriage are details that you will have to wait for."

SMITH GRADUATE

Ambassador Morrow did add that the prospective bride graduated from Smith College in 1928, and that she had recently arrived in Mexico City to be with her family when the announcement of her engagement was made, but it was, as he suggested, from other members of the family the reporters learned the marriage probably will take place in Mexico City in June.

And that's the way the latest chapter was added to "Slim" Lindy's Horatio Alger story. So far as the world generally is concerned, it began with his solo flight from New York to Paris, which he started from Roosevelt Field on the morning of May 20, 1927. But actually it began long before that. It took on chapters, not generally heralded to the public, when this then penniless youngster was in turn student, barnstormer, parachute jumper, soldier of fortune, air mail pilot, and general daredevil stunter.

STARTED EARLY

It began, if you want to get that far back, on his very birthday, in a not overly pretentious house in Detroit, Mich., on February 4, 1902, for he came of an indomitable strain, as proven by his father, the late Charles A. Lindbergh, who himself fought his way from obscurity to a seat in Congress, and by his mother, Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, who had established herself as a teacher of chemistry long before her son became famous.

The courage and tenacity displayed by his parents were not long in manifesting themselves in "Slim." Always quiet, always retiring, even shy, the future air colonel went about the business of making his way in the world with unflagging determination.

Graduating from Little Falls (Minn.), High School, he lost no time enrolling in air service, though he did not see his first plane until 1912, and never sat in one until 1922, when he began training as a flier. This was after he had graduated from the school of engineering in the University of Wisconsin.

TAKES THE AIR

Riding on a motorcycle he went to Lincoln, Neb., where he became a student in the service of the Nebraska Aircraft Corporation.

He had a tough instructor, one I. O. Biffle, commonly known as "Biff," but hardboiled as he was, he was not hardboiled enough to discourage Lindy.

He not only became a flier, but he gave proof of the mettle that was in him by launching on a barnstorming career in which he attracted crowds by walking out on the wings of his plane for the edification of the country crowds that assembled to see him.

In 1923, while flying as a cadet at Kelly Field, Tex., he had a collision in midair with another flier. But the nerve that was to send him, months later, on a lone flight across the Atlantic, did not fail him. While his disabled plane was whirling earthward, he calmly adjusted his parachute and made a successful and unharmed landing.

IN "CATERPILLAR CLUB"

Twice after that he had to make parachute jumps to escape death, thereby making himself thrice eligible to membership in the Caterpillar Club, an organization of airmen made up only of those that have had to make forced parachute descents.

There is no use reciting the details of his flight across the Atlantic, because the whole world knows them.

SILENT ON WEDDING

MIAMI, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Asked concerning plans for his marriage, Col. Lindbergh said:

"Have you any other questions to ask?" That was his only response to the inquiry.

Describing his tour of approximately 3,900 miles, the Flying Colonel predicted that the present mail service to Panama now operating on a two weeks schedule will within a few months be operated daily.

A dispatch from Mexico City said that Plutarcho Elias Calles, former president, expressed delight at the engagement of Lindbergh and Miss Morrow and hoped they would be married in Mexico.

2 BILLS ADD 15 MILLIONS FOR ROADS

HARRISBURG, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—With Gov. Fisher's announcement that he would cause a bill to be introduced in the General Assembly increasing the tax on gasoline before them, the Senate Committee on Public Roads has moved toward consideration of the highway finance problem by the Legislature itself.

Senator Clarence J. Buckman, chairman of the upper branch's Committee on Public Roads, announced a plan of consideration of the subject by a group of four subcommittees of standing committees of both branches.

These developments followed closely a declaration by Gov. Fisher that the highway problem was by far the most important to face the present session of the Legislature; a statement to Senator Buckman's committee by James L. Stuart, secretary of highways, recommending expenditure of more than $15,000,000 more annually than is available out of present current revenues, and introduction of a new motor code raising driving license fees and charges against buses and trucks. So far no suggestion has been made to raise the cost of automobile licenses.

ANNOUNCEMENT SURPRISES

Gov. Fisher's announcement that he would have a bill offered to increase the gasoline tax came as a surprise, as recently the Governor announced positively that no decision had been reached concerning the levying of a 4-cent gasoline tax.

If both the gasoline tax bill and new motor code are passed they will add to the Highway Department's annual revenue approximately $15,000,000; will permit a start on the more rapid reconstruction of worn-out highways; will make possible the taking over of city streets and county bridges on the state highway system, and permit larger state aid and township rewards for road construction.

DRIVERS' LICENSES RAISED

The motor code, introduced in the House today by Representative Griffith, Indiana, increased the annual operator's license from $1 to $2 and the learner's permit from $2.50 to $3.50. It was estimated that this would provide $4,750,000 more funds annually, effective in 1930.

Both branches of the General Assembly adjourned until next Monday night.

The first bill to be killed on a roll call this session was the Marcus measure to establish a board of examiners for beauty parlor operators and to require such operators to be licensed.

CITY AWARDS CONTRACTS

Contracts totaling $541,610.70 were awarded today by Director Edward G. Lang, of the Department of Public Works. Work will be started on the first of the four projects in five days and the entire program will be completed within a year.

East Street Bridge connecting Charles street with Essen street was awarded to the Independent Bridge Company for $398,400. Repairs and new parts for Lincoln Avenue Bridge and construction of the drainage system over Washington boulevard was awarded to the Independent Bridge Company for $16,640.

The grading, paving and curbing of Pike street between Eleventh and Twenty-first streets was awarded to Booth & Flinn Co. for $122,855.70. Grading in Reynold street playgrounds of Frick Park was awarded to McCrady Brothers Company for $3,715.

HOOVER LEAVES FLA. NEXT WEEK

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—President-elect Hoover will return to Washington either next Monday or Tuesday, it was announced today at his pre-inaugural home on Belle Isle.

While Mr. Hoover had indicated before he left Washington that he expected to return soon after the middle of February, he had not stated this intention publicly, and the announcements today came as somewhat of a surprise.

Boys' Indian Hunt Ends in Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Two Pennsylvania boys, on a march to the western wilderness, were held by police here today and were deprived of a genuine six-shooter they carried to protect them against wild beasts. A third was sought. Companions reported him "mushing on" westward in search of Indians and outermost cavalry posts. Clyde Daugherty, 18, and a brother, 16, of Greenville, Pa., said they were headed for the "wide open spaces" when arrested. Police today were trying to reach their parents.

90 "One-Eye" Auto Owners Face Court

Approximately 90 autoists will be arraigned in Traffic Court tomorrow and Friday on charges of driving with one headlight, following a campaign against this practice by Traffic Inspector Ben Marshall. Those to be heard include taxi drivers, truck drivers and drivers of pleasure cars.

FIVE YOUTHS HELD IN PERRYSVILLE THEFTS

FRANK MOREN NICK ZAPICIC GEORGE ULRICH IRVING FAY EDWARD DIETRICH

Five boys held for further investigation in Morals Court today after a hearing in which city detectives branded them members of the "mob" that has been committing auto thefts and stickups and snatching purses and breaking into houses in the Perrysville avenue district for the past year. They are Dietrich, 17 Bassett street; Fay, 4029 Perrysville avenue; Ulrich, 3912 Perrysville avenue; Zapicic, 3925 Menlo street, and Moren, 4067 Franklin road. Fay, detectives say, is the leader of the gang.

LINDBERGH'S FIANCEE HEIRESS TO MANY MILLIONS

LINDY BEFORE PARIS HOP

Lindy, modest and unknown, just before fame reached out her magic wand. Behind him is the now historic "Spirit of St. Louis," as he prepared to take off on his flight to Paris.

THE LINDY OF TODAY

Here is Lindy as he looks today. He faces a job as big as those he has completed—that of being a good husband.

LINDY WITH HIS FIANCEE AND HER WEALTHY PARENTS

Lindbergh photographed with U. S. Ambassador to Mexico Dwight Morow, former Pittsburgher, Mrs. Morrow and Anne, his fiancee, on one of his visits. Before joining the diplomatic service, Mr. Morrow as a J. P. Morgan Company executive made many millions.

MRS. LINDBERGH

Lindbergh's mother in little more than a year will have passed from the position of a Detroit school teacher to that of an in-law of one of the nation's richest and most prominent families.

ELIZABETH MORROW

Elizabeth, Anne's sister, is the mystery girl. For months it was conjectured which one of the Morrow girls prompted Lindy's frequent visits.

ANNE MORROW DESCRIBED AS IDEAL MATE FOR LINDY

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Miss Anne Spencer Morrow, the future Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, was described by friends today as an ideal mate for the Flying Colonel. Both are of the old-fashioned type, as contrasted to the modern flapper and the slick-haired youth of today.

But Miss Morrow is not averse to a bit of fun and to her intimates is known as a laughing, frolicksome young woman, just as "Slim" Lindbergh in his mail flying days was known for his practical jokes and harmless horseplay.

Born in Englewood, N. J., a fashionable suburb across the Hudson from New York, Miss Morrow is 22, 5 feet 5 inches tall, has large brown eyes and dark brown unbobbed hair. The Colonel is 27, more than 6 feet tall, and a blonde. Both are Presbyterians.

POPULAR IN SCHOOL

At Smith College, Northampton, Mass., both Anne and her sister, "Betty" were well known, "Betty" being graduated in 1926 and Anne last year.

In addition to her poetry, Miss Morrow did considerable prose writing, most of it concerned with literary movements and history. She was elected to the Alpha Club, an organization composed of high-standing representatives of various college courses. Alpha Club members at Smith are known as "geniuses."

Membership in the Blue Pencil Club was another honor given to Miss Morrow. To be elected to the Blue Pencil Club, a Smith College student has to show unusual talent in writing.

Miss Morrow also belonged to the International Relations Society. Likewise she was a member of the Manuscript Club and the Granddaughters' Club.

She was a contributor to and member of the editorial staff of the Smith College Monthly.

WON LITERARY PRIZES

She won two prizes of outstanding importance—the Jordon prize for the best and most original prose or verse composition by an undergraduate and the Montague prize for the best essay on women of Samuel Johnson's time.

During her years at Smith, this girl of genius, but natural at all times, lived in Northrop Hall. When she was not in class rooms, her friends said, she was studying and writing, sometimes in her room and other times on the banks of beautiful Paradise pond.

Her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Cutter Morrow, is a trustee of the college.

Although known as a studious young woman, Anne is less so than her sister, Elizabeth, a few years her elder, who is a teacher at the exclusive Dwight School for Girls at Englewood. Anne is said by friends to be fond of attractive clothes and to have a greater interest in people than books.

FAMILY KEPT GUESSING

Rumors that Col. Lindbergh was interested in the Morrow girls persisted almost from the time he first met them December 14, 1927, on his first good will flight to Mexico. But even members of the Morrow family professed not to know which of the girls it might be. Generally he was seen with them together and both had made flights with him.

When Elizabeth returned from Europe last November, where in Turkey she visited the colonel's mother, Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, rumor had it that she was to be the bride. She declined, however, to discuss the matter and the Colonel, when later questioned on the same subject, likewise maintained his customary silence regarding all things other than aviation.

MONEY WORRIES ABSENT

Mr. and Mrs. Lindberg need not worry about the wolf at the door. The lone eagle hopped to fortune as well as fame when he made his flight to Paris, although he has declined many offers of a financial nature And Mr. Morrow was a partner in J. P. Morgan and Company before he became ambassador.

There are virtually simultaneous romances in the families of Mr. Morrow and a famous classmate, Calvin Coolidge, whose son, John, is engaged to Miss Florence Trumbull, daughter of the governor of Connecticut.

TOGETHER IN AIR

Anne has flown with her fiance several times in Mexico and New York, she was a passenger on flights over Mexico City 14 months ago when Lindbergh spent a fortnight there after his famous good will flight from Washington to Mexico City. She again flew with him there last November when Lindbergh went to the capital in the course of a hunting trip.

Her love of the air is one of the strongest bonds of interest which they have in common.

When Lindbergh took off from Valbuena Field in Mexico City last November for the United States, he gave a beautiful aerial salute to Anne. She was at the field with her family to watch him start. As soon as he had climbed to a little height, he circled over the field and then dipped low over the head of Anne.

Persons who witnessed this recalled it today as a significant farewell message from the aviator to his fiance. Although only the the principals suspected it at the time.

SEES LINDY'S TROPHIES

When rumors of Lindbergh's regard for one of the Morrow sisters were first published, Mrs. J. J. Morrow, their aunt, was quoted as saying that both girls had told her several times there was nothing to the rumor, as "Lindy isn't a bit sentimental and doesn't care for girls."

She also was quoted as saying it was her attitude and she thought the attitude of the rest of the family that if Col. Lindbergh wanted to marry a Morrow he'd have to give up flying.

There are three sisters and a brother in the Morrow family. In addition to Anne and Elizabeth there are Constance, a younger sister, who is attending a girls' school at Milton, Mass., and Dwight W. Morrow, Jr., a student at Amherst, his father's alma mater. Mrs. Morrow was the former Elizabeth Reeve Cutter, of Cleveland.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Miss Anne Morrow saw the trophies of her future husband's historic flights for the first time last Friday. Miss Morrow and her mother made a special stop here to visit the collection in the Missouri Historical Society Museum on their way to Mexico City. Miss Morrow was particularly interested in the trophies of the flying Colonel's Mexican and Latin-American flights, Miss Nettie H. Beauregard, the curator, said.

BROWN CALLED TESTIMONY "FIXER"

Guy W. Brown's chauffeur, Peter Zemo, on the witness stand in Federal Court today, testified that Brown had tried to arrange his testimony before the Fayette County banker-churchman-politician was brought to trial for embezzlement of $147,300 from his church and two banks.

Previous testimony showed that Brown had discounted a note for $20,000 purporting to have been made by Zemo, who declared that Brown had instructed him to testify that he had received stock in the United Mining Company in exchange for that note, and that the stock had been deposited with the defendant's brother, Jesse Brown, in the Fayette City National Bank. Brown was a director and vice president of that bank when it closed in 1927, along with the First National Bank of Webster.

M'NUTT GUEST HERE TONIGHT

Paul V. McNutt, national commander of the American Legion, was here for a short time today while on his way to Johnstown, Pa., and later was en route back to Pittsburgh to be the principal speaker tonight at the eighth annual commander's banquet of the Allegheny County committee, American Legion, at the William Penn Hotel.

More than 1,000 persons are expected to attend tonight's banquet. Commander McNutt will deliver the principal address. Another talk will be made by Charles E. Gebert, Tamaqua, Pa., state commander. Edward Crump, Jr., is general chairman of the banquet.

SHIP ON ROCKS, ANOTHER IN DANGER

DUTCH HARBOR, Alaska, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—The Japanese steamer Nankoh Maru hovered off the rock-bound Aleutian Islands fighting a heavy storm today as it awaited an opportunity to rescue 25 men aboard the doomed Japanese freighter Meiyo Maru. Not far away, a third Japanese vessel, the Alloway, with one crazed member of her crew aboard, was being driven toward destruction on the rocks.

The Nankoh Maru reached the Meiyo Maru late yesterday, several hours after the latter had broadcast weak signals that she was pounding to pieces on the rocks, off Ugamak Island. Because of heavy seas, the rescue vessel was unable to assist her, but stood by, waiting for the storm to subside.

Thirty-three members of the crew of the Alloway were picked up in lifeboats by the steamer Montauk yesterday after an unsuccessful five-day fight against the storm. The Montauk had been trying to tow the Alloway to Dutch Harbor. When the tow line broke and the disabled vessel began heading for the rocks of Unimak Pass, the Montauk began to back away. The helpless ship crashed into the Montauk, but the latter vessel made a safe getaway while all except one member of the Alloway's crew took to lifeboats.

Cambridge Springs Fire Wrecks Hotel

CAMBRIDGE SPRINGS, Pa., Feb. 13.—Fire believed of incendiary origin partly destroyed the unoccupied three-story frame Fullerton summer hotel early today, causing $6,000 loss. Police say empty tin cans, which they suspect contained gasoline, were found in the structure. The caretaker was away, police said.

Foch Better Today, Doctors Announce

PARIS, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Condition of Marshal Foch showed a definite improvement this morning, his physicians, Drs. Davenlere and Degennes, said after a half hour's visit with their patient.

CRIPPLED AUTO AND PHONE FIGURE IN LINDY WOOING

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(INS.)—The telephone and a broken automobile played a prominent part in the courtship of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Miss Anne Morrow, it was revealed here today.

During the past year, while Lindbergh was flying here and there around the western hemisphere, he was the object of more than one frantic search on the part of long distance phone operators. That the calls invariably originated in Mexico City caused no flurry of excitement at the time, but their significance is realized fully now.

Miss Morrow learned that regardless of how far Lindy flew the telephone could fly, so to speak, just as far.

MEET IN MEXICO

They met at the Morrow residence in Mexico City, December 14, 1927, after the "Lone Eagle" made his historic good-will flight from Washington.

They met several times after that, but it was in Englewood, N. J., where the Morrows have their suburban home, that Lindy did his wooing.

A broken down automobile was the instrument through which fate wove its romance.

One night the flier happened to be driving through Englewood with no thought of calling on the Morrows. The automobile broke down and fate with a beckoning hand led his footsteps to the ambassador's mansion. It was early in the evening when he arrived there seeking repairs for his car, but it was late—very late—when he left.

ANOTHER BREAKDOWN

During the winter of early 1928, the same car led him to Englewood once more. Again fate was on the job. The automobile broke down a considerable distance outside the Morrow home and Lindy hiked for three hours through a snowstorm before he again reached its sheltering warmth.

After that, Lindbergh went often to the Morrow home. One night—not so long ago—he left there to drive back to New York with a promise locked tight in his heart. The promise is still there.

Any supposition that Lindbergh wooed and won Miss Morrow in whirlwind fashion is ill-founded, friends here say.

Horse Skids, Hits Beacon, Driver Arrested

George Daunt, 24, huckster of 226 Gross street, was arrested for reckless driving when his horse slid on the ice at Liberty avenue and the Bloomfield bridge, today, hurling the wagon against a beacon light which was badly damaged.

Daunt was treated at the West Penn Hospital for cuts and bruises and was released on a $30 forfeit for a hearing in Traffic Court. The horse was also slightly hurt.

Byrd Supply Ship on Way to New Zealand

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Feb. 13.—(INS.)—Bert Puckett, local radio amateur, who is in daily communication with the Byrd Polar Expedition in the Bay of Whales, today talked to the Eleanor Bolling, the supply ship which was en route to the base in New Zealand to take on supplies.

Among the foodstuffs the ship said it would carry back to Byrd were 20 pounds of garlic, a ton of meat and great quantities of drugs. The Bolling told of the terrific storm blowing in the Bay of Whales when it left.

Watching Card Game, Man Slain by Trio

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—James Rocco, 26, occupation unknown to police, was shot through the heart and killed as he attempted to escape three men, who, with drawn guns, entered a social club in Queens, where he was watching friends play cards last night.

The three men, unmasked, who shot Rocco, each firing one bullet into his body, made their escape in a waiting automobile. Police were unable to ascribe a motive for the killing, being undecided as to whether it was a private feud or a bootleggers' quarrel.

6 MARDI GRAS CELEBRANTS KILLED

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Mardi Gras glittered and sparkled in New Orleans yesterday, but not without its toll.

Six persons dead and more than a score injured, some seriously, were left in the path of Rex, carnival's king, when the supreme monarch departed upon the royal yacht for his distant "palace."

Henry J. Laux, 38, was crushed to death when he fell under the wheels of a carnival truck; Mrs. Margaret Wappler, 53, died from the blow of a hit-and-run automobile driver; Mrs. Elizabeth James, 42, succumbed to injuries received when she was hurled through the door of an automobile that struck a carnival truck, and three Negro celebrators died in gun battles.

Automobiles also took their toll of injuries.

Three white men were beaten and cut in a street fight with a half-hundred Negroes.

Chandler C. Luzenberg, former district attorney of Orleans Parish, was hurt seriously when he was catapulted from a float in the Comus parade last night.

YOUNG SUICIDE TO REST HERE

Funeral arrangements were being made today for George Miller, 17, of 419 South avenue, Wilkinsburg, who ended his life on a lonely mountain top near Meridan, Conn., according to authorities of that city. Charles A. Bardolph, secretary and treasurer of the Franklin Savings and Trust Company, uncle of the dead youth, last night wired police at Meridan, to send the body to Pittsburgh.

Miller, son of Mrs. R. F. Miller, was a graduate of Wilkinsburg High School and had gone East in search of employment. He was desirous of obtaining a position on a newspaper and also continuing his education at one of the eastern colleges.

His body was found Monday by hikers, an empty bottle that once contained poison, by his side.

QUESTION MARK HOME TO 'DIE'

HARRISBURG, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—The famous Question Mark has come home to its foster-mother to "die."

Making its last flight with the special refueling equipment that made its epochal endurance flight possible, the tri-motored ship was flown yesterday to the Army air depot at Middletown, near here, from Bolling Field, Washington, for removal of its "lungs." It flew to its own funeral.

It will be just an ordinary airplane after being stripped of its special equipment.

Three members of the crew which made the continuous flight of more than 150 hours on the West Coast, including Maj. Carl Spatz, the flight commander, who is a native of Pennsylvania, accompanied the plane here. After being honored by the Pennsylvania Legislature and Gov. Fisher, the trio, who in addition to Maj. Spatz, included Lieut. E. R. Quesada and Sergt. Ray W. Hooe, said a sad farewell to their mechanical companion and departed in several other planes for the return trip to Washington.

Beats Death in Sea Race, but Death Wins

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—A race to reach the bedside of his wife, seriously ill of pneumonia, was won by Arthur Rose Vincent, lawyer, of Killarney, Ireland, yesterday, but she died a few hours later. Mrs. Vincent, accompanied by her two children, Elizabeth, 14, and William, 9, arrived in this country last Wednesday on her way to San Francisco to visit her father William B. Bourn. She became ill on the trip acvross and her husband boarded the next steamer. He left the Mauretania on a special tug at quarantine at 1:30 yesterday morning to reach her side as soon as possible.

Bandits Cow Clerks, Loot Hotel Vault

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Five masked robbers today entered the lobby of the exclusive suburban Oak Park Arms Hotel and compelled four employes to lie on the floor while they rifled several safe deposit boxes, escaping with an undetermined loot.

About the same time an unmasked robber held up the cashier of a downtown restaurant and escaped with $2,600. Fifteen patrons were unaware a holdup was in progress.

RADIO DEALERS ORGANIZE

Radio dealers throughout the tri-state district formed an organization at a meeting held in the Keystone Athletic Club last night. The new body is to be known as the Retail Radio Merchants Association, and its object will be "to assure proper co-operation of dealers to the consumer's advantage." It is anticipated that some 100 radio men will be enlisted within the next few weeks.

Weather Conditions.

The persistent high pressure areas are now broken up by lows and as a result the temperatures are rising slowly, except over the upper Mississippi Valley states and the eastern plains, where a narrow ridge of high pressure is producing low temperatures. The high that was centered in Kentucky yesterday morning is now in the far Northeast and the storm has remained stationary but diminished considerably in pressure.

There is much cloudiness over the country and snow is falling over the upper Mississippi Valley states and over the lower Lake region as far east as Buffalo. A low is centered over Illinois, lowest barometer, 30.08 inches, at Springfield, and another over Saskatchewan, Canada, lowest barometer 29.90 inches at Williston and at Quappelle.

TWO FACTIONS CONFER TODAY ON BLUE LAW

The warring factions in the Sunday "Blue Law" controversy will confer today when representatives of the Association for the Modification of the Blue Laws of 1794 and members of the special committee, appointed by the Pittsburgh Ministerial Union, will discuss the issue at a luncheon in the Chamber of Commerce.

The former group will be represented by Col. A. W. Wyckoff, William B. Rodgers, J. W. Cree, Jr., Miss H. Marie Dermitt, Stewart C. McFarland, Frank Wilbur Main and Wilmer M. Jacoby.

The ministers will send the Rev. Dr. J. Sala Leland, chairman of the committee; the Rev. Dr. Robert F. Galbreath, the Rev. Dr. W. I. Wishart, the Rev. Dr. M. R. Kunkelman and the Rev. Dr. Charles R. Zahniser.

The clerical committee is the same one which was appointed by the Pittsburgh Ministerial Union last week to disseminate the views of the organization on the question of Blue Law modification. The appointment was made after the Ministerial Union voted a resolution declaring itself wholly opposed to any change in the law of 1794.

"The meeting will be informal," declared Wilmer M. Jacoby, a member of the modification association. "We shall give the ministers every opportunity to discuss the provisions of the bill and to offer constructive criticism and suggestions. We are open-minded on the subject of modification of the blue laws and quite willing to listen to suggestions from the other side."

"We are very anxious to meet our opponents and discuss the issue with them in a friendly and sane manner," was Dr. Zahniser's comment.

BARRACKS FIRE KILLS MINER

A man is dead and a dozen families are homeless today as a result of a fire which destroyed frame barracks of union coal miners in Brownsville road, Broughton, last night. Joseph Loppi, 66, confined to bed several weeks with pneumonia, perished in the blaze, believed to have been caused by an overheated stove.

The barracks, about 100 feet long and 40 feet wide, were enveloped in flames. So rapidly did the fire spread that families occupying the place barely had time to escape. In their hurry, the neighbors forgot Loppi. His body was found several hours later.

Volunteer firemen and a bucket brigade formed by miners attempted to extinguish the blaze but were hampered due to lack of water. The water hydrants were frozen and chemicals used by Broughton firemen proved futile.

The barracks were built more than a year ago by the union miners following their eviction from company houses during the coal strike.

Milwaukee Mayor At Ship Launching

CUXHAVEN, Germany, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Daniel W. Hoan, mayor of Milwaukee, and a party of fellow citizens, arrived in Germany today aboard the steamship Cleveland, to attend the launching of the Hamburg-American liner Milwaukee, February 20. Director Haller of the Hamburg-American lines, welcomed the party, which included Mrs. Hoan, William George Bruce, chairman of the Harbor Commission, and Alderman Strehlow.

Persian Shah Pays $40 Day in Hospital

PARIS, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—The deposed Shah of Persia has been under treatment at the American Hospital for some time. He pays $40 a day for sitting room, bedroom and bath.

Cause of 2 Sisters Dying Undetermined

UHRICHSVILLE, O., Feb. 13.—"Undetermined" was the verdict given in the probe of deaths of Mrs. L. R. Tobey, 65, and Miss Blanche Winner, 62, sisters, whose bodies were found in their apartments in West Third street, Coroner J. F. Lewis announced. He eliminated murder and asphyxiation from his conclusions, and no further tests will be made to determine whether the sisters carried out a pact to die at the same time.

The bodies were sent to Binghamton, N. Y., for burial.

Col. Fierro to Fly To Rotary Conclave

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Lieut. Col. Roberto Fierro, Mexican aviator who five months ago flew to Havana and Central America, announced today he will fly soon to Dallas, Tex., to attend the forthcoming Rotary International convention.

FLIERS, AT 39,000 FEET, SEE ICE BILLOWS IN AIR

DAYTON, O., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Two Army fliers in an old Army plane reached an unofficial altitude of 39,000 feet from Wright Field yesterday, and brought down with them an account of a condition above the clouds which meteorologists long have suspected but never have been able to prove.

The fliers, Lieut. Johnson and Capt. A. W. Stevens, pilot and photographer, were forced down by depleted fuel at Norton Field, Columbus, O.

Stevens

The instruments indicated that they had reached an altitude outreaching the record of 38,420.5 feet held by Lieut. C. C. Champion, of the United States Navy. No record was claimed because rules prescribe that the plane land at the field from which it left the earth.

After they had reached the pinnacle of their flight, Johnson and Stevens were flying in a temperature of 76 degrees below zero. They looked below and saw what appeared to be billows of ice crystals, hung in midair and resembling the formations of a cave.

The aviators described the spectacle as a dazzling sight, with the light rays broken by the fragile crystals into all the colors of the spectrum. To verify this seeming mirage of the heavens they dipped again and again into the crystals, and Lieut. Johnson, to make more certain, removed a glove and stuck his bare hand from the cockpit. It was pierced as though by a thousand needles. Not satisfied, Capt. Stevens exposed part of his face, and today he bore a huge ice blister on one cheek as a souvenir.

Battery Acid Blinds Woman in AutoCrash

ERIE, Pa., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—A few drops of the solution from an automobile battery fell into the eyes of Mrs. Hulda Brumberg, 60, of Shawmut, Pa., on January 27, when the machine was wrecked near Ridgway, resulting yesterday in the loss of both eyes at Hamot hospital, the acid penetrated deep into the optic organs.

After the accident it was believed that gasoline had entered the woman's eyes. Continued pain, however, was suffered by Mrs. Brumberg and a doctor discovered the acid.

Nicaraguan Rebels Flee to Honduras

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Marine headquarters has been informed that groups of outlaws under the former Sandino leaders, Salvado and Ortez, have crossed the border into Honduras. Both groups have been pressed recently by Marine patrols, which also have forced other small groups to seek refuge across the border.

JEWS' TRIBUTE PAID LINCOLN

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—The Union of American Hebrew congregations assembled here in convention, paused yesterday to pay tribute to the memory of Abraham Lincoln on his birthday.

Henry Morgenthau, international banker and former United States ambassador to Turkey, read Lincoln's Gettysburg address, and declared that the country owes its religious tolerance to Lincoln. He asserted that had Lincoln not preserved the United States as a unit, it would be a series of little unions "filled with prejudice."

Rabbi Jacob Niet, in reporting for the general committee, charged that commercialism had entered the church and that the church had to change its methods in order to survive. He said that "too many fairy stories" were being told the children in the Sunday school.

When Baby Doesn't Get Sunshine—Look Out!

Now a hot breakfast food offers the "sun" vitamin that children need.

Here's a way to avoid "sunlight starvation"!

DO you know what "sun starvation" means? According to authorities, 90% of children in cities suffer from it. Now a great new discovery brings sunlight's bone-building vitamin that prevents this "sun starvation" to your children in the famous hot breakfast food, Quaker Farina.

Just why sunlight has so tremendous effect upon your child's health, doctors have only recently learned. They call the secret Vitamin "D." When Vitamin "D" is present in the body, the child develops strong, healthy bones, hard, sound teeth. The child's appetite is good. Growth goes on "full speed."

Without this "sunshine vitamin," bones are soft and undeveloped. Usually appetite lags. Colds are frequent. Lack of Vitamin "D" is common because winter sunshine is "skimmed sunshine"—skimmed of its vital Ultra Violet Rays.

Now a way has been found to secure this essential part of sunshine. A great scientist discovered it. Quaker Farina, famous hot breakfast food, is now being irradiated with Ultra-Violet Rays by his method, the Steenbock Process. Thus it can pass on to you the sunlight vitamin.

Quaker Farina is made of the creamy white heart of the wheat. Full of energy. Quick and easy to digest. The new tastes and looks the same. And now it has this added health factor which no other hot breakfast food can claim! Get irradiated Quaker Farina at your grocer's. The price is unchanged.

NOTE: All Quaker Farina is irradiated, although some packages are not so marked.

STATE URGED TO INCREASE MOTHERS' FUND BUDGET

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 13.—Declaring Gov. Fisher's budget of $2,750,000 for mothers' assistance in Pennsylvania inadequate, a group of welfare workers and representatives of philanthropic organizations in session here today were preparing to ask the Legislature to increase the biennial appropriation to $3,500,000.

Reports from more than 50 counties in the state show that the waiting lists of deserving mothers and their thousands of dependent children are rapidly increasing, and it was declared that in industrial regions the funds now provided cared for less than half the eligible applicants. This condition is said to be true particularly in Cambria, Luzerne and Lackawanna counties. Some Allegheny County applicants have been waiting nearly two years, it was stated.

Today's meeting was called by the Mothers' Pension League of Allegheny County, the Rev. Dr. C. A. Voss, president. Herman F. Ruoff, chairman of the legislative committee of the league, presided. The Allegheny County Board of Trustees of the Mothers' Assistance Fund was represented by Mrs. Marcus Spiro, chairman; Mrs. Amelia Thomas, Mrs. Leanah Morgan and Miss Rose Porter, executive secretary. Senator Frank J. Harris and Representative Joseph C. Marcus were Allegheny County legislators at the meeting.

MADE BY THE MAKERS OF NUJOL

You're missing something if you don't hear "FORHAN'S SONG SHOP" Thursday night at 8:00. Station WCAE.

Have you all of your own teeth?

Unless you take preventive measures now, the day is coming when you may know, to your sorrow, that the true meaning of the phrase "artificial denture" is often the extravagant price of self-neglect—false teeth. Here's the reason and the way to help safeguard health against the coming of this day.

Teeth are only as healthy as the gums. And gums, undernourished and under-exercised, soon surrender to dread diseases that ravage health and often destroy teeth. To prevent this, avail yourself of the best care that modern dentistry offers. Place yourself in the hands of your dentist at least twice a year. And brush your gums when you brush your teeth, every morning and night.

But for this purpose—use Forhan's for the Gums... the dentifrice designed to help firm gums and keep them sound, thus protecting them from the attack of disease.

Use Forhan's regularly. You'll be delighted with the way it makes your gums look and feel. In addition, you'll notice that it effectively and safely cleans teeth and helps to protect them from decay. Get a tube of Forhan's—today!

"Don't COUGH Your Energy Away"

How a cough may jar your whole nervous system!

COUGHING wears you down. It disturbs your sleep—takes away your appetite—uses up the strength you need to fight off serious infections.

Each time you cough, it tears at the delicate membranes of your throat and bronchial tubes. A harsh cough puts a terrific strain upon your chest, stomach and other vital organs.

At the first sign of a cough or throat irritation, take Pertussin. It helps Nature free the air passages of germ-laden mucus, soothes the irritation and quiets the cough. Pertussin has been prescribed more often for coughs than any other advertised remedy.

Pertussin is safe even for small children and convalescents—a good remedy for "coughs that hang on." It is free from dope—does not upset the stomach and can be taken as often as necessary. Ask any Doctor or Druggist.

MORE PITTSBURGHERS INDORSE TEMPERANCE CONTEST

CAMPBELL AND KLINE WON BY HEARST PLAN

HENRY F. KAMP, of Detroit, author of the book, "In the Light of Divine Right," representing 19 years of research on the subjects of prohibition and temperance, writes to the Hearst $25,000 temperance prize contest to say:

"Burke, in his vindication of national society, says that 'a people, who in general are excluded from any share of the Legislature are to all intents and purposes as much slaves, when 20, independent of them, govern, as when but one domineers.'

"May I suggest that the parallel or equivalent of the foregoing is that if 20 or more legislators and their constituents, the prohibitionists, can exclude from the family table remedial beverages and can persuade a minor part of the people of the United States to vote for or tolerate prohibition, which stands for the denial and abolition of God-given rights, then the remaining part, including those who have always obeyed the admonition, 'Be ye temperate in all things,' as well as those who never have tasted wine or beer, are virtually slaves. They are slaves to the will of the prohibitionist minority and to the unjust prohibition law.

"Biblical history and all world history prove that when a law measure fails short of its purpose, and we now have had 10 years of prohibition rule, it must be because it does not meet with divine sanction."

Mr. Kamp, an entrant in the prize competition, declares that for the sake of those who view the subject on moral or religious grounds, he studied every verse in both the Old and New Testaments of the Bible, from Genesis to Revelations, to ascertain whether there were any ethical grounds for the support of prohibition. He adds:

"I found no positive commandment of God to abstain from drink, directed toward peoples or nations as a whole. There are precautionary suggestions for the benefit of certain individuals. But there is nothing more mandatory than 'Be ye temperate in all things.' In my book I have given for those who reverence the Bible, and in regular order, the books, chapters and verses relating to wine and strong drink, comprising a complete compendium, each followed by commentary notes and and comparisons.

"My work is not in the interest of either wets or drys, but it is for the benefit of those who desire to retain their God-given prerogatives in the exercise of will power over appetite, desire and choice of conduct, free of the stigma cast upon them by the unprecedented prohibition law."

The author is one of those of belief that even under normal conditions, more die of overeating than of overdrinking, and not taking into account poisonous liquids dispensed illicitly under prohibition in greater flood than were pure beverages containing alcohol prior to prohibition. He quotes Dr. Oliver T. Osborne, of the department of medicine, Yale University, as saying:

"Alcohol may, under proper conditions, and in certain diseases, be used not only as a drug, but as a food. It will prevent or solidify acirosis, and in starvation, or when solids may not be taken, it will prevent emergencies, and prolong life under serious conditions.

This discussion is one of hundreds being received daily from all parts of the civilized world in all languages, since aliens may compete in the temperance prize contest. The Kamp views are not, however, a part of his entry in the contest.

Interviews by correspondents of the Hearst newspapers with persons of note on the purposes of the contest and what it is expected to reveal are subjoined:

Guy E. Campbell

Guy E. Campbell, representative in Congress from Pennsylvania:

"I heartily indorse Mr. Hearst's $25,000 temperance prize contest sponsored by him for the development of a more adequate plan designed to promote national temperance. I am strongly in favor of any movement which will work for real temperance and have hopes that much good will result from this contest."

Guy E. Campbell

Charles H. Kline

Charles H. Kline, mayor of Pittsburgh:

Charles H. Kline

"It is not the function of a public official who occupies an executive position to express whether, in his personal opinion, any certain law is right or wrong.

"It is his duty to accept the law as he finds it, execute it to the best of his ability and leave the matter of controversy and discussion as to change to those occupying legislative positions and to the people themselves, who, finally, make and unmake all laws.

"For these reasons, during my incumbency of the office of mayor of a great city such as Pittsburgh, I have religiously refused to record what might be my individual views on the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead act.

"But, while still holding to this cause and refraining from a commitment as to the merits or demerits of prohibition, there are some things I can say.

"It is obvious that a great division of opinion exists on the subject. It is obvious, also, that there is widespread dissatisfaction and that this is present in the camp of the proponents as well as the opponents of prohibition. It must be admitted that the law is ignored and held in contempt by a considerable percentage of our citizens.

"Thus a situation has been created that calls for sane and sensible thought. The views of the extreme wets and the extreme drys should be regarded as being biased. The final decision should rest with what might be called the 'moderates,' who, in the final analysis, always prevail in number when it comes to the settlement of issues vital to the republic.

"Prohibition is the biggest question before the American people. Mr. Hearst, with his newspapers, is looking at it in a big way. His action is really the first forward move, in a constructive American way, to produce a real American result."

M. Louise Gross

Miss M. Louise Gross, lecturer:

"I am delighted with the Hearst prize contest for the best plan to restore temperance to the United States. Public sentiment is not in favor of present national prohibition, as proved by the recent referendum in Massachusetts and in Montana and all states where voters have had an opportunity to vote on the question of repeal or modification.

MISS GROSS

"Congratulations on the contest. The great middle classes are looking for a leadership out of prohibition chaos and feel sure Mr. Hearst will accomplish the desired result through his $25,000 prize offer."

Rules of $25,000 Temperance Contest

THE purpose of the contest is to obtain a practicable plan, as a substitute for prohibition, which will secure better actual temperance conditions, which will be more easily possible of enforcement by state and federal authorities, which will offer less encouragement to crime and tend less to debauch the public service, and which will not so outrage and violate the fundamental rights and personal liberties of American citizens.

The rules and conditions of the contest are simple and are as follows:

1—Every person is entitled to enter the contest, but no one person may submit more than one plan.

2—The practicable plan proposed as a substitute for prohibition must be set forth in an article containing not more than 1,000 words.

3—This contest will close on April 30, 1929, and no plan which has not been mailed and postmarked on or before that date will be considered.

4—The articles submitted in the contest will be judged by a committee of eminent Americans, the personnel of the committee to be announced at a later date.

5—The full prize of $25,000 will be awarded to the contestant submitting the best plan as a practical temperance substitute for prohibition.

6—If other plans not awarded the first prize shall still be considered worthy of some compensation by the committee, a second prize of $5,000 and other prizes of $1,000 each may be awarded.

7—Articles submitting a plan to be considered in this contest may be sent to the temperance contest committee, care of the editor of any one of the following Hearst newspapers: Albany Times-Union, Atlanta Georgian, Baltimore News, Boston Evening American, Chicago Herald and Examiner, Detroit Times, Los Angeles Examiner, New York American, Omaha Bee-News, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Rochester Journal, San Antonio Light, San Francisco Examiner, Syracuse Journal, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Washington Herald, Wisconsin News (Milwaukee).

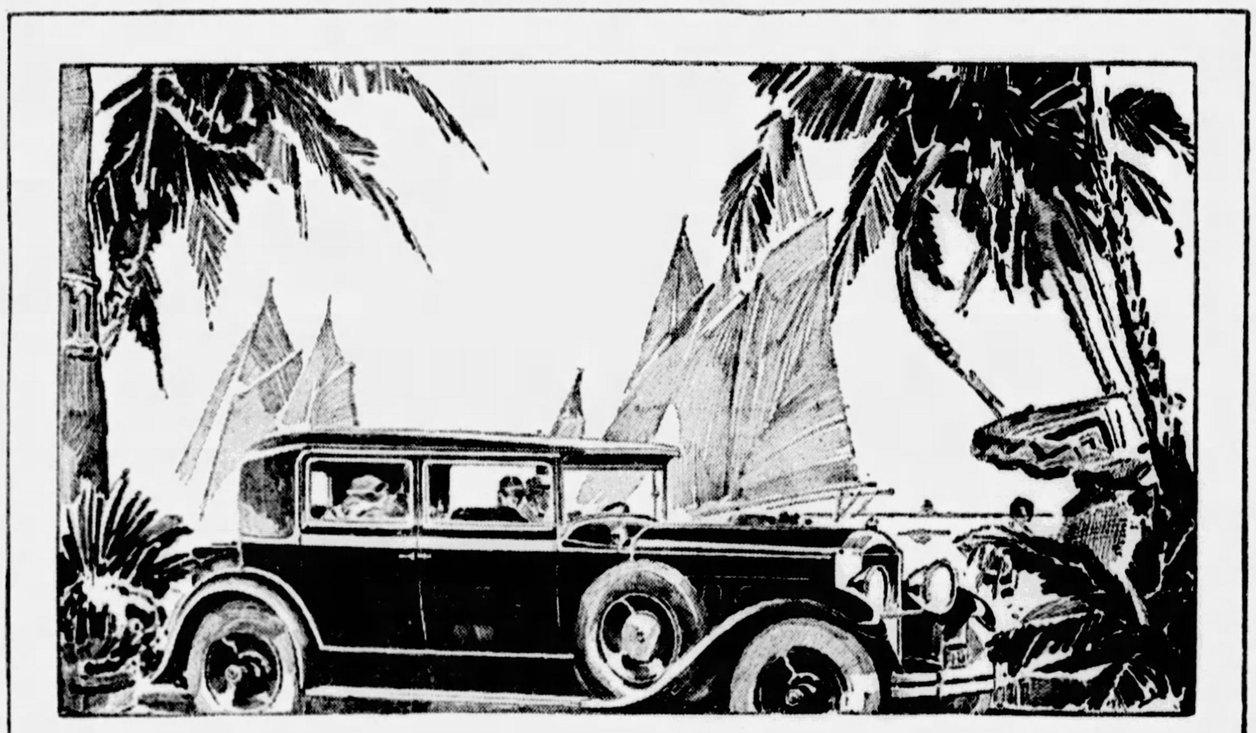
PACKARD



Available in Three Price Ranges

FINE CAR enthusiasts who desire the supreme luxury and distinction of Packard Eight transportation today have a wide choice in models and in prices.

For the famous Packard Straight-Eight, acknowledged both at home and abroad as the finest of all fine cars, is now available in three complete and separate lines—and in three distinct price ranges.

These three lines—the Standard Eight, the Custom Eight and the De Luxe Eight—differ only in size, in detail of appointment and in the degree of individuality obtainable in upholstery and in color. In fundamental design and in quality of materials and craftsmanship they are alike—finer in engineering than any cars Packard has built before. Each Packard Eight today is a "Packard" in the full sense of that significant word

We invite you to come in and see the three new Packard lines, to learn from actual figures why it is more economical, over three or four years, to own and operate a Packard Eight than to drive a succession of lesser cars during the same period of time.

The Packard Eight is a long-lived car, providing more miles of luxurious and distinguished transportation than the average owner ever uses. When will you take the model of your choice for a trial drive?

The Packard Standard Eight is priced from $2435 to $2835—the Custom Eight from $3175 to $3850—and the Eight De Luxe from $4585 to $5985—at the factory. Individual custom cars are also available to order on the De Luxe chassis.

If you prefer to buy out of income, you will find the Packard Payment Plan most attractive. Many take possession of their new cars without any cash outlay—and with the small monthly payments made smaller because the used car allowance exceeds the down payment on the new car.

U. S. PROTESTS ON 'DOPE' TRADE DEMANDED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Demand that the State Department immediately file protests with Holland, France, Germany and Switzerland over the swamping of America with narcotic drugs manufactured in those countries was made last night by Representative Fish (Rep.), of New York.

Fish's request was based upon a letter sent him earlier in the day by Secretary of State Kellogg. In it was a report of the League of Nations advisory committee on traffic in opium and other dangerous drugs, naming factories in the four countries which are allegedly supplying the drugs to the illicit trade.

The report, transmitted to the State Department by the American unofficial representative at the advisory committee's twelfth session, declared:

"In the course of the discussion on the reports on seizures, especially those submitted by the Netherlands government and the United States government, the committee learned that large quantities of drugs manufactured or sold by four firms mentioned below had been met with in the illicit traffic: 'Naarden' Chemical Works at Bussum, Netherlands; Sandozlate Chemical, Basle, Switzerland; C. H. Boehringer and son, Hamburg, Germany, and the Societe Industrielle de Chemie-organique, St. Genevieve, France."

THREE INJURED IN BRAWL

One man is in a hospital seriously hurt and six others are held by police, two of them suffering stab wounds, after a brawl early today in a house at 349 Copperfield street, South Side police who arrested the men also took into custody two women found in the place.

Andrew Pubup, 34, of 172 Brook street, was found wandering in Copperfield street by Patrolman Joseph Callakowski, who took him to the South Side Hospital. There it was said the man's skull was fractured. He told police he had been in a fight at the Copperfield street address.

Police then went to the house and found Frank Lenzia, 28, who lives there, and Charles Schuster, 24, a visitor, suffering stab wounds. They were treated and removed to the police station along with Antino Vigilione, 29, Ralph Cafalo, 29, James Keck, 24, Hilda Pubup 22, and Clara Kehren, 22. All were held as suspicious persons.

Former Crown Prince Sick Abed With Grip

BERLIN, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Frederick William Hohenzollern, former Crown Prince of Germany, is in bed with grip. The case was complicated by an attack of tonsilitis.

RHEUMATISM RECIPE

Ex-Sergeant Paul Case, Room 118, Quigg Building, Brockton, Mass., states that while serving with the American Army in France he obtained a prescription that thousands of Rheumatic sufferers have used with gratifying results. He says the prescription cost him nothing, so he asks nothing for it, but will send it to any one who writes him.—Advertisement.

EAT YEAST IN THIS MODERN FORM

IF YOU ARE RUN DOWN FAGGED OUT, CONSTIPATED

If you want yeast in its purest, tastiest, most convenient form, be sure to ask for Yeast Foam Tablets. Pure dried yeast . . . with nothing added.

You'll like their delicious nutty flavor. Swallow them whole if you wish, although most people chew them like candy.

Ideal for children because, unlike baking yeast, these tablets do not ferment nor cause gas. Give them to children freely.

As to purity, potency and quality, this yeast is recognized as the standard for use in vitamin studies by investigators of the leading universities of the nation and of the U. S. Government.

Eat Yeast Foam Tablets for indigestion, constipation, skin disorders, run down conditions. Six tablets in glassine envelope for 5 cents or the 10-day bottle for 50 cents. Northwestern Yeast Co., 1750 No. Ashland Ave., Chicago, Ill.

HEMSTITCHING, picoting, pleating, ruffling and button-covering will be performed for you at moderate charge in the Sewing Machine Department. These professional finishes often "make" the garment. (Balcony).

TWO BIG STILLS SEIZED, OWNER SOUGHT

The operator of an alleged moonshine plant at 970 Washington boulevard, is being sought by federal prohibition agents in connection with a raid on the house yesterday. A 200-gallon and a 150-gallon still were seized and large quantities of mash and moonshine destroyed, the agents said. Nobody was found in the dwelling, a two-story frame.

Another distillery was uncovered in a raid on a farm in Baldwin Township, where Daniel Bardoletti and John Marconi were arrested.

Alex Green, 25, of 1814 Enoch street, was arrested by the federal raiders after 300 gallons of wine were seized in his home, it was reported.

Praise for the color gravure section of the Sun-Telegraph continues to pour in from all quarters.

The following from Charles T. Wunderly, Jr., art dealer and critic:

"Your color gravure section of February 10, depicting Pontiac Praying to the Sun God and other well-chosen subjects, was most beautifully reproduced.

"Our aesthetic nature immediately impels us to congratulate you on such exceptionally skilled craftsmanship as must be required to publish such an artistic as well as educational section.

"This advancement in the newspaper world whereby the public is enlightened artistically and literally, must, and will, place your paper among the foremost in the country."

Three Held as Fake Radio Ad Solicitors

Three alleged fake radio advertising solicitors, arrested by city detectives yesterday, will be arraigned in Morals Court today. The prisoners are Chuyler Coleman, alias Wilkes, and James Corbin, both of Detroit, and Beatrice Wilkes, of Rochester, N. Y. They are said to have solicited business men in small towns for $30 each to broadcast advertising for their business over a radio station, which detectives say, never existed.

Police Seek Drunken Driver After Crash

Through a license number furnished by A. M. Seibert, of 261 Maple avenue, Edgewood, police at the Frankstown Avenue Station expect to arrest an alleged drunken motorist who last night wrecked Seibert's automobile at Penn avenue and Whitfield street.

Seibert informed police that the driver ignored a traffic signal, struck his machine and failed to stop. The driver and several occupants were intoxicated, Seibert said.

of this modern medicine fairly overflow with the glad statements of those freed from the clutches of stomach trouble, weakened kidneys, sluggish liver, constipation or rheumatism, neuritis or nervousness. Konjola is not a medicine of promises, claims or theories—but is a medicine that brings results and accomplishments — it strengthens and invigorates the ailing organs—preparing the system for the ever-welcome tenant, new, glorious and lasting health. What Konjola has done, is doing and will do for you, is being explained daily, by the Konjola Man, who is at the Dow Drug Company, formerly McCulloch, Penn avenue and Sixth street, this city, where he is meeting the public daily. It was his happy experience to hear the grateful statement of Miss Betty Craemer, 111 Burr street, Mt. Oliver Station, Pittsburgh, who had a most remarkable restoration to health through the use of Konjola. Miss Craemer recently said to the Konjola Man:

"Konjola restored my health after all other medicines and treatments failed. If I had not had actual experience with Konjola I would not have believed that a single medicine could work such wonders. To begin with I had a nervous disorder of my stomach that caused gas and all of its evils. Whenever I ate anything heavy, bits of the food rose into my throat, leaving a very sour taste. From this condition my disposition became irritable and unruly. I had little hope that anything would help me because I tried several medicines and failed to find one that benefited me.

"I had been reading and hearing so much about the amazing accomplishments of Konjola that I went to the Konjola Man to find out about this medicine. He merely told me what it had done in cases similar to mine and pointed out wherein Konjola gave wonderful relief in even more chronic cases. With renewed hope I started the treatment. It seemed to me that from the very first dose a radical change took place. The gas bloating disappeared and the fermentation ceased. I realized that Konjola contained real merit and wouldn't think of missing a dose. I took two bottles in all and can safely say now, that I am free of all terrors of nervous indigestion. My disposition is better and all signs of nervousness are ended. I have heard that Konjola is called the medicine with more than a million friends. Well, all that I can say is that it deserves fifty millions."

Upon such cases does Konjola rest its foundation of success. Not only does Konjola bring glorious relief from the most stubborn cases but in most every instance the benefits are lasting and sure. It is said that no sufferer can afford not to give Konjola a chance.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Company, formerly McCulloch, Penn avenue and Sixth street, this city, where he is meeting the public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this master medicine. Free samples given.

GIRL, JEALOUS, TRIES SUICIDE

Elizabeth Meyers, 15, of 915 Gibson street, Elliott, who is in the South Side Hospital with a bullet wound in her abdomen, may not live to tell why she shot herself at her home last night.

Her condition is said to be critical, but physicians at the hospital have not yet given up hope of saving her life.

Police say she shot herself in a fit of jealousy because a youth who had been a frequent visitor to the Meyers home had confessed his love for an older sister, Mrs. Florence Beck.

Mrs. Beck denied that there existed anything more than a mere friendship between her and the young man.

"We were good friends, having known each other since we attended school together," she said.

She professed to have no knowledge of the youth ever having paid any attentions to her younger sister.

Sage Tea Puts Color in Gray Hair

By LOIS PAIGE

I am heartily in favor of the woman who refuses to be aged by gray hair. It is every woman's right, even her duty, to retain her youthfulness and attractiveness as long as she can. When a woman asks me about coloring her gray, faded or streaked hair I say, "Go ahead," and tell her the secret of sage tea and sulphur.

A brew of common garden sage tea and sulphur has the power to restore gray or faded hair to full life and color. You can either prepare the mixture at home or buy it already prepared and ready to use. The name of the prepared article is Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur, and since it costs only 75c a bottle at any drug store, there is really no need to go to the bother of preparing it yourself.

You simply moisten a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, one strand at a time. Done at night, morning sees the gray gone; another application or two and your hair is once again the color and lustre of youth and you appear years younger. The whole effort is one of perfect naturalness.

Liquor Fight Leads To Killing of Man

Because he refused to give his wife 50 cents to purchase moonshine, police say, Alonzo Gregg, 37, Negro, was shot to death in his home, 2126 Hemans street, police at the Center Avenue Station reported. The killing occurred shortly before last midnight, during a drinking orgy, the officers state. After the shooting, the victim's wife, Gertrude Perkins Gregg, fled, it is alleged. Police arrested four Negro men and a Negro woman who were in the house when the slaying occurred.

Palestine Appeal Committee Meets

The executive committee and majors and captains of the teams canvassing the city in behalf of the United Palestine appeal campaign for $125,000 met at noon today in the private dining room at Kaufman's.

Reports on the progress of the drive were made by officers. The campaign opened Sunday night. The Pittsburgh quota alone is $75,000. The remainder of the money is to be raised in cities in Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Eastern Ohio, which are included in the Pittsburgh region.

RUMOR HAS MAUDE ADAMS SLIP INTO HOLLYWOOD; MAY MAKE TALKIES

By DOROTHY HERZOG,

(Copyright, 1929, Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 13.

PRETTY cold weather lately. The polar bears should relish it. And one doesn't necessarily refer to casting directors. 'Tis nodded about that the one and only Maude Adams has slipped quietly into our midst and is as ditto acquainting herself with the talkies. Perhaps other sinematic matters, too. A few in the know suspect Famous Players is rolling flirtatious optiks at Miss Adams. But she is an elusive soul. Then again, money never snared this artiste. It wasn't do-re-me that converted her to scientific stage lighting experiments at the General Electric Schenectady plant for some two years.

Bebe Daniels

. . . Speaking of W. K. personages, it may be interesting to note that Henry Clive, the artist, is now Charlie Chaplin's art director . . . Include among sinematic similes: As balmy as a yesman's conference . . . Bebe Daniels and her mother flying to San Francisco. Bebe has been elected to be Joan of Arc in the Mardi Gras pageant.

. . . Mrs. Ben Troop, erstwhile Ruby Deremer, of silver sheet limelight, is visiting the village with her husband, for several months. Ruby has developed a keen interest in the stock market. She may purchase a seat on the local . . . exchange. More power to you, Ruby.

. . . Marion Davies is terribly upset. A hit-and-run driver struck her prized Big Dane and killed it. Charming people, hit-and-runners. Do you suppose they have mothers? . . . Ken Maynard going up in the air. Legitimately. He pilots his own ship . . . May Sunday dolorously recounting the story of the cross-eyed seamstress, sasshayed her stitches . . . Ben Lyon sub-leasing his apartment and going in for hostelry life. Reed Howes and Jack Warner have two things in common. Both wear spats. But not for colds. Espied. At high noon. Perched atop a fire hydrant in front of a grammar school. An empty Scotch bottle. Sure it was empty.

Ken Maynard

Director Alexander Korda working 25 nights in succession . . . Charlie Delaney happily claiming to be hen-pecked . . . Bob Leonard disguised behind a juvenile moustache.

. . . Jack Pickford reported ill and confined in a local hospital . . . Mary Pickford up to her social tricks. Meeting more European titles at the Santa Fe station . . . The stock market's deflation brings little cheer to sundry flicker-ites. . . . Jetta Goudal in a pet because she went to theater and her chauffeur chose to mistake that Eve for New Year's . . . Viola Brothers Shore proffers a theme song for "The Woman Who Needed Killing." "Woman Who Needed Killing,' you slay me." . . . A lugubrious soul asserts Emil Jannings' pictures should have happy endings. Janningsshould pass out in the last reel . . .

. . . Estelle Taylor Dempsey preparing to entrain for New York and thence to Miami and Jack . . . Betty Bronson darkly suspecting a dress model yclept DoDo was named in honor of Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Do-do is Joan Crawford's soft moniker for the lad . . . Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Moreno will move into a duplex apartment house on Franklin avenue the end of this month. Mrs. Moreno has given her beautiful hillside home to a charity organization . . . Tito Schipio, the W. K. Singer, visiting Charlie Farrell at the Fox studio . . . and—that's all.

FACES YOU'LL SEE :-: NEXT WEEK :-: ON STAGE AND SCREEN

Mary McCoy is coming to the Alvin in "My Maryland," operetta of Civil War days.

Minna Gombell is in "Indiscretion," Nixon booking.

Cullen Landis is to make a personal appearance in the Davis.

George Jessel is coming to the Aldine in "Lucky Boy," a film.

Norma Shearer is in "A Lady of Chance," Penn film booking.

Alice White is star of "Naughty Baby," headed for the Stanley.

PLAY AMONG FUTURE BILLS

"Indiscretion," by Myron Fagan, coming to the Nixon for a week, opening Monday evening, February 18, is in four acts, ranging from Venice to New York, being a story of two lovers, separated in youth and trying to find themselves, meeting again, and the resultant situations. Seat sale Thursday.

Art Landry and his recording orchestra of 15 musicians and a girl dance soloist will be one of the headline acts on the two-a-day Keith-Albee-Orpheum vaudeville program in the Davis next week. Cullen Landis, movie star, in person, also will be on the bill.

The Isadora Duncan Dancers, headed by Irma Duncan, are appearing in the Pitt this week in dancing episodes. They came here direct from the Manhattan Opera House and Wallack's Theater, New York. Matinees Thursday and Saturday. Matinees at 3:15 and evening performances at 8:45.

"My Maryland," the operetta of Civil War times, returns for a limited engagement in the Alvin, Monday and Tuesday night performances will be given in Syria Mosque. The attraction moves to the Alvin for the Wednesday matinee and the remainder of the week. This particular company includes Mary McCoy and Nathaniel Wagner. Seats tomorrow.

Symphony Concerts Friday and Saturday

The Minneapolis Orchestra, Henri Verbrugghen, conductor, will give the sixth pair of concerts in the Pittsburgh Orchestra Association series in Syria Mosque on Friday night and Saturday afternoon. The Symphony on Friday night will be Brahms No. 4. Saturday afternoon, Dvorak's "New World" Symphony will be given. A special concert for children will be given by this orchestra in Carnegie Music Hall Friday afternoon.

German Company Sings Opera Tonight

"Tristan and Isolde," Wagner's great operatic love lyric, will be given tonight by the German Grand Opera Company in Syria Mosque. Tonight's cast includes Karl Joern in the role of Tristan, and Mary Diercks as Isolde. Dr. Walter Rabl will conduct.

Former Newsboy Plans Music Printery

Joseph Hiller.

Joseph Hiller, once a Pittsburgh newsboy and more recently an associate of Irving Berlin, will launch a music publishing company here, he announced today. Hiller operates a music store in Fifth avenue, where he once sold newspapers, and is now to open another in Smithfield street Friday. Celebrities from Tin Pan alley are to attend the opening.

From the sidewalks of Pittsburgh, Hiller went to New York and won success with the song, "If I Could Call You Sweetheart." Then he returned to Pittsburgh and married. Later, his wife wrote the song hit, "Under the Moon."

"BROADWAY MELODY," FILM, RIVALS ZIEGFELD HITS, GOTHAM CRITICS SAY

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.

THE following are excerpts from "Broadway Melody" reviews appearing in New York papers:

Irene Thirer, Daily News, says: "Zowie, What a picture. Humor, drama, action, romance, thrills and how. Swell, grand, glorious, glamorous, colorful, tender, snappy, smart and more than that. A knockout, sure-fire hit, any way you look at it. Direction, dialogue, songs, continuity and scenario all done by experts. Acting that is superb. What more can one wish in the theater? Is easily the best talking picture yet made and gives out great hope for microphonic movie dialogue. Is fresh, bright, sympathetic, always interesting and so funny that audience racked sides with laughter.

"There isn't a trite moment in Broadway Melody and you'll love Charlie King, Bessie Love and Anita Page in this grand picture which will remain at the Astor until screen wears out."

ANITA DAZZLES

Katherine Zimmerman, in Evening Telegram: "'Broadway Melody' will go lingering on and on and how. As far as this department is concerned, keeps you all steamed up from first to final reel and sends you away with all the major sensations of having witnessed a Jed Harris production with entire acts by Prof. Florenz Ziegfeld, for it combines pace and humor and heartaches of a 'Broadway' with iridescent gayety of a Ziegfeld follies. 'Broadway Melody' is leaps and bounds ahead of all other talking pictures. The acting is first class throughout from Bessie Love, Charles King and Anita Page down to the humblest extra. Bessie Love makes the Broadway prima donna look like tuppence-halfpenny with her singing, dancing and ukelele playing. Charles King makes an auspicious film debut, and Anita Page is dazzling. Harry Beaumont direction is admirable and human without ever being maudlin."

Betty Colfax, in Evening Graphic: "'Broadway Melody' is a box office gold mine and easily the best talking picture yet produced, and a triumph for all concerned. It is a sympathetic love story against a background of lavish sets, including a beautiful color sequence. The picture should rival 'Big Parade' in its run at the Astor Theater."

COLORFUL FILM

Rose Pelswick in Evening Journal: "'Broadway Melody' is a natural story, is colorful and acting is marvelous. The dialogue is amusing, the songs are great and the action is a fast utilization of both stage and screen technique, combining the best features of both. There are plenty of laughs and several sobs. The musical comedy scenes are done in gorgeous color. All voices register well. 'Broadway Melody' is great entertainment."

Regina Cannon in American: "'Broadway Melody' is a bonafide super-special. It gave open-minded movie-goers the thrill of their lives. It has a fast moving plot, bright dialogue and a story that audiences love."

Richard Mason in Brooklyn Standard Union: "'Broadway Melody' is a clean home run for M. G. M. Ziegfeld, Carroll and White had better look to their laurels now that the talking screen has come into its own. 'Broadway Melody' is better than a six sixty Broadway musical show."

MANY THRILLS

John Cohen in the Evening Sun: "'Broadway Melody' is obviously the product of experts in the field of acting, vaudeville and musical comedy. It offers unusual entertainment and gave a distinguished audience many thrills."

Creighton Peet in the Evening Post: "'Broadway Melody' has music, comedy and color of a big Broadway review with a believable dramatic plot, marvelous color sequence, revealing possibilities of film musical comedy application of screen technique, which gives this talking picture a great advantage over stage musical comedy."

Mordaunt Hall in the Times: "An enthusiastic throng hailed 'Broadway Melody' as the first musical comedy ever screened. Bessie Love gives a great performance, revealing imagination, notably in a marvelous dressing room scene. Charles King gives a vigorous conception of Eddie and Anita Page gives an excellent performance."

Arthur James in the Daily Review: "'Broadway Melody' is presented triumphantly by M. G. M. and was hailed by a first night throng as out-follying the Follies, out-scandalling the Scandals and more profitably vain than the Vanities. A wonderful attraction. 'Broadway Melody' is a tremendous hit."

Jessel, in Talkie, Sings Five Songs

"Newspaper work on a corner scale," as Georgie Jessel puts it, featured his early childhood in New York's East Side, where his father, Joseph Jessel, a dramatist and stage director, loved his art more than dollars. Georgie's musical cry of "Wuxtry" and his smile usually cleaned up his corner in short order.

But Georgie's newspaper career was short-lived. At the age of 9 he was playing a schoolboy in a Gus Edwards vaudeville revue, and he has been singing, wisecracking, imitating or dancing on the stage ever since. Now he is doing most of these things on the screen, for the new talking movies allow Jessel to sing, joke and act.

In "Lucky Boy," his first talking and singing feature production, which will be seen and heard in the Aldine next week, Jessel sings five songs, imitates several famous stage actors and wisecracks throughout. It is a story of a boy who tried to live up to the image of himself that he saw in his mother's loving eyes.

Capital Rum Sales Aired in Congress

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(A.P.)—A letter charging that saloons were being operated openly in Washington under police protection was read in the House yesterday by Representative Blanton (Dem.), Texas.

Blanton, in a speech dealing with police conditions in the city, read the letter from a person whose identity was not disclosed. The letter listed half a dozen addresses at which it was said liquor was sold openly. For the privilege, the letter said, daily payments were made to the police.

Airplanes to Aid Stricken Indians

OTTAWA, Feb. 13.—(A.P.)—The airplane has been called to the Red Men in the hunting grounds around Pickle and Shonia lakes, where not so long ago the canoe was the only vehicle of transportation.

Of the 600 Indians in this northern hunting ground, which is 100 miles north of the Canadian National Railway, more than half are reported to be suffering from influenza and there is imperative need for medical supplies. Food also is reported scarce. Dr. G. H. Bell already has made one airplane trip to the stricken Indians.

Coolidge Urges Fund To Halt Gnat Damage

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(A.P.)—Protection for man and animals from an outbreak of gnats in California and in the Gulf states through an appropriation of $12,000 was recommended to Congress yesterday by President Coolidge.

The money would be used by the Secretary of Agriculture to discover means of controlling "these gnats, which are known locally as 'eye' or 'buzz' gnats, which attack the eyes of human beings and open wounds and sores of animals, causing considerable irritation and soreness."

Like our famous milk chocolate bar...

the milk's already in it!

As you open a tin of Peter's Milk Cocoa, notice the lovely appetizing color—the light, fluffy texture. You can fairly see the milk in it!

Taste it—just as it comes from the tin. How creamy it is! As smooth and mellow as our famous milk chocolate bar.

Because it is made like our milk chocolate. Choicest cocoa is pulverized to a velvety smoothness. Then blended with fine table sugar and rich, full-cream milk by the same secret process Daniel Peter used to make the original milk chocolate.

Only the purest, freshest, full-cream milk is used in Peter's. Rigid inspection and scrupulous care safeguard its purity and freshness until—within twenty-four hours after milking time—this high-grade milk is blended into Peter's Milk Cocoa.

So finely, so smoothly blended is Peter's, that no cooking is needed. You just add hot water—to replace the moisture that is removed from the milk.

That's why you get in Peter's such a fine, rich chocolate flavor. No "cooked taste" of boiled or heated milk—no scorching—no scum.

So easy! Made instantly right in the cup. No bothersome cooking—no pans to wash up.

So delicious! A cocoa of rich flavor and mellow creaminess achieved by the makers of Peter's—the original milk chocolate bar.

WITH ORDINARY COCOA YOU MUST BUY 3 THINGS SUGAR, COCOA, MILK

WITH PETER'S YOU NEED ONLY HOT WATER

Fresh, full-cream milk and fine table sugar are already in it. Made right in the cup.

The site selected for the preparation of Peter's Milk Cocoa is in the heart of a famous dairy region. This insures an unfailing supply of the purest, freshest full-cream milk. The purity and freshness of the milk are safeguarded by the most scrupulous care.

Our Daily Short Story

EXHIBIT A

By Walter E. Ridwell

I HAVE been an attorney for 40 years and during that period many odd, unbelievable cases have come to my attention; but the one I am about to relate is in many ways the most singular I have ever known.

Mary Means was both good looking and proficient in a business way—a rare and winning combination very seldom encountered. Also she was confiding and whole-souled. Because of the fact that she had been recently promoted to superintendency of our city schools at a very handsome salary she was a bright and shining mark for all salesmen of the high-pressure type who sought by means both fair and foul to enrich themselves at her expense.

Robert Moses was decidedly the character of man we are alluding to—and more. He was a natty dresser, a convincing talker and he had a personality which was nothing short of marvelous. One was very strongly drawn to him and the women folk were as he put it, "his meat."

Robert had a bond to sell which was without doubt the most alluring purchase ever offered to the public since time began.

And Mary Means being, as heretofore remarked, of a very trustful, confiding disposition and having been captivated by the whirlwind methods of Robert Moses, forthwith agreed with all he said. But as the school year was just beginning, Mary had no money to spare.

"Very well," said Mr. Moses, "I shall wait till spring for the money."

In signing the order for the bond Mary inadvertently signed a note as well.

Soon after the bond arrived Mary exercised the prerogative of changing her mind and returned it to the company, with a note that she "guessed" she didn't want it.

Spring came and Mary received a notice from a local attorney to the effect that the note would be due on such and such a date—all of which Mary very blissfully ignored.

A bit later a deputy sheriff laid a "summons and complaint" on Mary's desk—and Mary, figuratively went "straight through the roof."

Instead of consulting an attorney of her own, however, she went to the shyster who held the note. There followed a serious altercation.

While these arguments were at white heat Mary Means asked to see the note. Before the attorney could interfere Mary had thrust it into her mouth and chewed it into an unrecognizable mess, the type and consistency of which we used to blow through a metal tube when the back of the teacher was turned and we fancied ourselves immune from detection.

The attorney made a great to-do about this, indulging in a few devastating oaths and ended by saying that he would forthwith sue her for the "malicious destruction of property."

Mary Means paid no more attention to this threat than she had to the first notice she had received about the note. The evidence of debt was now gone, completely wiped out—why worry?

"As far as I am concerned the incident is closed," she said. And Mary went out on the street and to her room in a very happy frame of mind.

Shortly thereafter another "Summons and Complaint" reached Mary's desk and this time she came to me with her troubles.

I did not care the least bit about the signing of a note, because the signature had been obtained without my client's knowledge or consent and no consideration had passed.

The destruction of the note, however, was quite another matter.

In due time the case came to trial and we asked for a jury, since a pretty woman was involved and I fancied that sentiment would weigh more strongly in this case than facts.

Fortunately the jury, when impaneled, was composed entirely of men. The case was of short duration, but it contained one startling denouement.

When Mary had finished her testimony she walked dramatically to the judge's desk, on it she placed a little wad of dry paper which bore evidences of thorough mastication.

"Exhibit A," she said. "The ink of the signature is still inherent in the paper. We hereby return to the plaintiff his property."

With this sudden change in the status of the case I let it go to the jury without argument, no one knowing better than I the power of dramatics in a jury trial.

Within 10 minutes a verdict of "Not Guilty" was brought in.

At the foot of the courthouse steps I called my client aside. "Why th' heck didn't you tell me you still had that chewed-up note? I was desperately worried for awhile, and thought we would be squelched."

"I was worried too," Mary said. "That was why I chewed my note pad up and made it into a little wad.

"Mebbe you noticed I kept going over and looking out the window. I had the wad of paper there, drying on the radiator. "The note I chewed up in that shyster's office I swallowed."

WELL, MR. WICKET—WE MISSED YOU AT DINNER LAST NIGHT!
LAST NIGHT? OH, YES, I TOOK POT LUCK WITH SOME OLD FRIENDS OF MINE AT ONE OF THE CITY'S MOST EXCLUSIVE CLUBS. WE TALKED OVER OLD TIMES AND HAD MANY A LAUGH OVER THE DAYS WHEN WE WERE HUNTING THE WILD BOAR TOGETHER IN DARKEST AFRICA. I USED TO BE A FAMOUS BIG BOAR HUNTER, YOU KNOW.
YEAH? SAY, WINDY'—THE ONLY THING YOU EVER HUNTED WAS LEAKS FOR THE GAS COMPANY!
HELLO, LIZZIE? GUESS WHO THIS IS—HELLO!—SHE GUESSED ALL RIGHT! SHE HUNG UP!
I DON'T KNOW ABOUT THE HUNTER, BUT YOU'RE STILL A BIG BORE, MR. WICKET!
'WINDY' ADDRESSED THE LADIES' SHAKESPEARIAN LEAGUE THIS AFTERNOON. IN HIS ADDRESS HE SAID THAT ALTHOUGH HE HAD NOT KNOWN SHAKESPEARE PERSONALLY HE HAD HEARD HIM WELL SPOKEN OF BY MANY PEOPLE AND BELIEVED HE WAS IN A FAIR WAY TO MAKE A NAME FOR HIMSELF.

Wife of Secretary Accuses Sportsman

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Charging that Conkey P. Whitehead, Atlanta sportsman, had led estray her husband, his secretary, Samuel L. Jones, Mrs. Ruby S. Jones, has filed suit in Fulton Superior Court asking $75,000 damages.

She alleged that Whitehead had encouraged her husband to drink and associate with other women and ultimately caused him to abandon her in October, 1928. Mrs Jones has a suit for divorce pending. Whitehead recently was named defendant in a $250,000 suit for damages filed by Frances Porter, a dancer.

EX-COUNTESS WOULD FLY ATLANTIC IN BLIMP R-100

International News Service.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—For the second time in history a trans-Atlantic dirigible will carry a woman as passenger on its maiden trip across the ocean, if the hopes and plans of Mme. Katherine de Landa, Englishwoman, and formerly the Countess of Drogheda, are realized.

Mme. De Landa has applied for the privilege of being the first woman passenger on the giant British airship R-100, expected to start across the Atlantic early in March. If she goes as a passenger, she will duplicate the feat of Lady Drummond Hay, the well-known British traveler and journalist, who was on board the German dirigible Graf Zeppelin on its maiden flight from Friedrichshafen, Germany, to Lakehurst, N. J.

Mme. De Landa, tall and graceful, is an all-round sportswoman. She is chairman of the women's committee of the British Air League.

The R-100 is nearing completion at Howden, Yorkshire. She is expected to be ready for her first trial flight in a few weeks.

How Quits Rods, Now 'Tin Can Tourist'

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—James Eads How, known as the "millionaire hobo," has given up riding the rods. Instead, he said on arriving here, he plans to become a "tin can tourist," and travel by automobile.

Brownsville Soldier Dies in Auto Mishap

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Feb. 13.—John Donald Slater, 18, a member of the Fourteenth Cavalry, United States Army, at Fort Myer, Va., son of Edward Slater, of Brownsville, was killed in an automobile accident, his father was advised. The body, accompanied by a military escort, will be sent here today for burial.

Goff Bill Would Pay PlaneCrash Damages

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—A bill to appropriate $16,778.57 to pay claims for property damage, deaths or personal injuries due to an accident at Langin Field, Moundsville, W. Va., on July 10, 1921, in which an Army bombing plane crashed into a crowd, was introduced in the Senate yesterday by Senator Goff, West Virginia.

ASH WEDNESDAY TODAY MARKS START OF LENT

Today is Ash Wednesday—the beginning of Lent—the period of 40 days before Easter, which marks the Passion of Christ.

Catholic, Protestant Episcopal and Lutheran churches throughout the Pittsburgh district will hold special Ash Wednesday services today, as well as special devotions and services at stated days during the weeks before Easter.

While other Protestant denominations adhere to a less strict observance of the 40-day fast and penitence period, they will, however, observe the Lenten season with special Sunday service at which sermons on the Passion of Christ will predominate.

SPECIAL MASSES

All Catholic churches will observe Ash Wednesday with special masses. Epiphany Church will observe the day with masses at 6:30, 7 and 7:30 a. m., while at 12:30, 3 and 7:45 p. m. ashes will be distributed.

Four special services will be held in Trinity Episcopal Church, Sixth street, today, at 8:15 a. m., morning prayer; 10:30 a. m., holy communion; 12:05 p. m., prayer and intercession; 12:30 p. m., noonday service, with sermon by Bishop Alexander Mann.

Simila services will be held at the First Evangelical Lutheran Church, Grant street. At the noonday service, beginning at 12:15 p. m., the Rev. Dr. A. J. Holl will preach. Holy communion will be celebrated at 8 p. m.

Noonday services at Trinity Protestant Epuiscopal Church will continue daily until Easter, and at the First Evangelical Lutheran Church every Wednesday.

PASSION PLAY PLANNED

As in previous years, Old St. Patrick's Church will stage a passion play again this year. It will be presented at the Gayety Theater March 10.

The period of 40 days of fasting was adopted in commemoration of the fasting of Christ, as well as Moses and Elijah. In the early church the primary idea of Lent was penitence, and fasting was incidental. In the medieval church the fasting became very strict, including abstention from all meat and from all food until eventide. Gradual relaxations were permitted, until now the fast of Lent is more nominal than real. Catholics now are required to abstain completely from meat Wednesdays and Fridays and to eat only once on other days, exceptions being made in certain instances.

Fire Destroys Plant With $100,000 Loss

AKRON, O., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—The three-story blast plant of the Columbia Silica Company, six miles north of Akron, was destroyed by fire last night with a loss estimated at $100,000.

The flames originated in a conveyor shaft and made such headway that firemen had considerable difficulty in preventing the fire from spreading to adjoining buildings.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Society Dons Drab Garb Of Lent

WHAT'LL we do, what'll we do on the eventless days of Lent, which opened today, many "first seasoners" of the social world have been wondering. Of course many of the girls who came out this year have left town for the remainder of the winter. And many of those who are still in town are preparing to go away.

These newest recruits to the social world find themselves, like their elders, playing bridge, lunching leisurely with friends, reading and shopping. And shopping with a luxurious lack of haste, for there is no important event to demand one's attention. With the shops so full just now of tropically brilliant gowns and scarves and costume accessories, many a society woman, who's planning to leave soon for sun-drenched lands, finds life full of diversion.

The end of the social season for the grown-ups does not depress that very, very young set at all—the set in which the girls will probably not make their bows until we find that time has marched on to the 1940s. Now that the members of the Junior League are not in demand constantly, they've been giving marionette shows, you know. Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock the league will again present "Bobby Jones: His Voyage," in the parish house of the Church of the Ascension.

Some very lucky children were allowed to watch their elders "rehearse" the marionettes at the home of Mrs. G. Harton Singer, Jr., of Morewood Heights, on Monday. So diverting was the scene that motion pictures were taken showing the children observing the marionettes perform and also of the members of the league making the marionettes. These pictures, I've learned, will be shown in Pittsburgh theaters in about 10 days.

"AND when are you going away?" is the commonest question heard nowadays.

Have you heard that Mrs. J. J. Kennedy, of Shady avenue, will leave today for Winter Park, Fla.? Mrs. Kennedy expects to be there for six weeks.

The Albert Currys, of Woodland road, have postponed their departure until Easter, when spring vacations will make it possible for their daughter, Dorothy, a student at Rosemary Hall, and their son, Albert Curry, Jr., to go with them. They are planning to visit their favorite resort, Pinehurst, at that time.

Mrs. George Greer Coolidge and her young daughter, Elizabeth, are spending the winter in California, I've been told.

None of the southern states is being slighted by Pittsburgh society folks. Augusta, Ga., has attracted Mrs. Wilson A. Campbell, of Sewickley, and her daughter, Elizabeth.

The society colony at Nassau, the Bahamas, organized a treasure hunt for the week end. And a Pittsburgh young man, who spends quite a bit of the time in New York with his parents, Coleman C. Perkins, and Marion Gengler, of New York, won first prize, did you know?

George L. McCook has gone down to Aiken, S. C. He arrived there Monday.

SOME members of our "400" will attend the annual Colonial ball in the Nautilus at Miami. Among them will be the William Larimer Mellons. Invitations have also been sent to several other local people, among them Mr. and Mrs. S. Jarvis Adams, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Ashe, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Hammond and Judge and Mrs. William E. Walsh.

THE marriage of Miss Clara Hake, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Hake, of New Brighton, and Theodore E. Dalbey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dalbey, of New Brighton, was solemnized Saturday at 4:30 o'clock in the First United Presbyterian Church, North Side, by the Rev. Dr. J. Alvin Orr. The bride wore beige crepe and carried yellow Pernet roses, while Miss Charlotte Deane, as maid of honor, appeared in brown transparent velvet and carried Briarcliffe roses. Paul Kennedy, of New Brighton, was best man. A dinner in the Rittenhouse followed the ceremony.

MRS. JANE M. ROBERTS will be guest of honor at the dinner and dance to be given Friday night in the East End O. E. S. Temple by Victor Chapter. Other honor guests will be the grand deputy, Mrs. Ruth Tyson Henry, and grand secretary, Mrs. Adeline W. Barnes, who is a member of the chapter. Mrs. Mary E. Ruckel is chairman for the evening.

Club Institute To Be Held Feb. 27

"LOOKING FORWARD IN COUNTY WORK," "Scholarships," "What is Good Publicity?" "Why Do Our Clubs Need Institutes?", "Education in the Club," "What Price Politeness," and "Why Federate?" are a few of the topics which will be brought up for discussion at the first club institute to be held by the southwestern district of the State Federation in the Congress of Clubs February 27. Mrs. J. G. Chalfant, district institute chairman, will preside. "The county work" talks will be given by representatives from Westmoreland, Washington, Beaver and Bedford County federations; Mrs. J. I. Hook, of Greene County, will talk on scholarships; Mrs. J. J. Thompson, of Fayette County, will discuss publicity; Mrs. B. H. Thompson, of Westmoreland County, the need of club institutes; Mrs. Ross Taggart, of Allegheny County, education, and "What Price Politeness" is an original sketch by Mrs. Chester F. Johnston, which Mrs. Nelle Moore Sprowls will give. After luncheon the guests will be presented by Mrs. Richard B. Perry, new junior chairman for this district; Mrs. Raph W. Johnston will report the Cause and Cure of War Conference; Mrs. Ambrose N. Diehl will speak concerning the General Federation's motion picture work, and Mrs. John M. Phillips will answer the question concerning federation.

How Women Can Be Attractive to Men

A HEALTHY body becomingly clothed and well-groomed was named by Mrs. William M. Woodfin as one of the requisites if a girl is to be attractive to men. Mrs. Woodfin, who is the wife of the pastor of the Third United Presbyterian Church, was addressing the Forum hour at the Central Young Women's Christian Association, a group of more than 100 women and girls, and had taken for her subject Thackeray's statement in "Vanity Fair" to the effect that any woman without a hump on her back could marry whom she chose.

To be interested in life, always to feel that there is a quest ahead, to hold the expectancy of something charming, to be a good listener and sometimes not to do the thing "he" expects you to do were other factors in the game of attractiveness named by the speaker.

In advising her hearers to be good listeners, Mrs. Woodfin said, "No one in this world is quite so egotistical as a man. Men love to talk to themselves, their business and affairs. Be a sympathetic listener and every once in a while ask a particularly dumb question. This gives him an opportunity to expand and begin all over again."

Mrs. Woodfin was introduced by Mrs. Samuel Black McCormick and Miss Janet Dalgleish presided. Assembly singing was led and solos sung by E. J. McLuckie, who selected his numbers with a thought to Valentine Day.

Character is Shown in the Habit of Saving

B.G.Follansbee

CHARACTER is shown in the habit of saving. It often proves a benefit to others as well as to one's self. The man or woman that saves has, through saving, the ability to help others who are worthy or unfortunate.

Thrift is the opposite of waste. The person who is thrifty has less of anxiety and more of comfort. Those that save are usually those most dependable in periods of stress.

Thrift tends towards wise judgment in investments where lack of thrift leads often to speculative borrowings which, followed by peril and worry, may shorten the life.

Like many other Pittsburgh men who have climbed the ladder of success Mr. B. G. Follansbee received his early training in the service of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Railroading in those days meant long hours and low pay, but to the young Mr. Follansbee it also meant opportunity and so after a few years we find him with sufficient accumulation of capital and experience to become a partner in the firm of James B. Scott and Co., importers of tin plate.

In 1894 Mr. Follansbee with Wm. U. Follansbee and three others organized Follansbee Brothers Company, which he now serves in an advisory capacity having retired as chairman of the Board a few months ago.

No habit pays better than the habit of regular saving, and in presenting this series of editorials by leading business and professional men of Pittsburgh, the Union Savings Bank believes with Mr. Follansbee that "character is shown in the habit of Thrift" and that "the person who is thrifty has less of anxiety and more of comfort."

*Gypsy's Airs ..... Tausig

The Art Society presented Josef Lhevinne, the eminent pianist, in Carnegie Music Hall. The audience was the largest of the season and it was well pleased.

The program was entirely romantic, but was played in very academic style. Lhevinne's playing never assails the ear. His irreproachable technique is always evident, he lacks no resources for interpreting any composer, but his masterful restraint prevents him frequently from attaining emotional heights, yet brings about such ideal tone as we are likely to compare to pure color or pure line in painting.

The sonority of Brahms was not lacking in three most delicate of his miniatures. A slower tempo than usual characterized the Schumann etudes, but detracted none from their beauty. All of his Chopin was sketchy, full of the most delicate sentiment, fragile as the poet who conceived them.

For bravura playing, both Debussy and Carl Tausig offered their brilliant imaginations, and Lhevinne could easily cope with those difficulties. He added a paraphrase of Schumann's "Freuhlingsnacht," a Liszt study, and the "Blue Danube Waltzes" as encores.

Pitt Debaters Lose To Maine University

ORONO, Me., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—The University of Maine debating team, by unanimous vote of judges, defeated a team from the University of Pittsburgh last night. The Maine trio expounded the negative of a resolution that the jury system should be abolished.

The debate, which was the first of the season for the Maine team, was witnessed by the largest audience ever attending such an event at the University. Charles J. Dunn associate justice of the Maine Supreme Court, presided. The judges were F. D. Fellows, W. L. Robinson and H. E. Bryant, all of Bangor.

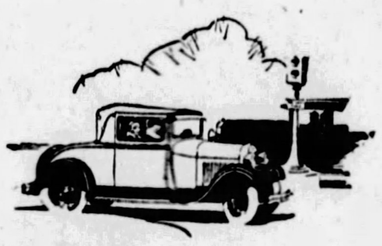
There are many reasons for the ease of steering the new Ford



THE new Ford is exceptionally easy to steer because of the well-proportioned weight of the car, the steel-spoke wheels, the co-ordinated design of springs and shock absorbers, the size and design of the steering wheel, and the simple mechanical construction of the steering gear.

The Ford steering gear is of the worm and sector type used on high-priced cars and is three-quarter irreversible.

In simple, non-technical language, this means that the car responds easily and quickly to the steering wheel, yet there is no danger of the wheel being jerked from the hands of the driver by ruts or bumps in the road. A light touch guides the car, yet you always have that necessary feel-of-the-road so essential to good driving.

Strength of materials and careful workmanship give unusual stability to the Ford steering gear and housing.

The steering worm, for instance, is splined to the steering worm shaft and is stronger, of course, than if a single key were used to hold the shaft and worm together. The steering worm sector is forged and machined in the same piece with its shaft.

The housing of the steering gear mechanism is made of three steel forgings, electrically welded together. This housing is then electrically welded to the steering column. Such a one-piece steel unit is naturally much sturdier than if several parts were used and bolted or riveted together.

Throughout, the steering mechanism of the new Ford is so simple in design and so carefully made that it requires practically no attention.

The only thing for you to do is to have the front steering spindles, spindle connecting rods, and drag link lubricated every 500 miles and the steering gear lubricated every 2000 miles. This is easy to do because of the high pressure grease gun lubricator fittings provided for these parts.

For this work, you will find it best to consult the Ford dealer. He has been specially trained and equipped to help you get the greatest possible use from your car over the longest period of time at the least trouble and expense.

Eight Youths Accused in Thefts, Holdups

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

THERE were no arrests and so the story didn't make the news columns, but on the night it happened a certain bartender thought he suddenly had been transplanted to the old Barbary Coast or into those uncivilized spaces in the great Northwest where men are men.

A group of six men walked into the bar and called for a drink. There was some reason for the bartender to suppose that they had had their quota for the evening. He politely lied he had nothing that would interest them. This threw the whole party into a concerted rage.

A glass was hurled at the mirror behind the bar. The bartender, evidently an old first baseman, stuck out his hand and made a perfect stop. Others in the group picked up stools and chairs and began aiming them. The bartender here changed into one of those jugglers who catches apples thrown from the galleries. He stopped three or four chairs before they got into the mirror. The bartender, a good sport, and one who believes in clean fun, thought, however, his new found playmates were going too far.

Through the hail of chairs he slowly worked his way to a counter usually devoted to things in the meat line. The artful fellow had certain designs on a cute looking meat-cleaver.

As he fought his way through, two comrades, waiters in the rear room, came out to ask for a hand in the pleasant little game. One of them got more than a hand—well at least he got a closed hand which formed a fist. "Look here, sir," said the indignant waiter to one of the group of six. "This will have to stop." In so far as the waiter was concerned the thing did stop to the accompaniment of a brilliant pyrotechnic display of roman candles, stars and small dancing balls of flame. The man whose right arm he had grabbed happened to be a southpaw—and need I say more?

FINALLY, the bartender reached his objective—the meat-cleaver—and thus armed he made ready to leap over the bar, determined to run pool on the belligerent guests. This must have been deemed a foul or dirty cricket by the six gentlemen, who beat a hasty retreat.

There are 14 sources for the story if you care to run them down. Six of the attacking party, three of the defending forces, and five innocent barstanders who with some discretion as hostilities broke out suddenly decided they would go away from there.

A taxi driver reports that a passenger, in his cups, asked him just where he was. The taxi driver replied: "You are now at Fifth and Smithfield." "I mean what city," said the passenger.

IN ACCEPTING an invitation to attend the John Gruber dinner tomorrow night John Jay Burke, veteran Pittsburgher, was moved to reminisce. "How many," he asks, "remember the time Frank Lenz left Pittsburgh for a trip around the world on one of the first low-wheeled bicycles? I went with him as far as Buffalo. He was killed some months later by bandits in Afghanistan. How many recall when Frank McCann, Harry Davis, Judge W. H. Thomson and others fought for the ninepin championship on the old Davis alleys? How many recall the races on the speedway in Highland Park—a speedway for electric automobiles? I recall I defeated my brother, James Francis Burke, in the mile test, but I also remember that Billy Murray, with an extra battery, beat me.

"I will be happy to lend my humble presence to honor my friend John Gruber."

If Mr. Burke wonders how his letter sees print he will be enlightened to learn that Sidewalks engaged one of the cleverest pickpockets in town to extract the letter from the pocket of the unsuspecting John Hernon.

POLICE FIRED AGAIN AT SHANNON

Castle Shannon Borough today is without a police force. It automatically became nonexistent last night when the borough council failed to register sufficient votes to overcome Burgess Thomas Delaney's veto of the police ordinance.

Some months ago the burgess notified the solons that he would not handle any more police cases. They were assigned to Justice of the Peace Ira H. Edmundson, of Mt. Lebanon.

OFFICERS SUSPENDED

Delaney thereupon suspended Special Officers Nathan Siskind and Joseph P. Susnak, $1 a month men. Councilman Robert Newell, of the police committee, reinstated them. When the matter was aired before council it was developed that Newell acted alone. Councilman Edward Graff then pushed through a motion eliminating the "fee" officers and authorizing the election of a new salaried man.

At the January meeting of council, Chief Elmer Zeller was re-elected. Upon consideration it was believed necessary to have additional protection, so "Fee" Officers Siskind and Susnak were also re-elected.

ORDINANCE VETOED

The ordinance making valid this election was vetoed by Burgess Delaney because of the "fee" officers, who he opposes. A vote on the veto failed to carry, five votes being necessary and only four being registered. The ordinance was immediately amended to exclude the "fee" officers, but this failed also on the negative votes of the four who voted to override the veto.

Despite his unemployment, Zeller is continuing to protect the school children of the borough from vehicular traffic, although he is without authority.

LOOT CHURCH CHARGED BY POLICE

Eight youths, who police allege have confessed to a series of purse snatchings, taxicab holdups, automobile thefts and robberies, were held by Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court today for investigation.

Police reported they wished to investigate the gang's possible connection with the robbery of the North End United Presbyterian Church, Perrysville avenue and Vinceton street.

The prisoners are Irwin Fay, 17, 4029 Perrysville avenue; Guy Ulrich, 18, of 3912 Perrysville avenue; Edward Dietrich, 19, of 17 Bascom street; Frank Morin, 19, of 4067 Franklin road; John Isler, 18, of 3608 Perrysville avenue; Edward Nosidlak, 17, of 401 Melene street; Frank Cotton, Negro, 19, of 1 Dornestic street, and Nick Zabsick, 17, of 3925 Menlo street.

Fay was turned over to police by Fireman Frank Hays of No. 46 Engine Company, who captured him after a chase in Sherman avenue, at Sampson street. Fay and two companions are said to have snatched the purse of Mrs. Bessie Ward, of 229 East Jefferson street, and ran. One of the other youths dropped the purse and discarded a revolver when the fireman neared.

STRAY DOGS BITE FOUR

A dog, supposed to be from Mt. Washington, ran wild in Brookline yesterday, attacked two children, and was shot and killed by an unidentified person.

Grace Schuller, 6, 1261 Brookline boulevard, Overbrook, while walking along Castlegate avenue and Brookline boulevard, at 11 a. m., was bitten on the left knee by the dog. She was attended to by her family physician, and now is resting in her home. William Thomas, 10, 1208 Kelton avenue, Brookline, was bitten on the knees of both his legs, by the same dog, at the same corner four hours later, according to the report of the Mt. Washington police. His wound was also cauterized by his family physician.

The dog was shot and killed by a resident of Brookline, and removed to No. 57 Engine Company, Brookline boulevard, and the head will be sent to the West Penn Hospital for examination for rabies.

A license plate attached to the dog's collar was traced to the ownership of Felix Petrone, 7 Wyoming street, Mt. Washington, police say.

Robert Schoenwice, 7, 1432 McFarland road, Dormont, was ordered to the West Penn Hospital for Pasteur treatment after it was learned from that institution that the dog which bit him on the right knee had a positive case of rabies, according to Chief of Police Albert Ruehling. The boy was walking at Dormont Junction, February 5, when he was bitten.

Gustave Demenchoh, 14, 720 Windom street, was bitten on the right hip by a dog owned by Mike Sokol, 810 Windom street, yesterday. The boy's wound was cauterized by the family physician. The owner of the dog was notified by the South Side police to keep the animal tied up for 15 days.

Ben Avon School Board Pays Bills

The Ben Avon school board at its monthly meeting authorized payment of current bills and transacted routine business. It was said that the millage for 1929 will be fixed at the April meeting.

PROBE FROZEN FIRE PLUGS

As a result of frozen fire plugs and low water pressure that were found by Sewickley firemen at a recent fire, borough council last night ordered the water commissioner to submit a report on the condition of all water lines in the borough. The order was issued after Fire Chief S. Y. McFarland reported on the fire that destroyed the Edgeworth Club several weeks ago. The fire chief reported that upon arriving at the scene of the fire, he discovered fire plugs frozen and such low pressure on those that did function, that it was barely sufficient to enable firemen to use one line of hose.

Rankin Schools Mark Lincoln's Birthday

Rankin school children, under the direction of Miss Regan, celebrated Lincoln's birthday with a special program yesterday in the Hawkins School auditorium. Elsie Ternik, Mary Bando, Florence D'Abbruzzi, Tony Chine, Francis Morocco and Alice Paris took part in the program.

Mt. Lebanon Issues 60 Building Permits

George J. Irwin, Mt. Lebanon Township building inspector, reported to the township commissioners that from the first of January to February 9, he had issued 60 building permits at an estimated cost of $999,150. For the same period in 1928, 50 permits were issued, at a cost of $492,840, a difference of $506,310.

GIRL IS RADIO EXPERT

Except in laying rails and pudding in the mills—man has few jobs left to himself.

For Mary Fonde, of 5238 Second avenue, has mastered the radio. And she's only one of a number of young women who are grasping at the newest profession. She's been studying and working at it for six years, after she took a secretarial course and planned to be a stenographer.

Being interested in mechanics while she was going to school, she tinkered about her father's radio set, got herself a job in the radio department of a store and then went to night school—the only girl in the radio school.

Today, she has no difficulty in winding a coil or patching a connection and however intricate the radio problem, she's able to do it. She's as handy with a radio eliminator as she is with her powder puff.

And she's not selfish about it. At her home she's teaching Muriel Johnston, Virginia Anderson and Estelle Mazur, close friends, and "just for the fun of it."

Will Be Host to Woman's Welsh Club

WIT SUPPLANTS BRAWN, SUTHERLAND TELLS CLUB

"Beef and brawn is what counted years ago, but wit and speed is what counts now," according to Dr. John B. Sutherland, University of Pittsburgh football coach, who was the principal speaker at the regular weekly luncheon meeting held by the Kiwanis Club of the South Hills in the United Lutheran Church, Academy avenue, Mt. Lebanon, yesterday.

Dr. Sutherland spoke of his experience as a professional football player years ago. Leo Harris, of Harrisburg was the other speaker.

The dinner guests were: Dr. G. C. McMasters, of the Dormont Rotary Club; L. T. Stevenson, T. W. Stevenson, W. B. Williams, J. S. Sheeley, Howard Haines and Oscar Larson, all of Mt. Leba...

Five dollars merchandis... be bought in a Mt. Lebanon drug store, was the weekly door prize, which was donated by Charles C. Baldwin, chief of police, Mt. Lebanon Township. Rhodes McCaskey, treasurer of the club, was the lucky one.

Arrangements were made for a trip to Alliance, O., when 20 or more members will be entertained by the Alliance Kiwanis Club, in that city, tomorrow. The bus will leave Washington road and the street car junction, Mt. Lebanon, at 7 o'clock. They will return in the evening. Ben Williams, president, presided.

Police Shakeup Fails in Glassport

An expected police shakeup failed to materialize at the meeting of Glassport Council. There was little action other than the election of Samuel D. Ferguson to fill a vacancy in Council. He succeeds Edward Malley, who died January 6. The election brings an end to a six-month deadlock that has featured the Council meetings.

E. E. School Girl Is Bitten by Dog

Bitten on the left leg by a dog that attacked her near her home, Helen Sullivan, 15, of 7334 Mount Vernon street, is confined to her home today. The child was bitten by the dog yesterday afternoon while returning home from school. She was treated at Pittsburgh Hospital.

TRADERS NAME VICKERMAN

F... ...semblyman John W. Vickern... re-elected president of the Bell... Board of Trade at the annual election of officers last night. Other officers chosen follow: First vice president, C. Edward Keck; second vice president, S. B. Burkhart; third vice president, Rev. George B. Tejan; secretary, Benjamin Moore; treasurer, Ralph Witherspoon; directors, Daniel Evans, Augustus Frishkorn and T. A. McNary.

The board referred to the transportation committee, Park H. Martin, chairman, a request from the Allied Boards of Trade to protest the 25-cent bus fare to be charged by the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company with installation of a new line to Bellevue soon after March 4. Similar action was taken on a protest from residents along the Bellevue-West View car line for better trolley service.

A resolution was adopted calling upon the State Legislature to increase the mothers' assistance appropriation for the next two years by $3,500,000. The waiting list throughout the state is placed at 1,900 widows and 6,000 children, the resolution cited.

Resolutions of respect were passed on the recent death of B. F. Johnson and J. L. Cylman, members of the board.

It was voted to hold the annual banquet in March, the date to be announced later.

Will Rogers Says

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.

The most human thing I read in the papers this month: The Reform School in New Jersey gave a homecoming and alumni meeting where over 200 men who had been there as boys, lots of them now prominent, came back and told what they were doing.

Some brought their wives and families with 'em. One told that he served five years there for larceny, and was now a big contractor installing burglar alarms in banks, and was bonded for $150,000.

It didn't give their names, but it ought to, for I believe it would endear everyone of their standing to their home communities. It would at least be a change from that old success formula, "I started as a newsboy." Bravo, New Jersey.

Yours, WILL.

Nurse Gains 7 Lbs. in 2 Weeks

New YEAST and IRON builds weight quickly. Your own druggist guarantees results—or pay nothing

©I.Y. Co.

"I am a nurse at the hospital and I am writing you to let you know I am glad to recommend your tonic IRONIZED YEAST. It gave me a good appetite. I got strong and gained 7 pounds in 2 weeks. I could write all day about how much good IRONIZED YEAST did me. You would be surprised at the strength I gained in 3 or 4 days. I will send you some of my friends' names so you can write them about it." Martha Burns

What Makes Ironized Yeast Work Such Wonders?

People are amazed at the wonderful benefits of IRONIZED YEAST. Many were doubtful before they started. But after taking it regularly for only 3 or 4 weeks they gained 5 to 15 pounds. Ugly hollows fill out. Skinny limbs become gracefully rounded. Blemished skin gets clear and beautiful.

Only when Yeast is Ironized is it more effective—for Iron is needed to bring out the weight-building and strengthening values of Yeast. Pleasant tablets. Never cause gas or bloating. Safe for all.

Try It on "Money-Back" Offer

Go to any druggist today and get a full size treatment of IRONIZED YEAST. If after this generous trial you are not delighted, your money back instantly.

CAUTION! While the amazing health-building value of IRONIZED YEAST has been clearly and positively demonstrated in cases of lack of energy, indigestion, constipation, skin eruptions, poor complexion and a generally weakened condition, IRONIZED YEAST should not be used by anyone who OBJECTS to gaining weight.

Amazing Numbers of Pennsylvanians Write Letters Like These:

What IRONIZED YEAST has done for all these folks it should certainly do for you. Take advantage of our generous trial offer. If not delighted, get your money back.

Gained 11 Lbs. and More Pep

"Was thin and rundown, tried IRONIZED YEAST and gained 11 lbs. Now have more pep and vitality than I have had for years."—Mrs. J. L. Reed, Mt. Union, Pa.

Rundown, Thin, Gains 7 Lbs.

"Was so rundown and thin didn't think anything would put flesh on me. But took IRONIZED YEAST and have gained 7 lbs. Sleep better, eat better and am not so nervous."—Mrs. J. L. Gazer, Cold Springs, Pa.

Quick relief for COLDS since 1889

Why so distant?

Why is this handsome young man saying "Goodbye" so distantly to his sweetheart's finger-tips?

Because she has a very bad cold, and he is sensible. Had she been equally sensible, she would have taken GROVE'S BROMO QUININE promptly at the first warning signal. Many millions of people all over the world have proved its power. A sneeze, a headache, a stopped-up feeling . . . and they immediately take care of themselves with this famous remedy.

Thus they frequently side-step the cold entirely. Or throw it off quickly. Besides fortifying the system against grip and influenza. When you need such results, make sure of getting the genuine by emphasizing GROVE'S, in asking for GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. Price 30c.

10. The National Flag Champions will be given a free trip around the world, accompanied by women of national prominence, a complete traveling wardrobe, including trunks and hand luggage, and $200 in spending money.

11. Complete rules and regulations governing the Flag Contest will be sent to the heads of schools and organizations upon receipt of an application to conduct a contest.

What Will you do When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use, in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless, Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

The Sun-Telegraph Fifteen Cent Pattern

A DAINTY FROCK FOR A TINY TOT.

Zephyr in a pretty design of red and white with collar, trimming and sleevebands of white organdy is here pictured. This is also a good style for voile or silk or cotton crepe. The sleeve extends over the shoulder above gathered fulness. A scalloped trimming piece is added to the front at the closing which, in coat style, is very practical and convenient. Soft gathers confine the elbow, and a low round collar completes the neck edge.

This pattern of this delightful model is cut in three sizes: 1, 2 and 3 years. To make a 3-year size will require 2 yards of material 36 inches wide or wider. To face collar trimming and sleevebands with contrasting material will require 1-3 of a yard.

COUPON.

This pattern will be sent on receipt of 15 cents (silver or 2c and 1c stamps). Make number, name, address, etc., plain. Send to Pattern Department, The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

WHO'S GUILTY??? CAN YOU SOLVE THIS DETECTIVE STORY?

The Alibis

By Evelyn Johnson and Gretta Palmer

KITTY M'CANN did not meet with the entire approval of the officers of the Old Colony Trust Company of Boston, although her percentage of wrong numbers on calls was low for one of her maligned profession. She was an undeniably decorative bit of office furniture, whose red hair and pert little profile drew the eyes of all callers to the glass partition that cut off her switchboard from the reception room. But Kitty was young; Kitty chewed gum; and Kitty's scheme of facial esthetics was on a scandalously ambitious scale.

If the sedate officers of the Old Colony felt some twinges of disapproval, these were completely overshowed by the hearty dislike Kitty had inspired in Edward Van Pelt, whose long distance contempt for shanty Irish was intense. Mr. Van Pelt was a member of an old New York family, whose fortune had amazingly kept pace with the time, and who was now able to maintain his Gramercy Park home in a state befitting that mansion, while his social contemporaries camped out miserably in three rooms and a dumbwaiter.

Edward Van Pelt had never seen Kitty and the chances of his doing so had always been extremely remote, but his nephew's glowing accounts of her charms and her qualifications to share the Van Pelt name had failed to assuage his dislike of her race. The intensity of his feeling was increased by the fact that Andrew was his logical heir and had hitherto been a favorite nephew. Andrew's departure to practice law in Boston had appeared a safe enough proceeding, socially. Even the most prescient uncle could not have anticipated his falling in love with the telephone operator of his wealthiest client and wanting, which was worse, to marry her. Mr. Van Pelt had expressed himself in no uncertain terms to the impulsive young apostate, so that he was surprised one morning when his secretary announced that Mr. Andrew Van Pelt was calling him long distance from Boston. His hopes that Andrew had at last seen the light of day and recognized the comparative values of an ineligible wife and $5,000,000 were quickly dashed. Andrew's voice came clearly over the wire with that chirp of insolent cheerfulness his uncle could not forgive in an errant Van Pelt.

"I'M just finishing up that brief for Cousin Caroline's law suit, you know, and I wondered if you could give me the exact terms of her title to the New York property," was the disappointing remark that greeted Edward Van Pelt's ears.

No sign of surrender in the young cub yet. What was this generation coming to, with its disregard for family, society, and even, incredibly, money!

"Why, yes," said Edward with the suavity of a voice from which all signs of vulgar emotion had been long removed. "Only it's in the safe at home, you know, with all the family papers. Could you call me back—or, no, I'll be home at four or a little after and I'll ring you at your home and tell you then. Will that be time enough?"

"Splendid. When are you coming up to Boston to meet your future niece?"

"Good-by!" stormed Edward, and for once he put down the receiver with a noticeable bang. His composure, he felt, had been irreparably shattered, and he left his office somewhat earlier than usual, with some ideas of a game of backgammon before going home with the one wholly eligible man in the exclusive club to which he belonged.

LATE the same night the police were startled by a telephone call which took them to the decorous environs of Gramercy Park, and to the respected house where Edward Van Pelt lived alone with a single man servant during the summer months, when it was his custom to dine out; a style of life which he had always referred to, with complete seriousness, as "camping." They found the shocked butler bending over the body of his master, who had been killed with a blunt instrument. There were no signs of a forced entry to the house and the room in which the body was found was in complete order except for a single overturned chair, which might be a sign of struggle. No finger marks or other clues were found about the premises.

The butler, when questioned, said that he had had Thursday afternoon off, in accordance with the custom that had been maintained for the 15 years of his service. He had spent the afternoon and evening at a family birthday party in Yonkers, at which many persons of a respectable type had been present, including one police sergeant and several others favorably known to the police. The alibi, when investigated, seemed perfectly satisfactory and as no motive for the murder appeared, his part in the affair was dropped after his testimony that he had returned to find the house dark at 1 o'clock and had called the police immediately after his lamentable discovery.

SINCE Van Pelt had been exclusive even in his choice of enemies, there seemed little chance of finding the murderer among them. The idea of a professional criminal was scouted by the fact that nothing of value was missing from the house and that several bills of a large denomination were found on the person of the dead man. The police now directed their attention to the contents of the old man's will, and were gratified to find that the beneficiary was already on the premises and had always had a key to the house.

Andrew Van Pelt had been informed of his uncle's death only a few minutes after the police arrived, by the butler, who was faithful even in the amenities of death. He had hurriedly dressed and caught the first train for New York, where he took efficient charge of things and showed himself eager to help the police in the search for the murderer. He was, of course, asked to furnish an alibi when it was found that he would profit by the entire estate of his uncle.

HIS movements on that day, as told to the police, seemed to rule out definitely any connection he might have had with the crime. He said he had had breakfast at his club, according to his usual custom, and he was able to furnish a breakfast check signed by him and the evidence of two waiters as proof of this fact. He had called his uncle from long distance and arranged that the information he wished should be telephoned to him around four. He had then gone home to work on the brief of his Cousin Caroline's case and to make several business calls over the telephone. Four business acquaintances verified this part of the story, as they had received local calls from him at various times during the afternoon. One client of unquestioned respectability in New York had received a long distance call from him from Boston at about four o'clock.

After waiting vainly for his uncle's call, said Andrew, he had gone out at 7, eaten dinner in a busy cafeteria in midtown and gone to the theater. He had then gone to his club for supper and was able to produce witnesses to certify this fact. Although no one at the theater remembered him particularly, he was able to give an accurate account of the play. Under cross-examination he showed no signs of weakening in his story and as it was impossible for him to get from Boston to New York and back within the limits set by the testimony of reliable witnesses as to his presence in town, he was reluctantly freed by the police.

Who murdered Mr. Van Pelt, and how did he fix his alibi?

Cash Awards for Best Mystery Story Solutions

EVERY day the Sun-Telegraph will print a mystery story on this page. The correct solution, written by the authors, will appear the day following the publication of each story except the one printed on SATURDAY.

Each SATURDAY there will be printed an original, or PRIZE STORY, by the same authors, the solution of which is in a sealed envelope. Prizes will be paid only on stories appearing on that day. Everybody is invited to send in their solutions of the SATURDAY PRIZE STORY. For the best three solutions in point of accuracy, brevity, clarity and completeness, the following cash prizes will be awarded:

FIRST PRIZE.....$10.

Three prizes of $5 each for the next three.

Contestants for the PRIZE STORY AWARD will have from Saturday morning until the following THURSDAY night at 6 o'clock, to send in their solutions. Letters postmarked after that time cannot be accepted, as judges must be able to render their decision on the prize winners in time to make the following Saturday's editions, when the correct solution of the PRIZE STORY, along with the names of the winners, will be printed with another PRIZE STORY for you folks to tackle.

Address your solution to the Mystery Editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

NANCY DEANE By Roy L. Foley

Westcott Asks Nancy to Marry Him, But She Doesn't Answer

CHAPTER XXXIII.

OH, the comfort of a life like this!

How nice it was to relax, to do just what she wanted to do, when she wanted to do it, without having to explain to anybody. Nancy went into the tiny bathroom, clean and gleaming and when the clear, emerald water nearly filled the tub, she jumped in and started to sing—

"My blue heaven . . .
Just Molly and me—and baby makes three—
My blue heaven."

"Jimminy Gee, instead of singing, I'd better be thinking about those shorthand rules," she said a little later and started reviewing the difficult "R" rules always so troublesome to those trying to master shorthand. But try as she would, her mind just would not stay put, and before she knew it she was singing again—"My blue heaven."

Well, she certainly was in a kind of blue heaven. Not a Monday blue, but a delicate, cool, sky blue, a clear, clean, refreshing blue.

She set about getting breakfast, like a little girl with a new doll house, flinging open the doors that so skillfully concealed the tiny sink, with its compact refrigerator underneath, the white emerald box that opened up to reveal a two-burner gas stove. She felt, for all the world like a child again, playing house, making little make-believe cakes and sitting down to a make-believe table.

Coffee, steaming and golden brown; cinnamon rolls, heated. Half a grapefruit. This was her breakfast. The grapefruit, prepared the night before and put into the marvelous ice chest that never needed ice, was a sugar crusted bowl of juice.

"Gee," she said again. "Jimminy Gee, how foolish girls are to go on living in a dingy old rooming house when with a little managing and sacrifice they can live like this. Why, it's worth giving up all sorts of things for. I'd rather have fewer clothes, and less to eat, actually, live in a place like this.

The telephone rang. Its sharp jangle so broke her day dreaming that she let her spoon clatter to the floor. It probably was Ginger calling. Somehow a ring like that suggested Ginger, it was so quick and metallic. Nancy took down the receiver, all ready to say, "Hello, Ginger," when the voice at the other end of the wire surprised her.

"'Lo there," said Howard Wescott. "I didn't get you out of bed, did I?"

Then, without waiting to hear her answer, he said he thought it was about time she was up if she were going to dinner and for a drive with him that afternoon.

"We can go to Wolff's, if you like, or to the Chalet, any place at all," he said. "I'll be over about noon."

That's how he was: There was no "will you," or "shall we;" he took things into his own hands, assuming that she would be there when he called, not asking her if she had any other plans.

Why, Vic Flemming, with all his gusto and bold ways, never took her so for granted. Still, the way Wescott did things was so different from the way Vic did them that his requests seemed more like polite directions than commands. His possessiveness sometimes took Nancy's breath away, but secretly, in the depths of her soul, she felt a thrill at being so completely swept along by a will stronger than her own.

So he found herself consenting to all his suggestions. Yes, she would be ready at noon, and she would love to go for a drive before stopping for a bite to eat. Her voice almost had a little tremor in it, something she had never noticed before.

"All right, Howard," she said, "Bye."

She was calling him Howard all the time now, except in the office. She stood absent mindedly holding the receiver, looking out the window, down on the roofs, thinking about her voice. Suddenly, on the telephone there, it had taken on a note she was afraid of.

"Silly goose," she said. "Thinking about my own voice. It's just that I didn't expect it would be Howard; thought it was going to be Ginger."

She told herself that, but she only half believed it. She tried to face the real truth—that she was beginning to feel powerless before Wescott, that he was charming her, body and soul, and that she was happy to be in his company. For one who had actually fought the world for her bread and butter, who had known money worries long before she should have been conscious of them, who had had to help Maggie O'Day scrimp and plan, this complete domination by a man with unlimited energy, unlimited money, unlimited resources, was like a sedative to tired nerves.

Then she thought of John Blair. Why, oh why, did she always feel so guilty when she thought of him? He had asked her to marry him, and she had pleaded for six months, a year, before giving an answer.

"John Blair—darn John Blair!" she said to herself.

Alone in her cozy little room, with their cretonnes and streaming sunlight, her golden head was completely turned. All Ginger's warnings, all the angry ravings of Victor Flemming had fallen on deaf ears. She knew she was charmed with Howard Wescott and that she was beginning to be powerless against him.

She might fight, she told herself. Always fight against this thing that was conquering her. She must fight against his kisses. She must pound her fists against his chest and struggle away from him. But oh, it was sweet not to escape entirely—dreams, crazy, wicked, delicious, dreams.

She came back to earth with a bang. It was the bang of the receiver which dropped from her hands.

"Nancy O'Day, what are you thinking of, acting like a love-sick school girl," she said aloud. "Now, let me see, what were those "R" rules?"

She tried to concentrate on the rules and this time, by sheer force of will she made herself recite them through every one. She was happy she had mastered them at last, because the girls in the more advanced classes had told her that once she got them into her head the rest would be easy.

Her imagination started running away with her again, but in a different direction now.

She saw herself sitting at Wescott's desk, taking his dictation, faster, faster, faster. Her fingers were flying more speedily than Harriet's ever had. Wescott would notice it. They would have a little game. He would dictate faster and faster to test her and find he could not beat her.

Back in Nancy's head, that's how she wanted to be with him. She longed to keep up with him; not with his dictation, but with the man himself. She wanted him to admire her. She wanted to be a little ahead of him even, to make him breathless with the pursuit.

The pursuit for what? Anything, anything, just so his black eyes would follow her admiringly; so that his hands would reach out for her and she would always be just beyond his reach.

Her cheeks were burning with the thrills into which her imagination was leading her. She began talking to herself again. Since she had been living alone like this she had developed a habit of speaking out loud, holding all sorts of one-sided conversations.

"Better hurry up and get dressed or Howard will be here," she said.

She started picking things up, straightening up the sitting room, giving a pat to a pillow here and a touch to a curtain. She skipped into the bedroom to put on her dress. She threw open the closet door. The very scantiness of her wardrobe made her smile. Her few dresses, her two pair of shoes, her shabby coat that had already seen two seasons, seemed so pitifully insignificant in that closet with its rows of hooks and many hangers.

Selecting a dress from that wardrobe should not have taken as long as it did. There was so little variety. She had to choose between a tan jersey and a plain black satin. She decided on the satin. She hadn't an ounce of conceit, but she knew the black satin, plain as it was, was the more becoming, that it contrasted colorfully with her yellow hair.

The buzzer buzzed. She jumped again. Would she ever get used to these buzzers and bells! The very smallness of the apartment made them so loud and somehow they sounded more frightening when one was alone. She knew it was Wescott. She pressed the button that opened the door below. Even this operation was still novel to Nancy. She was still enough of a child to find it fun to press the button, then to wait for the elevator door to slam in the hall, to hear another buzzer at the apartment door.

"Hello there, little girl. All ready to go bye-bye?"

Howard Wescott came in, looking very big in his heavy ulster. He seemed to bring a gust of fresh, crisp air with him, and when he seized Nancy and pulled her to him, she could feel the coldness of his coat against her face.

He looked around the room. "Snug as a bug in a rug up here, aren't you? Lonesome?"

Nancy pulled away and in a jiffy was back with her hat and coat on.

"Better bundle up warmer than that," he said. "I've got the top down and it's pretty windy. Sunny though."

Bundle up warmer, indeed. The way he said it one would think all she had to do was to go to her closet and make a selection from half a dozen coats.

"Oh, this is plenty warm," she said, and she knew she was lying. "Come on, I'm dying to get out into the sunshine."

"Plenty warm, nothing," he answered. "I'm not going to let you go riding in this sharp wind in that coat. Go get a heavier one."

"Howard Wescott, stop bothering about my coat! If you must know it, it's all I've got. This IS my coat, I wore it all last winter in a colder climate than this. I guess I won't freeze today."

"You mean it's the only coat you have? Well, we'll have to see about that. How would you like a raccoon coat for riding?"

Nancy's eyes dropped before his sharp look. She had heard of girls accepting coats from men. In speaking of some of the girls in Washington, who Nancy knew were in only moderate circumstances, who had fur coats, Maggie O'Day had so often said—"yes, and where do they be gettin' them? It's not from workin' I'll warrant."

What would she say if Nancy should come home with a raccoon coat?

"Come on, forget about the fur coat, you've a lot of blankets in the car, haven't you," she said.

Wescott dropped the matter and in another 10 minutes they were far out on the Blue Mound road, speeding over a countryside flaming with the reds and golds that follow the first frosts.

"Where shall we eat?" Howard Wescott had asked the same question, but Nancy shook her head.

"We'll eat at the Majestic Hotel," he said, and straightway pressed a little harder on the accelerator.

All afternoon they rode, in and around the hills and valleys. They stopped for a moment at some of the beautiful estates at Sewickley. Though "private" signs were posted at many of the entrances, Wescott swung his big car down the lanes of flaming trees as though no mere sign could keep him out.

Nancy did not know that these estates had been his playgrounds when he was a boy, that the Wescotts themselves owned acres and acres of property, that the neighbors were people of his own acquaintance, his own set.

He stopped his car in one particularly beautiful spot. The gorgeousness of the scene made Nancy clap her hands. Woods of crimson oak trees and deep foliage.

Howard Wescott pointed to the gables of a red tiled house. "See that place? That's dad's summer home. Like to drive over? We can start some fires in the fireplaces. There are plenty of logs. We'll be warm and comfy in a minute." He didn't wait for an answer.

"The Rendezvous" was the name of the place. It was of Spanish design, the walls a cream plaster. It was hidden so deeply in the woods, so far from the main highway that no one would have suspected there could be such a little corner of heaven tucked away in the woods.

When Wescott drove his car straight across the lawn and the flagstones that led to the heavy oak door, she was holding her breath with the beauty of the scene.

"Well, aren't you going to get out?" He held his hand to help her from the car, and when she made no move—she had hardly heard his question—he flung aside the blankets in which she was wrapped and lifted her out bodily. He carried her straight to the heavy oak doorway, and then while he held her with one arm, laughing and trying to shield himself from the poundings of her fists, he put his hand into his pocket and pulled out a big, old fashioned key. It was just the kind of key that ought to fit a weather stained oak door like this. Just the kind of a key that would unlock a house like this.

The door swung open and Wescott gave her a gentle push. The afternoon was graying and she had to close her eyes, and keep them closed for a while, before she could distinguish objects in the big, oblong room. She could make out a huge fireplace, and then she saw the gleam of copper kettles set upon the shelf above it.

Howard lit a match, in its flickering light both could see that the lodge had been left ready for occupancy. Dry leaves and shavings that peeked out from beneath the logs in the fireplace, and in no time there was a blazing, crackling fire. The room was flooded with the yellow light of the flames that sent shadows dancing across th walls and ceiling.

"Cosy, isn't it," Howard remarked, "we ought to be able to spend a nice comfy evening here."

He came over to Nancy, spread open his great coats and enveloped her in it. She made no resistance.

"——the little Church Around the Corner. You've heard of that, haven't you? How'd you like to be married in the Little Church Around the Corner?"

In the firelight there, the two of them sitting on the brown leather davenport, with its heaps of soft cushions, Nancy O'Day couldn't believe the words she was hearing.

Howard Wescott, general manager of the Wear-Ever Knitting Mills, was talking about getting married.

And she had come to work in his factory such a short time ago.

"We could go on a trip then," he was saying, "and after that—"

Nancy was looking into his dark eyes, but she wasn't hearing the words he was saying—not clearly.

Other voices kept crowding his words back—back—

"The big bum!" Ginger's voice was saying.

"I want you," John Blair's voice was saying. "I want to love you and to help you—"

Nancy closed her ears to the voices. She let Howard Wescott crush her to him.

She wondered if he really loved her? Her heart was beating wildly. Her eyes were raised now and she saw the portrait of Wescott's mother looking down at her from over the mantel.

Somehow, she couldn't tell why, but it gave her an uneasy feeling; she struggled free.

"What's the matter?" asked Wescott perplexed.

"Oh nothing," she sighed, she pointed to the portrait, "your mother—looking at us—"

"Darn," said Wescott.

He was almost silent on the ride back.

DRINK WATER IF KIDNEYS BOTHER

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids; to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

Meditations of a Wife

BY HELEN ROWLAND

"Showers" For Bridegrooms!

A PROSPECTIVE bridegroom of my acquaintance is beginning to feel peeved!

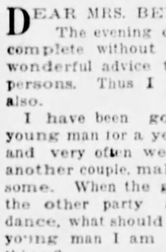
He has stood around in a daze for six or eight weeks watching the "showers" fall upon his fiancee. Showers of everything, from real lace and embroidered linen to diamond buckles and silver spoons! And he wants to know where HE comes in—and why there are no showers for trembling bridegrooms as well as for blushing brides.

* * *

Well, why not showers for bridegrooms? Why should a perfectly good young man go into marriage practically stripped of all his ready cash, while a girl receives all the honors and presents and perquisities?



HELEN ROWLAND

After all, the girl is getting everything—a permanent meal-ticket, a brand new home, a couple of good diamond rings, and a trousseau. Whereas, from where he stands, it looks as though the man is practically signing away most of his spending money and pledging himself to wear his old clothes for the rest of his natural life.

No wonder so many men get all lit up on the eve of their own weddings and have to be braced up and carried to the church! They want to forget it!

There are a hundred things that a bridegroom needs, and which would fill the first turbulent years of married life with sweetness and light for him.

For instance, any man would be delighted to receive a "tobacco shower." No man would inch at being showered with imported cigars, Turkish cigarets, humidors, cigar lighters, tobacco pouches and tins of his favorite mixture. These would afford him at least a few months' respite before he got down to a corn-cob pipe, in order to make the payments on the new car.

* * *

Or how about a golf shower? With brassies and mashies and niblicks and golf balls and wild checkered stockings, to carry him along and buoy him up while the sledding was hard and bill collectors importunate?

Or a haberdashery shower? Just to provide him with enough aurora borealis neckties and fancy sports shirts to tide him over the lean days, while he is paying for the pink kitchen range or the blue bassinet.

Or if he is a scofflaw, his sympathetic bachelor friends might come across with a "cocktail shower"—flasks and bottles of joy water and enough bonded stuff to make him forget the first monthly bills.

Thus far, the wedding has been a time of glory and glamor and triumph for the bride—and nothing but a horrible torment for the bridegroom.

* * *

If showers for bridegrooms would make it seem more like a dream and less like a nightmare, perhaps there might be more weddings!

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Foursome

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

The evening does not seem complete without reading your wonderful advice to so many persons. Thus I come to you also.

I have been going with a young man for a year and a half and very often we go out with another couple, making it a foursome. When the gentleman of the other party asks me to dance, what should be said to the young man I am with, if anything? M. E. B.

THANK YOU—and welcome.

With a foursome of this kind it would not be necessary for the other gentleman to ask the permission of your escort to dance with you.

Sick Room Visits

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Please tell me what is proper for a young lady to do for her finance who is in a sanitarium, recovering from a breakdown? Are gifts proper? If so, what kind of gifts would be suitable?

THE young lady should go to see him as often as it is advisable—and no oftener. For this permission and the number of her visits and their time, she would ask the doctor, and she should punctiliously abide by his decrees. Books are good, and so, especially I think are magazines. Fruits or "sweets" depend on what the doctor says. A dressing gown, too, may be given by a fiancee, of course.

Very Forced

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am to be married soon. I have been employed in this office for two years. I wonder if it would be good form for me to present cigars to the men of the office and candy to the girls, as is the custom of the men in the office when they marry. Please help me in this problem.

BRIDE-TO-BE.

I THINK that this would not be appropriate for you to do, and I advise you not to do it. It would, I think, look very forced.

The Second Wedding

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am about to be married for the second time. Would it be improper to wear a veil and have a church wedding? I was married in court the first time and am now divorced. I am 21 years of age and would like very much to be dressed in white. R. E. L.

I WISH that I could tell you that it would be correct for you to wear white at your second marriage, for I read between—and in—the lines of your letter how very much you want to. But it isn't in good taste and it isn't good form, and you will be very much criticized if you do this. Only the bride for the first time wears white with the bridal veil and the traditional orange blossoms.

IN GRANDMOTHER'S day sentimentality ran riot! Haven't you ever gone through the old trunk in the attic and found letters tied with faded ribbons, and bunches of crumbly flowers and yellowed bits of lace and hankies? Of course you have, that is if you're fortunate enough to have an attic. And don't you remember Grandfather showing you a tiny bit of lace and linen and telling you how shyly Grandmother dropped it on her way from church, and how he has treasured it all these years!

Ah me! Not like that today! Granddaughter's bag comes unfastened, the young man hands her the hankie, and she's startled, but none the less thrilled. Only, she takes the hankie back, and young man bows—and sometimes walks off. Sometimes, though, he doesn't. A smile, a bow, a "thank you" and then—well, then the chat. "Walking my way? May I go along?" And there starts another romance. Times may have changed, but Romance never, as long as Love reigns supreme.

Lillian's Scorching Letter Meets With Katherine's Approval

AS LILLIAN went to her desk to draft the note to Samuel Brixton, Katherine and I exchanged glances of pitying comprehension of our friend's problem, and then waited silently while she wrote swiftly, stopping only occasionally to cross out a word. Finally she swung around facing us, the sheets of note paper in her hand.

"I can't be hypocritical with that man," she said with a defiant note in her voice. "I don't want to see him and I'm not going to pretend I do. But I can't refuse to see him both for his wife's sake and for Marion's—although I'm mighty doubtful that this means any benefit to Marion."

The paper rustled in her hand as she involuntarily tightened her clutch upon it, and I knew she was thinking of the premonition of something malign which had come to her with the receipt of the letter. I did not want her to dwell on that phase, and I interrupted her saucily.

"Let's hear the names you called him. They ought to be interesting."

"I didn't dare put them down," she retorted with a faint grin. "They'd have scorched the paper. All right. Here goes:"

She took up the letter and began to read while we listened intently:

"Mr. Samuel Brixton,
"Cleveland, Ohio.

"My dear Mr. Brixton:

"I have read with amazement the letter which you have written me. I have no kindly feeling toward you—my memories of the past are too keen, nor can I bring myself to believe in the sincerity of your protestations. But I will see you and listen to what you have to say.

"So much for the business side of the matter. For the rest, my feeling toward Helen never has changed, and I shall be delighted to see her and her children again. For her sake, I will greet you with courtesy and do my best to keep all knowledge of my real feeling from her. I am sure you will assist me in this.

"I am inclosing a note to Helen, extending an invitation to you all to visit us. I count on you to see that she receives it without being shown this note to you. But I wish you to read my note to Helen before giving it to her. Then you will be able to handle the situation intelligently. Yours very truly,

"LILLIAN UNDERWOOD."

"My word!" Katherine ejaculated. "For removing hide and hair completely, I recommend all comers to Missis Underwood. Did you get the full beauty of it, Madge? Here! you pole cat. I'll talk to you at a distance of sixteen rods, but I want you to read the note to your wife so you'll be able to count up to ten without making a mistake. If that man puts his head inside this door he has a rhinoceros looking like a day-old chicken."

"A little thing like that would only encourage him," Lillian said grimly. "Here's what I have written to Helen—"

She picked up a sheet of her best note paper and read in a curiously softened tone which betrayed the affection which still was hers for this friend of her youth so long lost to her:

"Helen, dearest:—

"Your husband has written me of your projected trip East. You cannot know—though perhaps you do—for I am sure you have not forgotten our friendship—how glad I shall be to see you and the children again, though of course I shall not know them—my own daughter's stature reminds me that your children must also be nearly grown up.

"My husband and I are living for the present with our dearest friends, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Graham, at their summer home, near Sag Harbor. Mrs. Graham bids me extend the hospitality of the farmhouse to you and your family for as long as you can be with us. This means all of you. The farmhouse is roomy and elastic and extra guests are always welcome. But will you please wire me just when you will be with us as soon as you know yourself, for I also am in the throes of getting a daughter off to school.

"With fond anticipations of seeing you again, Helen, dear, I am as ever.

"Lovingly Yours,
"LILLIAN."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Faulty Diet Will Halt Development of Babies

ONE of the sad things about life is that strive as we may there are sure to be unhappy experiences. I regard the mother job as the most important in the world. If I had it in my power to do so, I should confer good health upon every baby born into the world. By doing this I should bring happiness to every mother on the face of the earth.

DR. COPELAND

Perhaps the most discouraging of the many experiences mothers have, is the failure of their babies to develop. In spite of what the mother thinks is proper feeding and in spite of all the love showered upon the infant, it does not grow.

Doctors speak of undevelopment, loss of weight and low vitality as being evidences of "malnutrition." The word is applied to those thin, pale, delicate children with dark rings round their eyes, rough hair and flat chests. They are apt to be nervous, restless, disturbed in sleep and fussy about their food.

The most common cause of malnutrition is a faulty diet. By this I mean that the food is insufficient in amount or improper in kind. Besides, the habits in eating may be bad.

Even a child breast-fed by an apparently healthy mother may not be getting enough milk. Even though the quantity may be sufficient, the quality of the milk may be below par.

A child, particularly in those early months when growth should be pronounced, must have an abundance of lime. The most dependable source of lime is milk. Unless this mineral is supplied in abundance there is sure to be evidence of malnutrition.

What I say about the baby is equally true of the older child. It is an unfortunate thing that many growing children are permitted to eat candy and other sweets to the detriment of their regular meals. I have no objection, as you know, to candy and sweets at a seasonable time, but they must be taken so that they will not interfere in the eating of substantial dishes at the table.

Regularity in feeding is of vital importance to children of all ages. The feeding of a baby must be at regular times. These periods must be as well established as the numbers on the clock. If they are not, disorders of digestion are sure to follow.

On a par with this is the between-meal eating of older children. Before they have digested the food taken between times, they sit down to the table without appetite for the good things which are there. Children must have the minerals which vegetables possess. They must have iron, prosphorous, the vitamins and all the other elements necessary for development.

The one thing I desire to impress upon you today is that faulty diet is the chief cause of malnutrition.

Answers to Health Queries

L. M. Q.—What causes my tongue to get sore? When the sore disappears it leaves my mouth dry.

A.—This is probably due to hyperacidity, which is caused by improper diet and poor elimination. This should be corrected.

Horoscope

Thursday, February 14

A VERY active and progressive day is presaged by the interesting lunar transits. Mars will stimulate to high endeavor and Saturn will incite the grit, determination, persistency and industry to carry through the initiative and hard work, the luminaries sextile promising position, preferment and favors for those in authority. It is a time for approaching these and elderly persons.

Those whose birthday it is are assured of a year of progress, recognition for labor and steadfastness, and are encouraged to approach superiors and elderly persons of institutions for the just reward for their diligence and fidelity.

A child born on this day may be faithful and enterprising, qualities which may insure its success and substantial position in life.

Fame itself is nothing. But the satisfaction of having honestly deserved it is everything.—Glen Buck.

Sunshine Best Disinfectant

Sunshine is the best disinfectant ever discovered. Clothes damp from perspiration should be dried in the sunshine, and all bedding should be put out in the sun regularly on cleaning days.

PROOF OF DYES is in the dyeing!

Words won't dye a dress, or coat, or sweater. It takes real anilines to do that. That's why Diamond Dyes contain from three to five times more anilines than any other dye—by actual test.

It's the anilines in Diamond Dyes that do the work; that give the colors such brilliance; such depth and permanence. It's real aniline that keeps them from giving things that re-dyed look; from spotting or streaking.

Next time you have dyeing to do, try Diamond Dyes. Then compare results. See how soft, bright, new-looking the colors are. Observe how they keep their brilliance. Your dealer will refund your money if you don't agree Diamond Dyes are better dyes.

The white package of Diamond Dyes is the original "all-purpose" dye for any and every kind of material. It will dye or tint silk, wool, cotton, linen, rayon or any mixture of materials. The blue package is a special dye, for silk or wool only. With it you can dye your valuable articles of silk or wool with results equal to the finest professional work. When you buy—remember this. The blue package dyes silk or wool only. The white package will dye every kind of goods, including silk and wool. Your dealer has both packages.

Your Complexion is always Lovely!

This is the story of a clear skin that comes from a strong, healthy body and the right number of rich, red-blood-cells.

Your happiness may depend upon a clear skin

BEAUTIFUL is the companionship that abounds in contentment, joy and happiness.

It is no wonder then that good health plays an important part in the affairs of people. Good health is the way to attract, hold interest, and above all inspire deeper love.

Take the skin, for example. Pimples, boils, eczema and sallow complexion are usually but symptoms of a deeper—a more dangerous trouble—a lack of the normal count of red-cells in the blood.

These outward troubles are not inviting. Neither can they be covered up. They embarrass. Steal away joy and happiness—and sometimes love.

A lovely—clear skin—is within the reach of all. To those who have lost it, hope is offered.

You, too, may have a lovely complexion, rose-petal in texture, pretty as a picture and without a single pimple.

Without plenty of rich, red-blood, there could be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or healthy beautiful women.

Rich, red-blood, is the means of giving you an appetite, firm flesh, strength, sound sleep, steady nerves, a smooth, clear skin.

When you take S.S.S. to get rid of these outside blemishes, you are building up the system to ward off the graver diseases of which these blemishes are Nature's warning.

Thousands of users have testified to the benefits of S.S.S. in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

Take S.S.S. at mealtime. You will be delighted with its blood building and tonic effects.

All good Drug Stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

S.S.S. is made from fresh vegetable drugs and has a successful record of over 100 years back of it.

RECEPTION TO M'NUTT, LEGION HEAD, ON RADIO

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

LEGIONNAIRES in all parts of Allegheny county will have their set tuned sharp tonight for the reception to Paul V. McNutt, national commander, in the William Penn Hotel. That is, all the legionnaires who failed to procure tickets for this gala event. KQV will broadcast the proceedings at 8:30 p. m.

Frank Crumit begged leave of absence for his appearance this week on the LaPalina Hour at 9:30 o'clock, but the sponsors of this program have made a strike in obtaining the services of Donald Brian, actor. The feature will be heard through WJAS. Crumit will be heard next Wednesday night.

The Gold Strand hour over WCAE at 10:30 p. m. will mark the return of a feature that was a great favorite among the fans last year. Galla Rini and his sister, now appearing at the Davis, are quite adept at playing musical instruments of all descriptions. They will show fans their skill at 11 o'clock over this station.

"Battle Hymn of the Republic" will be a stirring number on the Foresters' concert over KDKA at 8:30 p. m. The Smith Brothers' duet will offer "Zoop" at 9, and the regular program of Southern music will be given on the Cabin Door concert at 9:30 o'clock.

Some good band music will be on the air from WCAP at 9 and WOC at 11 tonight, while lovers of dance music will have the Benson Orchestra from WMAQ at midnight.

FADA Radio

The inside story

MAYBE you don't understand the insides of a radio...lots of people don't. But the things inside make fine radio. And every modern improvement is in the beautiful console of the Fada 32 . . . for only $225.

You may not know, for instance, the significance of heater element tubes, or the meaning of push-pull amplification . . . but that doesn't alter their vast importance to perfect reproduction. Perhaps you can't explain the difference between a dynamic and magnetic speaker . . . but your ear quickly tells you that the dynamic speaker gives you far greater depth and tonal range. And you don't have to understand a phonograph attachment to enjoy the superior tone of your favorite records, heard through the dynamic speaker of your Fada radio.

The story of Fada 32 value is in its specifications. They tell you that no other radio of this quality has ever offered so much for its price. Just hear a Fada 32 at any Fada dealer's. Then you'll know that here, at last, is truly fine radio for only $225.

Skid-Chains on Slippery Money

MONEY is so slippery. The hardest job for the average man or woman is to accumulate funds to meet occasional expenditures such as annual insurance premiums, vacation outlays, purchases of spring and fall clothes, mortgage payments, etc.

Yet there is a perfectly easy, painless way of taking care of these periodical outlays. Simply figure your special expenditures for a year and deposit one-twelfth of the amount each month in the First National savings account.

Get the First National Habit and put skid-chains on your slippery money.

Rosa Pozzi, of 1270 Thomas St., Memphis, Tenn., and her mother had had coughs. Her father says he'd used "most everything" for them before he got REM. Then—but let him tell it:

REM was "good news"

to Rosa and her mother

"REM is great for a cough," says Mr. Pozzi. "My wife and my daughter Rosa have both been relieved of bad coughs by using it. My wife had a bad cough during the winter and we tried most everything for it. Rosa had a bad cough, too. I phoned to the Driving Park Drug Store on Thomas St., told them we had used most everything, and asked them to send something new and different. They sent REM. It worked like magic, loosened the phlegm and soon stopped the cough. I think it's fine."

REM didn't just "happen",--there's 43 years of pharmaceutical experience back of it. We've done the experimenting for you.

WASH.-JEFF. FACES PITT TONIGHT

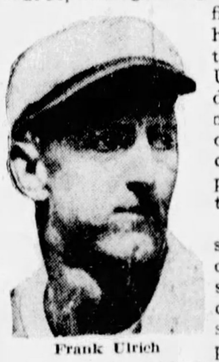
SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Ulrich Strain Victim. Shares Fate of Gans. Tying of Smyers' Mark.

Worters Main Prop. Chances of Americans. Cotton Goes in Deal.

BILLIARD TITLE SAFE FOR AMERICA

THE same sort of strain that Joe Gans underwent when he fought 42 rounds with Battling Nelson in Goldfield, Nev., in 1906, after grinding himself down to 133 pounds ringside in fighting attire, a strain that later caused his death, is said to have contributed to the weakened condition of Frank Ulrich, able pitcher of the Phillies, who died yesterday from an attack of pneumonia and pleurisy. That is, the strain of carrying on in a strenuous athletic contest when he did not have the physical strength or stamina required to bear him up.



Frank Ulrich

For though the illness to which he succumbed was of comparatively recent origin, Ulrich had been in a weakened state for more than a year. On this account he was out of the game all of last season, following an earlier siege of pneumonia, and only a few weeks ago word came from his Baltimore home that though he wanted to get back into action for 1929, his physician would not give his consent. Ulrich himself announced at that time that if he had to rest another season he would never appear in the box again. He blamed a game played in Cincinnati in 1927 for his weakness, saying that he had been unable to stand the strain. This, in spite of the fact that he had had youth and ruggedness in his favor, as at that time he was not yet 28 years old, while standing 6 feet 1 inch in height and weighing 195 pounds.

DISCUSSING the game to which he attributed his loss of strength, Ulrich, who, in his three years with the Phillies established himself as one of the best pitchers in the National League, said: "It was the hottest day I ever experienced, and early in the game, when we had a good lead, I wanted to be taken out, as I could not bear up.

"But I had to stay, and I staggered through to the finish, though Jakie May, who was my pitching opponent, quit in about three innings. I lost seven pounds in that game, and never have felt the same since. I have had some tough bumps in baseball, and just when I was about to be rated among the top flight pitchers, I had to be stricken with pneumonia. The way I feel now, I don't think I'll be back for the 1929 season."

THOUGH George A. George, of Deper, Wis., rolling in Wisconsin's annual state tenpin meeting, has equaled the American Bowling Congress singles record of 749 for three games, set by Harry E. Smyers, of this city, in winning the National singles championship in 1924, at Chicago, the Pittsburgher has the satisfaction of knowing that it took the country's timber-topplers almost five years to tie his score, and that even yet no one has succeeded in beating it.

Harry E. Smyers

And at that, Smyers' mark has not been duplicated under the conditions that prevailed when he made it, that is in an annual A. B. C. championship tournament, so that it still stands as the best ever made in that big yearly competition.

PITTSBURGH has played a prominent part in A. B. C. alley meets since the first was held in 1901. Smyers though holding the best record ever made in singles, was not the only one to bring the singles championship back to this district. Two other entrants from Pittsburgh or vicinity have come home with the one-man honors. The first was Harry Cavan, who won the singles title at Toledo in 1919, with a score of 718, and who was a Pittsburgh resident at that time, and in 1926 the championship was captured by Eddie Votel, of East Pittsburgh, at Toledo, with a mark of 731.

THE A. B. C. tourney was held in Pittsburgh only once. That was in 1909, Duquesne Garden being the scene. On that occasion the singles competition resulted in a tie between Larry Sutton, of Rochester, N. Y., and Frank Bruggeman, of Sioux City, each rolling 691. In a one-game roll off Sutton won with 215 to Bruggeman's 179.

The doubles winners in Pittsburgh were Al and Tom Schwoegler, of Madison, Wis., with a score of 1,304; the five-man team winners were the Lipmans, of Chicago, with 2,962, and the victor in the all-events was Jimmy Blouin, of Chicago, with 1,885. All of the marks made in Pittsburgh have been beaten since. The present records are: Singles, Smyers, 749; doubles, H. Thoma and C. Thoma, of Chicago, 1,380; five-man teams, Tea Shops, of Milwaukee, 3,199, and all-events, William J. Knox, of Philadelphia, 2,019.

IF the New York Americans finish in first place in the International group of the National Hockey League they will give the lion's share of the credit to Roy Worters, former Pittsburgh goalkeeper. Manager Tommy Gorman admits that the Worters deal was the one that made the team.

Roy Worters

"Getting Worters was our greatest stroke," Gorman is quoted. "His work has been the main item in our success up to date. But Johnny Sheppard, Punch Broadbent, Harry Connor and Rabbit McVeigh also have helped a lot. Babe Dye, alone, of the newcomers, has failed to play a prominent part, and that is due to the fact that he has not regained his stride after suffering a broken leg last season."

GORMAN figures that the Americans will finish on top in their division if they can win six of their remaining 11 games. "There are two circumstances in our favor," he says. "One is that we have proved a good road team this season, and six of the 11 remaining games are to be played away from home. The other is that eight of the 11 games will be played with clubs in our own group, the teams that we want to beat off and knock down to clear our way to the championship. We couldn't ask for a better break than that. Furthermore, Les Canadiens and the Maroons have two games to play against each other, and we are bound to profit by the result of those games if the teams break even. I know that a lot of wise birds around the circuit have been waiting for us to flop, but I believe we're going to fool them."

BERNARD CONWAY writes from Johnstown to announce that he'd like to show George Pavlick on a Pittsburgh boxing card against any one scaling from 165 to 170 pounds. "He has reach, height and punch, and a cool head in addition," Conway says. "He has defeated Frank Monroe, Harry Spencer, Red Delph and Kid Wagner in his last four fights.

"I am not looking around for killings in the matter of money, for I feel confident that if Pavlick is given the opportunity to meet a good boy in Pittsburgh he will have little trouble getting a return fight at a better price. I also have Johnny Chiodo, 124 to 126 pounds; Harry Taylor, 135 to 138 pounds, and Billy Palm, of the same weight, whom I'd like to book for Pittsburgh bouts."

JAKE SCHAEFER'S success in defeating Kinrey Matsuyama by a score of 400 to 331 yesterday in the world championship 18.2

BUCS GET NEW STAR FROM TORONTO

By CARL W. SHATTO.

Harold Cotton, speedy left wing, was traded to the Toronto Leafs for Jerry Lowrey; Goalie Joe Miller was knocked out when hit above the eye with the puck, Odie Cleghorn resumed his managerial duties, and the International group of the National Hockey League got a new leader at Duquesne Garden last night as the powerful Les Canadiens of Montreal handed the Pirates a 2-to-0 defeat.

Harold Cotton

Yes, things were happening thick and fast at the Craig street arena. Charles Leonard, secretary of the Pirates and brother of Benny Leonard, owner of the club, announced the consummation of the Cotton-for-Lowrey deal just as the battle got under way; 15 minutes later Miller was assisted from the ice, and 45 minutes after that the victorious invaders skated off the glaze in the pace-setting position in their section.

Because the spectacle of a Pittsburgh defeat is not exactly a novelty, the Cotton-Lowery deal was ranked as the feature act of the night. Cotton came to Pittsburgh in the season of 1923-24 to help the Yellow Jackets win a few amateur championships, and he had remained here since that time. Like other former Jackets, he turned pro and became a Pirate when Pittsburgh obtained a franchise in the National League. Although rather frail for a big leaguer, his great speed made him a valuable performer, and he was a member of the starting front line until a few weeks ago when Frank Frederickson was obtained from Boston. Frederickson supplanted Milks at center and Hib crowded Cotton from the starting to the spare line.

OFF TO JOIN LEAFS

Cotton's speed enabled him to star at back checking, and he was adept at passing. He never was a particularly dangerous shot.

Cotton left to join the Toronto club immediately after the finish of last night's game, and Lowery is to report to Manager Cleghorn here today. The new Pirate will make his debut here tomorrow night when the local sextet plays host to the husky Boston Bruins.

While Pirate officials realize that Cotton's departure will be regretted by many fans partial to flashy play, they are confident that the trade will work out to the advantage of the Pittsburgh club. Since Leonard took over the local franchise, he and his assistants have welcomed every opportunity to strengthen the local sextet, and they feel sure that their latest move is a move in the right direction.

Although not as experienced as is Cotton, Lowrey is a youthful performer of exceptional promise. Jerry has been a Toronto National Leaguer for the last two years. His improvement has been very noticeable, and local officials are confident he will attain stardom before he finishes his career.

Toronto obtained Lowery from the London club of the Canadian Professional League. Although rather small of stature, he is very rugged and aggressive and a goal-getter of more than average ability.

BROTHER OF FROCK

Jerry is a brother of Frock Lowery, who played with the Pirates in the 1925-26 season, and who was released to Quebec after a short stay here.

The Pirates-Canadiens joust, the second feature of the heavy program, was a rather spotty game; like the little girl with the curl, when it was good it was very, very good, and when it was bad it was horrid.

Although he scored neither of the Canadiens' two goals, Howie Morenz, the speediest skater in the big show, was the hero of the fight. He fed Ledue a pass for the invaders' first goal, and his neat and accurate assist enabled Marty Burke to drive

NEW MASON HOPE

JOHNNY WINDSOR

Here's how Johnny Windsor, James (Red) Mason's new fistic protege, shapes up in action. He's only 21 and has gained considerable experience in the last two years. He also is a baseball and basketball player, performing in these sports for the Immaculate Heart teams of Herron Hill, where he resides.

FANS TO SEE IMPROVED WINDSOR

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Without honor in his own town, but a great guy away from home, is Johnny Windsor, Herron Hill 150-pounder, who is back home again and will do his future fighting under the management of James (Red) Mason, making his first start under the new alliance against Lee Sala, of Donora, in one of the bouts at McKeesport tomorrow night.

ALGER HIS "MEAT"

In Pittsburgh we remember Windsor as a game, but crude, swinging welterweight, who did some hard but ineffectual fighting in the Motor Square ring a few seasons back. Since then he's been places and done things, notably in Florida, where he fought Billy Alger, of Phoenix, Ariz., four times, winning one of the bouts and getting draws in the others. Alger has boxed Champion Joe Dundee, Al Mello and other stars with fine success.

Down around Jacksonville and Miami, they think Windsor is quite the real thing. In addition to beating Alger he has defeated Ray Sailer Dixon in one round, beaten Ponce De Leon, the Cuban champion; won over the veteran Alex Hart and defeated Bobby Marriott, a tough Army fighter from Baltimore.

VICTOR OVER LA ROSE

Recently he has been fighting around Toledo, Cleveland and Cincinnati. He holds a victory over Tony La Rose, who massacred Bobby Richardson at Motor Square Garden; has drawn with Frankie Palmo, who also fought here, and has beaten big Babe Herman in Cleveland.

Windsor is only 21 years old and believes that under the able management of the veteran Mason he will go a considerable distance in the box-fighting racket. We'll see how far he has come along in the McKeesport battle tomorrow night. He'll have a gang of his Herron Hill friends rooting for him. He plays baseball and basketball for the Immaculate Heart team of that district and is popular aside from his fighting activity.

Ouimet to Fly To Amateur Play On Pacific Coast

DEL MONTE, Cal., Feb. 13.—Francis Ouimet, former national champion, will fly to California to compete in the national amateur golf championship at Pebble Beach, September 2-7, according to word received here.

JOCK SUTHERLAND — ALEX STEVENSON — GLENN (POP) WARNER

One always can tell when Pop Warner, former Pitt and Carlisle Indian coach, now at Stanford University, California, is in town. For when he's here he drops in on Alex Stevenson, of the Philadelphia Company, assistant coach at Pitt, and a football fanfest immediately starts and work ceases. Above, draped about Stevenson's desk, are the old cronies, with Dr. Sutherland, Pitt's present coach, who began his football career under Warner at Pitt. Warner is here to attend the John Gruber dinner at the William Penn Hotel tomorrow evening.

LOCAL GOLFER ADVANCES

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 13.—C. J. Claudon, of Pittsburgh, teed off this morning in the second round of match play in the annual South Florida championship golf tournament over the Palm Beach Golf Club course. His opponent is T. C. Manning, of Palm Beach. They are contesting in the third 16.

In the first match round yesterday, Claudon defeated H. B. Robertson, of Pittsburgh, by 1 up, in a hotly contested match in which the lead alternated throughout. Claudon won out in the final green, where he successfully negotiated a putt of 14 feet.

Irish to Erect New $750,000 Stadium

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Notre Dame will erect a $750,000 stadium next spring that will seat 50,000 or 60,000 people, the Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, president of the university, announced today at a luncheon given in his honor by the Notre Dame Alumni Club of New York.

"We must have the means of playing games at home," he explained. "It is academically not sound to have a band of roving athletes. We're call the Ramblers, but not because we like it."

WESTMINSTER IS HOST TO TARTANS

By JESS CARVER.

Wash-Jeff and Pitt will resume basketball relations in a Big Four contest in the Stadium pavilion tonight. The contest will be the first event of a busy week-end for Pittsburgh, which includes two hockey games, two more basketball frays and the big sport dinner at the William Penn tomorrow night.

Despite the fact that the Presidents haven't won a basketball game from Pitt in two years, and that the Panthers are rated about 8-to-5 favorites to win tonight, Wash-Jeff is invading the pavilion with high hopes of taking away a victory. Handicapped by the flu early in the season, the Red and Black squad is just rounding into shape, and demonstrated no little ability and class on a road trip last week. With some improvement at the foul line, the boys from Little Washington figure on making it a long, hard evening for the Braddock Redhead tonight.

While the Panthers and Presidents are battling here, Pittsburgh's remaining two college fives will be in action out of town. Carnegie Tech invades New Wilmington for a contest with Westminster's Titans and the Dukes finish up their annual invasion of the East with a game at Annville, Pa., with Lebanon Valley. The Tech-Titan affair is a return engagement, Westminster having swamped the Plaid here a week or two ago.

W. VA. PLAYS ARMY

West Virginia meets the Army at West Point in the fourth game of the Mountaineers' trip through the East.

There will be a galaxy of collegiate folks at the John Gruber testimonial banquet here tomorrow evening. It will be the greatest gathering of football, basketball and general college athletic luminaries that Pittsburgh has ever boasted. Included among those who are to be here will be Capt. L. McCall (Biff) Jones, head coach of football at the Army; Pop Warner, famous for exploits as a coach at Pitt and Stanford; Andy Kerr and Bill Amos, of Wash-Jeff; A. C. Edgecomb and Bo McMillin, of Geneva fame; Bob Thorn, of Grove City; Ira Rodgers and Harry Stansbury, of West Virginia; Sam Willaman, head coach at Ohio State, and Leo Raskowski, former all-America tackle at the Buckeye school; Andy McDonald, of Westminster; Elmer Layden, John Holoban and Chick Davies, of Duquesne; Jock Sutherland, W. Don Harrison, Red Carlson, Charley Hyatt, Charley Bowser, Alex Fox, Luby DiMeolo and Jimmy Hagan, of Pitt; Wally Steffan, Bob Waddell, Buddy Overend, Howard Harpster, Harvey White and John Irwin, Paul Allison and Al Irwin, of Carnegie Tech, and Jim Marks and Bob Mitinger, of Kiski.

You can't beat that for a layout, and don't think some of those babies can't lay you out.

DUKES WIN AGAIN

Duquesne, Allegheny, Grove City and West Virginia broke into the victory column in their contests last night. The Dukes played fine basketball at Washinton to defeat Catholic University, 41 to 18. Ken Loeffler discovered that one has to keep one's ball club on edge all the time to win in this sector as his Geneva Covenanters fell before Allegheny at Meadville, 30-25.

West Virginia won another road game by beating Virginia at Charlottesville, 45-36 with a fine rally late in the game and Grove City walloped Thiel at Grove City 41-32, making a large early lead stand up all evening.

The Pitt and Tech swimming teams will clash in a duel meet in Trees pool tonight. On Friday, the Skibo tankers will engage Wash-Jeff at Washington.

FROTH

Why do these traffic cops wait till I get right in the middle of the crossing before they toot their tooters?.....And turn those signs.....Pop Warner, the grizzled veteran of too many gridiron campaigns, is in town.....He has some new idea for football.....Wants kicking, knifing and cussing written into the rules.....Among the city's visitors is O. Van Courtland Smith, of the Brooklyn, N. Y., Van Courtland Smiths.....Came here just to see that Jess Petty and Al Mamaux got good hands at the Davis.....He's the Big Thread man from Needles, Ariz.....And a Shriner.....The John Gruber testimonial banquet is going to be the first sell-out of the season.....If you haven't bought your ticket before now, you'll wind up in the balcony.....Up where the static begins.....Every guy at the affair in a tuxedo won't be a waiter.....Don't insult any of the committee.

JOHNNY WINDSOR — JAMES (RED) MASON

When Johnny Windsor left Pittsburgh, after dubbing around as a preliminary boy in several bouts, the local boxing fans scarcely gave him a tumble. But now he's back home from campaigning in Florida and throughout Ohio and beating Billy Alger, Bobby Marriott, Tony LaRose and other tough ones and such a shrewd handler of mittmen as Mason, dean of the local managers, thinks so well of him that he has taken him under his wing. Johnny boxes Lee Sala, of Donora, in one of the bouts at McKeesport tomorrow night.

Oliver went into possession of first place, and Perry and South Hills High schools are deadlocked for second place in Section 2 of the City Senior League as a result of yesterday's engagements.

Perry High took the measure of South Hills, 23 to 16; Oliver defeated Allegheny, which is now relegated to fourth position in the standings, by a 36-30 count, and Carrick bumped Allegheny Vocational, 23 to 20. Vocational has yet to win a league contest.

In Section 1, Fifth Avenue High held its lead by trouncing Ralston, 60-23; South High won over Peabody, 22-13, and Schenley bettered Westinghouse, 37 to 24.

TILDEN BEATEN BY VAN RYN

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(INS.)—Reaching the same brilliant heights which enabled him to beat Francis Hunter in the semi-final round of the indoor invitation tournament of the Brooklyn Heights Casino, John Van Ryn scored his second great upset within 24 hours when he trounced William T. Tilden, America's first ranking player, in straight sets, 6-1, 6-4, 6-2, yesterday.

Van Ryn and J. Gilbert Hall, another New Jersey performer, advanced to the final round of the doubles play by beating Charles S. Garland and Harry C. Brunie in a closely-contested extra-set match 4-6, 6-3, 6-4. Their triumph placed Van Ryn and Hall in the final round against Tilden and S. Howard Voshell. The Van Ryn-Hall combination won, 6-2, 9-7, 4-6, 7-5.

JEWEL ENS IN TOWN

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Jewel Ens, first assistant to Donie Bush in the management of the Pirates, is in town today, after spending most of the winter in Florida at the home of Pitcher Lee Meadows.

With one of the biggest pitching squads ever noted in a Pirate roster, Coach Ens has his work cut out for him at Paso Robles and at other points along the route of the spring training special.

No less than 18 veterans and youngsters will go through the preliminary sprouts at the California camp. The latest addition is Duncan MacKay, of Seattle, a promising semi-pro, who will be given a close inspection by Donie Bush and his assistants.

BRINGS GOOD NEWS

Ens brings good news from Florida concerning Lee Meadows, who recently was taken off the voluntary retired list of the Pirates in order to go to the training camp with the team.

Meadows had arm trouble through most of last year, but he has given the member much attention with beneficial results.

Carmen Hill, after getting permission from his bosses to report early at camp already is on his way to Paso Robles. The Corry giant also had arm trouble last season, but he, too, has been receiving expert attention.

When Hill reaches Paso Robles he will get in touch with First Baseman Earl Sheely, who owns a big ranch about two miles from the site of the Pirate camp. Hill and Sheeley will gather together a crowd of town boys and with their aid will get the unofficial sessions under way.

WANER REPORT DENIED

Reports out of New York to the effect that the Waner brothers, unsigned Pirates, were holding out for fabulous sums were scoffed at today by officials of the team.

Several weeks ago the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph published a story asserting the little stars had refused to sign at figures offered by the management. Pirate officials confirmed the story, they adding they did not expect any serious trouble in getting the two outfielders in line.

It was stated today that neither Paul or Lloyd had been in communication with the home office of the Bucs, but the local owners still insist that the two players will be in camp with the second squad.

LOCALS WIN AT MIAMI

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 13.—Three Pittsburgh players teed off this morning in the second round of match play in the Miami women's championship golf tournament over the Miami Country Club course. They are Miss E. Lucille Bejach, the Steel City champion, who is contesting in the title 16, and Mrs. C. E. Sidway and Mrs R. B. Rogers, who are playing their matches in the third flight.

Miss Bejach is matching strokes with Mrs. John Arends, of Chicago, runner-up for the Miami Beach women's title last week. Mrs. Sidway is opposing Mrs. J. H. Jefferson, of Utica, N. Y., while Mrs. Rogers is playing Mrs. Ben Stevenson, of Chicago.

In the first match round yesterday, Miss Bejach trounced Mrs. Frank H. Wilson, of Detroit, by 6 and 5. Mrs. Sidway disposed of Mrs. Maurice Hamberg, of Great Neck, N. Y., and Mrs. Rogers triumphed over Mrs. H. S. Holmes, of Jamestown, N. Y., by 3 and 2.

Mrs. L. G. Riley, of Pittsburgh, was unfortunate in drawing as her opponent little Miss Helen (Billie) Hicks, Long Island school girl, and winner of the qualifying medal. She was eliminated by 6 and 5.

For the second day in succession Billie Hicks was the only player in the large field to crack 80.

SPECULATORS SEEK DINNER TICKETS

Well, of all things——!

The sports writers' banquet, to be held at the William Penn Hotel tomorrow night, has a ticket scandal.

No kidding. The wise fellows who always are on the lookout for something that looks like a sell-out are trying to cut in and corral the ducats in bunches, with the obvious intention of scalping them, but so far their plans have been frustrated through the vigilance of John L. Hernon, treasurer of the affair.

SCALPER IS FRUSTRATED

Yesterday a prospective purchaser of tickets approached Hernon in his office at Motor Square Garden, seeking two tables of 10 seats each. He flashed his money, but refused to give his name or the names of his guests. Hernon insisted that he be given the name of at least the purchaser of the block of seats, but the stranger declined and, after some words, left. Later it dawned on Hernon that he had been dealing with a ticket scalper, and he passed the word around that until the close of the sale he would insist on knowing the identity of the purchasers of tickets.

The banquet, which will be in the nature of a testimonial for John H. Gruber, veteran local sports writer, will pack the ballroom of the hotel. When the capacity is disposed of, the ticket sale will stop. There will be no overflow tables in other rooms, as a varied program of entertainment will run through the evening and it is felt that all of the guests will want to be in on the whole show.

Reservations not accompanied by cash will not be held after 5 o'clock this evening, due to the great demand for seats and the scarcity of pasteboards. While they last tickets may be obtained through any of the sports writers of the local newspapers or by calling Treasurer Hernon at Montrose 4715.

Jack Onslow, of Tarentum, who will be Tris Speaker's assistant at Newark this summer, and nine other well-known sportsmen of Tarentum, this morning made arrangements for a table at the big feast and jollification. Among the Tarentum folks will be Toby Fullerton and Jack Friel.

Williams' New Mark May Not Be Recognized

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 13.—(INS.)—Although Percy Williams' time of 4 9-10 seconds in the 45-yard dash at the Meadowbrook games here last night was three-tenths of a second faster than the world indoor record, indications were today that Canada's two-time Olympic champion could not be officially credited with a new record. Observers at the starting line agreed in declaring that Williams and the other runners started a full yard in front of the scratch mark.

Williams defeated Karl Wildermuth, of Georgetown, for the second time within a week.

A new star joined the track constellation when Fred Veit, of New York University, defeated Ray Conger, conqueror of Paavo Nurmi, and Bernie McCafferty, of Holy Cross, in the Meadowbrook 660.

Nurmi easily won the 3,000-meter race, but the phantom Finn's time was 11 seconds slower than his own world record.

PRESSED STEEL NEW TENPIN LEADER

A new leader in the five-men event cropped out in the second day's rolling the Tri-state tenpin tournament, on the Club alleys yesterday, Press Steel Car going in front with a tally of 2603 pins.

Prizes for daily high scores were as follows:

Singles, W. Sonner, 578; doubles, A. W. Miller and W. Sonner, 1068, and five-men event, Pressed Steel Car, 2603.

Play was resumed early this afternoon with the following schedule:

SCHAEFER PLAYS COCHRAN

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—The world 18.2 balkline billiard crown, worn since last March by Edouard Horemans, of Belgium, is to come back to the United States Welker Cochran, of Hollywood, and Young Jake Schaefer, of Chicago, clash tonight in the final match of the round-robin tournament at the Level Club with the championship going to the winner.

Schaefer eliminated the last of the four foreign entrants when he defeated Kinrey Matsuyama, 400 to 331, yesterday afternoon. It was the second reverse for the game little Japanese, who won his first three matches in brilliant style. His other defeat was at Cochran's hands in a gruelling battle Monday night.

His triumph over Matsuyma elevated Schaefer into a tie with Cochran for the lead with only their own duel still on the schedule. The two Americans each have won thre matches in four starts.

Defeateing Eric Hagenlacher, of Germany, 400 to 315, in 20 innings last night, Horemans concluded his tournament record with three victories and two defeats, placing him in a tie for third place with Matsuyama. Both will automatically go into a tie for second place with the loser of tonight's match. Prize money in the case of ties will be distributed, however, on the basis of grand averages. Hagenlacher winds up in fourth place with two triumphs in five starts. Felix Grange, of France, is the cellar holder with five successive reverses.

	Won	Lost	Run. Average	High Run	High Average	Grand Average
Schaefer	3	1	182	40		25 11-62
Cochran	3	1	233	43 4-12		28 50-62
Horemans	3	2	193	36 4-11		22 69-77
Matsuyama	3	2	122	30 10-13		21 56-88

P. A. A. Swimmers To Visit Cleveland

The Pittsburgh Athletic Association and the Cleveland Athletic club will meet in a swimming tourney to be held tomorrow night in the Cleveland club's pool.

Jack Rickards, who died Saturday night, from injuries sustained at a local swimming pool, was to have taken part in the meet.

HEINZ OPPOSES EAST LIBERTY TONIGHT

By JULIUS LEVIN.

Coach Howard Francis, popular mentor of the Heinz House quintet, will take his passers to East Liberty Y. M. C. A. tonight, where they meet Coach Williams' floor machine in a third round A. A. U. elimination contest.

The two teams have been meeting with unusual success on the floor of late, and their followers are looking for a brilliant battle tonight. Both teams include in their lineups some of the best amateur players in this section of the state and, judging from the interest shown by the fans, a large crowd is expected to attend the contest.

LINEUP BOLSTERED

The Heinz House roster has been bolstered considerably by the addition of Tom Bernhart, former star guard of the Allegheny High School quintet. While Bernhart is not eligible to compete in the tournament games he will prove a valuable asset to the North Siders in the Greater Pittsburgh Institutional League race. Incidentally Heinz is one of the favorites to win the second-round championship in this league.

Bernhart has been a member of the Heinz House since 1921, but has not been a regular on the basketball team owing to his affiliation with the Allegheny High School floor machine. Bernhart received his diploma last week and now will be available for service in the Institutional League. His return to the Heinz House lineup gives the North Siders a veteran guard who compares favorably with the best in the district.

DRIBBLES

Duquesne Light, defeated by the Lafayettes Monday night after handing the Goldensons a surprise reverse last Saturday night, will endeavor to get back into its winning stride tonight when it meets Reliance Life in the only game scheduled in the Allegheny County League. The contest will be played at Columbus Temple.

The South Side Mangans meet the Greenfield Club at the Market House in the only game scheduled in the Pittsburgh & Ohio Valley League tonight. The two teams have been showing excellent form since the second half of the season got under way and should present a game tonight that should keep their followers on their toes.

The Ackermans meet the Wotherspoons and Boot Shop opposes the Millers in the two Homestead District League contests carded at the Homestead Elks' Temple tonight.

Only one game is scheduled in the Greater Pittsburgh Institutional League, Hill Top opposing Kingsley House on the Kingsley House floor. The reserve quintets clash in the preliminary game.

RAUHS BEAT LOENDI

The Enoch Rauhs of the County League defeated the Loendi five, 38-25, last night in Pythian Hall.

Sports Comment

By JAMES J. LONG

balkline billiard tournament in New York rendered one thing pleasingly certain. That is that the title will come back to the United States.

No other outcome is possible now, as the final match tonight, to decide the winner of first place, will bring together Schaefer and Welker Cochran, the two American entrants. Schaefer made it safe for the U. S. A. by duplicating Cochran's victory over the sensational Jap.

Welker Cochran

SCHAEFER and Cochran are tied for the top position, each having won three matches and lost one. Tonight's winner will capture the championship, as all of the foreign contenders—Edouard Horemans, of Belgium, deposed champion; Kinrey Matsuyama, of Japan; Erich Hagenlacher, of Germany, and Felix Grange, of France—have been eliminated. So your Uncle Samuel is sitting pretty today. He can't lose. Schaefer looks like the probable victor, if in his best form, but regardless of the outcome of this final match cue fans are in a position to feel gratified at the fact that the tourney has re-established the supremacy of American billiards.

ONE of local fandom's favorite players on the Pittsburgh hockey teams departs from the Pirate ranks in the trade closed last night, whereby Harold Cotton is transferred to Toronto in exchange for Jerry Lowrey. This was Cotton's sixth season in this city, he having come here as a member of the Yellow Jackets for the 1923-24 campaign, and as a fast skater, willing passer and hard and faithful worker at all times he has always been deservedly popular with the home ice patrons.

From the personal angle, Cotton's going will be regretted, therefore, but at the same time the fans will approve the action of the management in making a start toward reorganizing a club that clearly could not get anywhere as it was constituted. New blood was needed, and in Lowrey the Bucs get an aggressive youngster who ought to fit in well with the new scheme of things. It will not be surprising if there are further changes later, and there can be no denying that they are needed.

Maisel Named Baltimore Manager

BALTIMORE, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Choice of Fritz Maisel, Baltimore International League third baseman, as manager of the club for the coming season, has been announced by Charles H. Knapp, club president. Since the death of Jack Dunn, who was manager as well as principal owner, Maisel's name had often been suggested, but announcement was deferred while negotiations were under way for sale of the club.

SWITCH IN TWO HARD TILTS

By TOM BIRKS

The Union Switch and Signal Soccer Football Club faces two games in two days this week-end. On Saturday the Thomas outfit will face the German Sport Club at Leslie Park in a benefit game for Otto Zetel, the latter's center half-back, and then on Sunday the Swissvalers will have their replayed game in the National amateur cup at Heidelberg to worry over—and that is plenty for one week-end.

Last Saturday the Switch seemed to be very confident they could duplicate that win over the former National champions, even in their own ballwick. Of course, it has been many moons since Heidelberg was defeated at the school grounds, but with its other defeat to worry about, it is possible that the Green and Gold will go in a favorite.

There is plenty to play for, as the winner will entertain the Akron Goodyears. Of course, should Union Switch win, Campbell will hardly bring the Akronites to Pittsburgh, following the Sparata debacle. But if Heidelberg wins it is another matter entirely, and Akron will be here just as the Magyars were two years ago.

Should Heidelberg meet Akron, the game may be played at the Bridgeville Speedway. Independent football played to some large crowds there, and seeing that Heidelberg has plenty of Millers Run boys in the lineup, it would be a popular place.

It is reported that many things happened at Curry last Sunday and managed to keep out of print. While there are two sides to every story, it would appear the Curry fans, aided and abetted by the players of a third team, staged something that is not new to Curry. It would appear the former closing of that ground does not impress very much, and that the West Penn will have to place a heavy hand on the spot where it originated. Chartiers Valley League officials will possibly make a sweeping investigation of the whole affair.

RACE DATES CHANGED

BUTLER, Pa., Feb. 13.—The Coal and Iron Race Circuit, at a meeting here yesterday, urged New Castle to move up its dates to the first week in August in order to give the loop three weeks of racing before the Keystone Circuit opens.

A change in schedule is to be adopted. Conflict in dates, in which Clarion and New Castle race the week of August 27, will be left up to a committee.

Five tracks agreed to stage 3-year-old trotting and pacing events for purses of $400 and $500 each.

The new schedule, to be ratified later, is New Castle July 29, August 3; Dayton, August 6-10; Ford City, August 13-17; Butler, August 19-25; Clarion, August 26-30; Junction Park, August 31; September 2-3; Stoneboro, September 2-4; Mercer, September 10-13.

According to secretaries, New Castle will stage 11 events on a three-day program; Butler, 12 events; Ford City, 8 events; Dayton, 8 events; Stoneboro, 9 events, and Clarion, 8 events. The total amount in purses and stakes will exceed $40,000 this season.

CANADIENS TOP PIRATES

home the Flying Dutchman's second tally. Had the periods been of 19 rather than 20 minutes duration, the game would have ended in a scoreless tie. Twenty-eight seconds of play remained in the first stanza when the first goal was recorded, and the second was rung up just 59 seconds before the close of the fight.

Ledue broke into the scoring column during one of the Pirates' bad moments. Lepine was in the penalty box at the time, and the Bucs expected the visitors to play a defensive game. Instead of "ragging" the puck, however, Joliat, Morenz and Ledue advanced abreast, and each one of the trio got in a wicked wallop before Ledue put the finishing touch to the drive. During the siege, Miller made four or five brilliant stops, but his mates gave him no assistance and he finally succumbed.

The second goal was "just one of those things." The Bucs, fighting valiantly to even the count, had four men down the ice at the time, and when Morenz and Burke broke away, they had only Holway and Miller to beat. Howie passed to Burke when Holway stopped him, and Marty drove the puck home after feinting Miller out of position.

DEFENSE HALTS McCAFFREY

Bert McCaffrey and Johnny McKinnon, defense men, had the best scoring opportunities for the locals. Following Drury up the ice early in the first period, McCaffrey gained possession of the disc in front of the Canadien cage, but Hainsworth kept his goal inviolate with a remarkable save.

McKinnon broke through to the goal after 14 minutes of play in the third period, but he was so surprised at his success that he drove the puck into the bleachers.

Darragh, Miller and Frederickson made fair bids for scores at different times, but the spare line of Drury, White and Cotton, with McCaffrey and Smith assisting, provided most of the excitement.

Although Miller's injury was not serious, it was very painful and contributed much to the drama of the evening. Fifteen minutes of play had elapsed in the first stanza when S. Mantha, giant defense man, chaperoned the puck down the right lane. As he crossed the blue line, he let go a bullet-like drive which traveled so fast that Miller was unable to dodge it. The puck crashed into the goalie's head with a sickening thud, and he dropped as if shot. A deep gash was opened a fraction of an inch above his left eye, and he had to be assisted to the dressing room. After receiving medical attention, Miller returned to his position and play was resumed.

In addition to the game with Boston here tomorrow, the Pirates meet Ottawa at the Garden Saturday, so local fans will have two opportunities to see Lowery, the new Buc, in action this week. The lineup:

Canadiens—2.		Pirates—0.
Hainsworth	G	Miller
S. Mantha	R.D.	McCaffrey
Burke	L.D.	Smith
Lepine	C.	Frederickson
Leduc	R.W.	Darragh
Joliat	L.W.	Miller

Canadien spares—Carson, Morenz, Mondou, G. Mantha, Gagne, Patterson; Pirate spares, Drury, White, Cotton, McCurry, McKinnon and Holway.

First period—Scoring, Leduc (Morenz), 19:32. Penalties—Morenz and Lepine.

Second period—Scoring, none. Penalties none.

ANDY STAHURA, PATSY YOUNG MATCHED

The Moose Temple boxing card for Friday night has been completed with the signing of Andy Stahura, of Braddock, to box Patsy Young, of Beechview, in the second bout. Both are veterans among the featherweights of this section, Young being somewhat of a "comeback."

Johnny Dunn, of New Kensington, and Jackie Rodgers, of the North Side, will appear in the 10-round windup and Buck McTiernan, of Hazelwood, and Red Ryan, of Washington, Pa., in the semi-final, while the opener will bring together Georgie Tomosky, of Wilmerding, and Nat Litfin, of the Hill.

Byron Foutts, of Midland, manager of Frankie Proto, wants to match his man with Battling Gizzy. He may be reached by calling Midland 400.

NEW CASTLE CARD

U. S. Carpentier, of New Kensington, boxes Billy Wallace, of Youngstown; Romeo Pacelli, of New Castle, meets Mickey Dugan, of Cleveland, in a return bout; Maxie Brown faces Nick Polis and Frank Monroe clashes with Jack Pickard in the preliminaries to the Henry Firpo-Dick Evans show at the Jolly Bowl, New Castle, next Monday night.

Tommy (Kid) Murphy, of Trenton, N. J., and Sam Bruce, Buffalo Negro, meet in the 10-round main bout at Buffalo Friday night.

Maxie Rosenbloom and Tuffy Griffiths are booked for Philadelphia, February 25.

Osk Till will box Harry Ebbets and Nick Testo will meet Georgie Levine in 10-round preliminaries to the Baby Joe Gans-Jackie Fields bout in Madison Square Garden, New York, Friday night.

BASS BOXES SMITH

Benny Bass boxes Steve Smith, of Bridgeport, Conn., in the main bout at the Arena in Philadelphia next Monday night. Tiger Snowden and Vincent Guidici battle in a return 10-rounder, Guidici having stopped the Negro knockout star in the first round of a prior mix; Vince Dundee battles Billy Angelo and Ritchie King meets Frankie Hayes in the preliminaries.

Johnny Brown and Bob Collura, local 142-pounders, have been matched to box the opening bout at McKeesport tomorrow night, rounding out the program which will be featured by the return battle between Young Rudy, of Charleroi, and Dominick Profio, of Cecil. Phil Scott, of McKeesport, will box Jackie Murray, of Center avenue, in the semi-final, and Lee Sala, of Donora, tangles with Johnny Windsor, of Herron Hill, in the second number.

COLDS
Stopped in a Day!

Don't let a cold hang on—to make you miserable and to invite grippe or flu. Stop it in a day by taking the thing that is specifically for a cold—HILL'S CASCARA QUININE. HILL'S ends a cold in twenty-four hours because it does the four things required:

1. Breaks up the Cold
2. Checks the Fever
3. Opens the Bowels
4. Tones the System

Only HILL'S gives you this four-in-one effect. That's why HILL'S is the stand-by of millions. Play safe. At the first sign of a cold go get a package of HILL'S.

MILLS BUSIER AND PRICES HIGHER

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

A CONTINUATION of the high rate of steel company earnings which prevailed during the last six months of 1928 is assured for the first quarter of the present year.

Steel ingot production has remained at over 85 per cent of capacity since early in January. The high prices established in the third and fourth quarters are still in effect. While demand for some finished products has shown moderate recession, this has been balanced by increases in the production of other types of steel.

Earnings of steel companies in the present quarter will show very large increases over the corresponding three months of 1928. This can be accounted for by the fact that operations are at a higher rate and prices are at more satisfactory levels.

THE steel industry's progress was downward in 1927 and upward in 1928. prices of bars and shapes started at 2 cents a pound in 1927 and steadily lost ground until a low of 1.75 cents was reached in October of that year. Realizing the folly of their price-cutting tactics, the producers made a concerted effort to raise quotations in the following year.

They were successful in advancing bars and shapes $3 a ton to 1.90 cents a pound by the third-quarter. This level has been maintained since that time. A rising rate of demand was particularly helpful in securing the increased prices. With only slight variations ingot production was at 85 per cent capacity during most of the latter half of 1928.

FOR the last six months the steel business in general has been on a fairly even keel. There has been little variation in production and prices have shown only minor deviations. Some of the steel companies reported greater earnings in the third-quarter than in the fourth and in other cases the final three months were better.

The only complaint about present conditions in the industry can be found in the fact that future orders are small for many types of steel. This is particularly true of pipe mills which have almost no backlog of unfilled orders. On the other hand, strip steel mills and the largest maker of sheets are booked from five to eight weeks ahead.

The increase of $2 a ton announced by independent makers of steel sheets on Monday has not been followed by the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company. Some of the independents are known to have shaded prices below the level maintained by the Steel Corporation subsidiary so that the increase just announced brings their minimum quotations up to a common level.

THE consolidation of the American Radiator Company with the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company is to be made effective by April 1 according to present plans. Stockholders of both companies have been asked to deposit their certificates for exchange into stock of the new American Radiator and Standard Sanitary Corporation by that date. The deposit of two-thirds of each class of the stock of each company will be necessary for the consummation of the merger. The plan may be declared operative by the committee at any earlier date when the required two-thirds have been deposited.

Application will be made to list the certificates of deposit on the New York Stock Exchange and when the plan is completed application will be made to list the stock of the new company.

THE preferred stock of the new company to be issued in exchange for Standard Sanitary preferred will be cumulative as to dividends from February 25, the payable date of the last dividend on the old stock. The Standard Sanitary common dividend is payable on the same date.

The certificates of deposit for American Radiator common stock will be entitled to receive that company's next dividend which will be payable March 30 to stock of record March 11.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Prices in the early bond market today continued their improvement, interrupted by the holiday, under leadership of the copper and utility issues, which were also strong on the "big board." Traders in the speculative groups were encouraged by the Federal Reserve Board's silence on the rediscount rate and the credit situation in general. Money was slightly easier.

International Telephone convertible 4½s marched up nearly 2 points. Postal Telegraph 5s also displayed strength.

Anaconda Copper 7s were the individual feature, moving up 4 points to a new 1929 high at 208 in reflection of strength in the stocks. Improvement was shown by such industrial and specialty leaders as Alleghany Corporation 5s, American International 5½s and International Cement 5s. Rails were steady.

Trading in the foreign list was practically at a standstill.

On the curb Associated Gas issues continued their rapid advance, the 5½s and 4½s of 1948 soaring more than 8 points. Atchison 4½s registered a 1-point gain.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

Investment Trusts Called Blind Pools—Forbes' Reply

By B. C. FORBES

ARE investment trust "blind pools?"

That is the question put by a reader.

HE WRITES: "Some people, with long years of speculative experience, think the present investment trusts are little better than other 'blind pools' of the old time 'Mississippi bubble' that the general public was invited to subscribe to—and they did. Would it be asking too much to suggest that you give the public your views on the subject through your column?"

Candidly, some so-called investment trusts do savor of the blind pools of older days. Usually the operators of such pools were wholly unscrupulous. They "guaranteed" exaordinarily alluring profits, but usually were careful to maintain mystery as to how these profits were made. Such swindlers paid dazzling returns for a little while and then suddenly disappeared, leaving no trace behind. "One-hundred-per-cent Miller" is still painfully remembered.

The postoffice and the criminal authorities learned how to cope with such robbery and it is rarely practiced today on any large scale.

IT IS amazing, however, how many people turn over to others funds for speculative purposes.

Brokers and employes of brokers, as well as others supposedly in close touch with the stock market, are constantly implored by friends and acquaintances and even strangers to accept money "to play the market with" in the hope of reaping delightful returns. In many instances, of course, such requests are turned down. But, could the whole truth be known, it would be revealed that far more of this kind of thing goes on than the public imagines. In nearly all such cases, honest efforts are made to employ the funds intelligently and profitably.

The greatest majority of investment trusts are not in any sense blind pools. The creators of the decent ones specify clearly and explicitly exactly what type of securities will be purchased with the capital supplied. Not only so, but they give full information concerning the individuals or firms or other interests sponsoring the organizations.

Certain varieties of investment trusts do allow the management wide latitude in conducting them.

But the common thing now is for an investment trust to specialize in one class of security. For example, one trust deals wholly in railway stocks, another in industrials, another in utilities, another in bank stocks, another in chain store issues, another in oils, and so on.

Some investment trusts, especially those originated, drew up a detailed list of stocks to be purchased and no leeway whatsoever was granted the trustees to go outside of the original holdings. That type, however, has drawbacks in this country where changes come swiftly and drastically.

THAT not a few ventures labeled "investment trusts" will turn out badly is certain. Not always have the promoters been men of recognized probity, judgment and experience. Sometimes it was obvious that their main concern was to enrich themselves—they saw to it that they received a fat rakeoff at the start.

Thus far serious trouble has been avoided because the stock market has been following an upward direction, causing even poorly selected holdings to show a profit. But when the stock boom ends, and stock booms always do end, a different tale will have to be told.

AS IN every other line of business or finance, the vital factor in an investment trust is the character and caliber of the management. Brilliant brains can and usually do achieve brilliant results; poor brains, poor results. Look what has just happened in the case of Goldman-Sachs, a New York investment banking firm of very high reputation. It very recently formed an organization along investment trust lines and, lo, in a few weeks the shares have shot up from little over $100 to well over $200.

What the buyer of shares in an investment trust does is, in effect, this: He hands over his money to certain individuals supposedly more capable than he is to choose investments wisely. Theoretically, this practice is thoroughly sound, since there are many genuine experts on the value of securities and there are many, many investors who frankly recognize that they themselves are not experts.

But it is just as essential to choose the right kind of people to handle your money as it ever was to choose the right kind of investments.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Move Upward — New York Curb Market

"NERVES" KEEP STOCKS ON SEE-SAW

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Frequent shifts of speculative sentiment in today's stock market testified to the nervousness prevailing in professional quarters as a result of recent adverse credit developments. The market opened with a surprising outburst of strength, turned reactionary around noon and then darted upward again in the early afternoon when the call money rate was lowered from 7½ to 6 per cent.

Opening strength reflected the failure of the New York Federal Reserve Board directors to make any announcement regarding the special meeting after the close on Monday. The noonday selling was inspired largely by the recommendation of one of the large commission houses to sell stocks on the rally on the theory that a readjustment as drastic as that of March, 1926, was in prospect. The subsequent recovery undoubtedly was influenced by the easing of money rates.

While the New York Federal Reserve bank made no announcement of its meeting, the rise in bankers' acceptances today was construed as an indication that the bank was withdrawing from the bill market and throwing the burden of financing those instruments on the banks, presumably in the hope that it would bring about a reduction in brokers' borrowings. In view of the sharp decline in prices last week, a substantial reduction in loans is looked for in the weekly statement tomorrow.

The day's business news was largely favorable in character. Iron Age reported that "production is sustained, following January records in both pig iron and steel output, and prices of rolled steel are gaining in strength." New stock of the National Sugar Refinery Company was placed on a $2 annual basis, equivalent to $8 on the old stock, which paid $7 annually. Directors of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation are expected to resume dividends at Friday's meeting. Wall Street expects a payment of 75 cents, but 25 cents of this may be classified as an extra. All the leading sugar refiners reduced prices one-fifth of a cent a pound.

Heavy buying of the public utilities featured the afternoon recovery. American and Foreign Power was marked up nearly 11 points to a new high at 114½. Radio (old stock) ran up 8 points in the early trading, but lost it all in the noon reaction. Allied Chemical climbed 12¼ points to 300 after being down around 270 in the recent setback. Rossia Insurance climbed nearly 12 points, and A. M. Byers, Wright Aeronautical, Abraham & Straus, Du Pont, Kennecott, Johns Manville and U. S. Realty sold 5 to 8 points higher.

Nine copper shares, led by Anaconda, reached new high records on buying stimulated by record-breaking January shipments. International Combustion and Walworth also reached new high ground.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—The upward swing in the curb market was resumed today after the holiday under the lead of mining shares and the utilities. Some of the early 1 to 10-point gains, however, were reduced around midday by profit-taking sales. Money was easier, renewing at 7½ and later dropping to 6 per cent.

The proposed merger with Electric Bond and Share Securities Corporation stimulated further buying of Electric Bond and Share common and other utility stocks. Electric Bond and Share, which rose 20 points on Monday, ranged between 258 and 265 and American Light and Traction climbed 3 points. Electric Investors, after an advance to 117⅜, fell back 3 points. Active buying carried United Gas Improvement up 5 and United Power and Light up 2.

Phelps Dodge after climbing 5 points dropped 8 points before midday. Other mining shares, however, held most of their gains. Newmont rose 3 and Kennecott (new) a point, reflecting predictions of further rises in copper to 20 cents a pound.

Auburn and Checker Cab were the strong spots in the automotive group. Other industrials to improve were St. Regis Paper, with a jump of 5 points, Niles Bement Pond up 8 and Grigsby Grunow 10.

BORROW FROM "HOUSEHOLD" SAVE

Almost One-Third

Loans $10 to $300

This old established organization by reason of large volume efficient management and ample capital is now making a substantial reduction in the cost of loans up to $300 by lowering the interest rate from the lawful maximum of 3½ per cent a month on unpaid principal balance to 2½ per cent.

FOR EXAMPLE ON LOANS.
Payable in 20 Equal Monthly Payments.

You Save as Follows:
$ 50 Loan—You Save	$ 5.25
100 Loan—You Save	10.50
200 Loan—You Save	21.00
300 Loan—You Save	31.50

THE SAME PROPORTIONATE SAVING ON OTHER AMOUNTS.

Loans may be paid in full at any time and you will only be charged for the actual time you keep the money. You get the full amount in cash—no deductions of any kind. We do not notify your employer, neither do we make inquiry of your friends, relatives nor trades people. If it is not convenient to call personally phone Atlantic 1198 or Atlantic 0735 and we will send a representative to your home.

HOWARD

AN OLD MASTER IN A TRAFFIC JAM

WE are still following our standardized policy of giving our readers the best in scandal and trouble.

Arthur "Bugs" Baer

Which is why we sent our roofing expert to cover the tweedledums between Sir Joe Duveen and Andree Hahn.

Andree has a painting worth three million dollars which she wanted to sell to Kansas City just to get Los Angeles jealous.

Kansas City intended to hang the three million dollar art poultice in Union Station where commuters could snip off samples.

Everything was as happy as a hungry hobo swimming from island to island in an archipelago of pancakes with the syrup waves breaking over his ears.

Just when Kansas City was all set to kick in with the three million pills that will cure any financial headache, up bobs Sir Joe with his spats on his shoes and crabs the works.

He says the painting is a Long Island potato. Meaning that it is in the bag.

For the benfit of people who do not understand slang with their cigaret tests, we will explain that when anything is in the bag it is equivalent to saying there is a sleeper in the rumble seat.

Which expression is the true Einstein formula for the relativity of palookas.

The painting is scheduled in the Almanac de Goofa as, "La Belle Ferroniere.

It is catalogued as an original Leonardo Da Vinci, an Italian artists whose work is so perfect that a connoisseur has a difficult time correcting it.

Sir Joe says the Bele is a ringer. If Da Vinci painted it, he must have done the job during a moratorium.

We have seen Da Vinci's "Moaning Lizzie" in the Louvre. Moaning Lizzie is famous for her tight-lipped smile, which may be due to sarcasm or to mad teeth.

But an old master in Paris may be only a poster for Sparks Brothers' Circus in the middle West. Most of the valuable painting in Kansas City and New York is done by the hour.

Our national affection and romantic interest in the masterpieces of ancient times are indicated by the fact that Jersey City fines you $25 for a 1928 license plate.

Anyway, Andree is plastering Sir Joe for $500,000 damages. And 12 good men and puzzled are lavishing a deep knowledge of hardware, haberdashery and structural steel-work on the disputed painting.

THE BUNGLE FAMILY — Hired

SO YOU BOUGHT A RANCH EH, MR. BUNGLE? WELL I GUESS. JUST LIKE YOU SAY. THERES BIG DOUGH IN THIS FUR FOR PROFIT IDEA.
MILLIONS, JAKE MILLIONS! AND DON'T FORGET THAT FUR IS AN ALL-YEAR CROP. IN FACT IT GROWS FASTER IN WINTER THAN IN SUMMER.
I'D LIKE TO GET INTO SOMETHING LIKE THAT MYSELF. THIS BARBERING IS JUST SLOW POISON WITH NO KNOWN ANTIDOTE. WHOSE GONNA HELP YOU RAISE THESE GOATS, OR WHATEVER YOU'RE RAISING?
FRANKLY, JAKE, I'M LOOKING AROUND FOR A MAN NOW. ANYONE WHO WONT TEASE THE ANIMALS AND WHO'LL FEED THEM AND KEEP THEM QUIET DURING A THUNDERSTORM. STUFF LIKE THAT
LISTEN, MR. BUNGLE, I'VE BEEN THINKING ABOUT MAKING A CHANGE FOR YEARS. IF THERE'S AS MUCH EASY DOUGH IN THIS FUR GAME AS YOU SAY I'D LIKE TO GET SOME OF IT. ALL I EVER GOT OUT OF BARBERING IS SORE FEET AND A LOT OF BOLSHEVIKI IDEAS FROM ARGUING WITH OTHER BARBERS WELL JAKE LET ME THINK? FUR IS HAIR! YOU'VE HELPED CUSTOMERS GROW HAIR. MAYBE YOU COULD DO THE SAME FOR ANIMALS. LET ME THINK.....
LISTEN JAKE, DON'T BE DIZZY! WHY QUIT A GOOD JOB ON ONE MINUTES NOTICE? IN A MONTH OR SO I THOUGHT OF GIVING YOU THAT FRONT CHAIR AND. ....
NOPE! PAY ME! I'VE WAITED 20 YEARS FOR OPPORTUNITY TO KNOCK ON THE DOOR OF A BARBER SHOP. AND I CAN'T BE TALKED OUT OF NOTHING. WHO EVER HEARD OF A MILLIONAIRE BARBER? NO SIR! FUR FOR PROFIT IS MY DISH NOW!

ELLA CINDERS — Out of the Past

If you've been very poor all your life and suddenly were offered marriage by one of the world's richest men, you'd think it over, wouldn't you?
I DON'T LOVE MR. X., BUT I ADMIRE AND RESPECT HIM. HOWEVER, LIFE ISN'T A GAME OF TENNIS, WHERE LOVE MEANS NOTHING— IT MEANS A LOT TO ME!
WAITE LIFTER WAS MY FIRST SWEETIE — I WONDER WHERE HE IS NOW? AND SIDNEY SMOOTHE — I LOVED HIM, BUT HE GOT AWAY AND TOOK MY MONEY WITH HIM!
THEN THERE WERE DEAR JIM BLUNT AND SWEET JOHN SMITH — I REFUSED THEIR HANDS, BUT THEY BOTH TOLD ME THEIR HEARTS WOULD ALWAYS REMAIN OPEN FOR AN ENGAGEMENT WITH ME!
HOW IS A GIRL TO KNOW THE RIGHT MAN WHEN HE COMES ALONG? SOMETIMES I FEEL LIKE MAKING A LIST OF ALL MY ELIGIBLES, PUTTING THEM IN A HAT, SHUFFLING THEM — AND THEN THROWING THE HAT AWAY!

JEFF, THIS TRIPE IS DELICIOUS, BUT YOU CERTAINLY REALIZE THAT YOU CAN'T EAT IN PUBLIC. THE SCIENTISTS THINK YOU'RE A MECHANICAL ROBOT, AND YOU MUST DO YOUR PART IN THIS INNOCENT DECEPTION!
BUT, MUTT, I AIN'T EATEN FOR TWO DAYS AND IT DRIVES ME NUTS TO SIT HERE AND WATCH YOU! I WANT HAM AND EGGS!
LISTEN, HENRY, I FORGOT ALL ABOUT MY MECHANICAL PAL. I'VE GOT TRIPE AND HE AIN'T GOT NOTHING. HENCE, BRING . . . ; . . (WHISPER) . . . ; GET ME?
HAM AND EGGS
O.K. MISTER MUTT.
HERE'S THE CAN OF OIL YOU ORDERED, SIR!
FINE! NOW SHOOT A FEW DROPS INTO ITS JOINTS! OIL TO ITS JOINTS IS WHAT TRIPE IS TO MY STOMACH!
BLUB!
I WANT HAM AND EGGS!

Legislature Must Oust Coal and Iron Brutes

The Legislature, now in session, has available concrete evidence of the terroristic attitude of Coal and Iron "police," sufficient to justify the statement frequently made that the legalizing of such a force in Pennsylvania is an outrage on the public and a blot on the commonwealth.

A miner has been brutally murdered. The facts, perhaps, may not be entirely clear, but there seems to be no doubt that three Coal and Iron thugs, one a lieutenant, and a constable were involved in the death of the man. Testimony has been given that the victim was beaten on the head with an iron stove poker and that he was jumped on by the wielder of the poker and that his ribs were broken. So inhumanly was he treated that he died as a result in a hospital.

The lawlessness of these Cossacks was one of the scandalous blotches on the conduct of the coal operators in the recent coal strike. Perhaps legislators could overlook charges made against the Coal and Iron force at that time on the score that they were born in the heat of controversy and, as a consequence, might be biased, or that the acts complained of might, in a sense, be justified because of provocation.

There is no such doubt in the present instance. The Cossacks must go!

Pennsylvania is rich enough to pay for its own police. It has invited such terrorism as is always manifested whenever there is extended labor trouble through permitting private enterprise to hire strong-arm brutes and give them the sovereign authority of the state in imposing their brutality on the people. Pennsylvania has much to answer for.

It behooves the Legislature to begin to make that answer now, first by doing away forever with Coal and Iron Police. "Police!" Save the mark!

Kill Pari-Mutuel Bill To Permit Race Betting

An attempt is to be made to legalize horse-racing with open betting, and the operation of pari-mutuel betting machines, in Pennsylvania. A bill is to be introduced—may have been introduced by the time this gets into print—in Harrisburg, which would permit the state to become a partner in race-track gambling enterprise.

Swift and certain death should be given to this attempt to install pari-mutuel or any other form of gambling in connection with horse-racing. Racing, with no gambling, is now permissible, and if the sport is not sufficiently attractive as a pastime in itself, without gambling, let it perish. Let the effrontry of those who would besmirch the state be squelched so effectively that it never will appear again.

Organized gambling has destroyed the character and reputation of every sport that it has ever touched. Horse-racing has been called the sport of kings, and for years it sustained that reputation, but organized gambling for a time made it the sport of knaves, and public sentiment drove it from many states and made other states enact strict regulatory laws.

When organized gambling invaded other sports, the Black Sox baseball and the fake pool scandals followed. Prize fighting fell to the depths of degradation and public faith in almost all forms of professional sport was shaken.

Between the old-fashioned betting ring and the pari-mutuel machine system, there is a distinction but no difference. Both encourage gambling, both stimulate crookedness, both breed criminals.

Betting, for a time, might stimulate racing, but eventually it would first blight then kill it. Owners of race tracks and race horses and lovers of honest sport will be wise to throw their influence against the bill to legalize betting, for the people will not stand for it!

Millions for Schools Is Noble Preparedness

The 10-year building program of the Board of Public Education, involving expenditure of $14,756,650, just announced, is evidence that the high position Pittsburgh has taken in public school work is to be maintained.

The schedule calls for the expenditure of $1,687,000 this year on the following schools: O'Hara, $30,000; Madison, addition, $175,000; Fulton, addition, $55,000; Baxter Junior High, addition, $250,000; Allderdice High, addition, $745,000; Lemington, replacement, $432,000.

Next year $1,851,550 will be spent on projects including additions to Knoxville Junior High, South Hills High, Conroy Junior High and a new building for Arsenal Junior High School.

Such a program, with a long look into the future, contemplates, in many instances, providing for emergencies that are foreseen. This is the result of an extensive survey and study. To thus plan for the future of children is the noblest form of preparedness,

The Right 'Escort' -:- By Nelson Harding

(Copyright, 1929.)

MR. HARDING, in this excellent cartoon, reflects the opinion of many.

The peace dove is a beautiful little bird, flying back to the Ark with her little sprig of green, or fluttering amid exploding bombs in a great war.

Because everybody loves the peace bird, everybody wants her to be escorted and protected as above, in the United States at least.

Peace pacts are all very well, interesting pieces of paper.

A good fleet of fast cruisers, plus the world's biggest fleet of submarines, and plus, above all, the world's most powerful fleet of fighting airplanes, such is the average citizen's idea of the right equipment for Uncle Sam.

Give the peace dove what she needs in the way of airplanes, submarines and fast cruisers, and she will do nicely. Alone, undefended, she would soon be like the parrot that was left alone with the bulldog.

By Herbert Kaufman

LEGS are at loggerheads with logic, which is working nights to revive long frocks. Textile mills need the extra yardage.

War lifted skirts to knee height, and peace can't tug them down again.

It was a necessary and wise measure temporarily to conserve wool, cotton and silk, simplify attire and enforce thrift all at one stroke.

But style has since refused to resume former habit-ruts. Women, world over, are united against the surrender of limb freedom. Consequently, looms must limp along at catch-as-catch-can capacity.

Petticoats and linings, once standbys of fabric consumption, are abandoned exiles.

Underwear has shrunk to upper-wear. And tanners' dividends would weep with joy if high shoes could stage a revival.

The millions that emergency saved by skimping wardrobes dwindle to small change, when compared to the losses industry has subsequently suffered.

A generation, emancipated from stupid fashion discomforts, flatly declines to yield present liberties to accommodate mere profit and economics.

Bond Street and Rue de la Paix autocrats may dictate themselves hoarse, before figures will be re-loaded with needless garments, and submit to the hobbling folds and ornate modes of yesterday.

Europe must muddle through until other occupations are found for jobless weavers.

And New England may as well look facts in the face and realize that per capita cloth rations will never repeat record peaks.

Revolution is revocable, but evolution always holds gained ground.

Calves have won their day and come to stay; and all the Mussolinis and Napoleons of the needle trades can't regulate them back to hiding.

Bobbed tresses are as obdurate as short dresses—callously unrepentant for the havoc they've spread through commerce.

Plain, simple shapes have just about wrecked the millinery works. Hairpins, hatpins, combs, flowers and ribbons are barely visible nowadays.

South Africa has a monument in waiting for the man with a plan to revive the use of ostrich plumes.

And the firms which furnished the button-eyed parrots, and those pretty bunches of glass grapes that distinguished mother's niftiest toques, have turned to Christmas tree ornaments—or toward the lane to the poorhouse.

Here's one situation that Isaac Newton didn't foresee when he pontifically declared, "What goes up must come down."

O. O. McINTYRE

PARIS, Feb. 13.—There is an intimate charm about the Paris circus the American circus, on account of its stupendous magnitude, can never achieve. The circus here is a tabloid affair and is held indoors. The program rarely varies. Paris, the Freudians would say, is "circusconscious." Three are open the year around.

There is only one ring and the seats mount up around it closely. One does not have to try to watch a dozen things at once. A single acrobat swings in a pool of light. Three horses circle the ring, pawing and strutting a dignified pavane. One lumbering elephant performs on a wooden tub.

Those with ringside seats are forced to dodge the swish of an unexpected tail or the swing of a trunk. The clown is still an idol here. His antics fit in perfectly with the French simplicty of humor. As long as I remember the Fratellinis have been featured at the Cirque d'Hiver.

They are today the most famous clowns in the world. The routine of their act never changes yet never grows stale, for it is in their extemporaneous bits at each performance they excel. They are the fourth generation of clowns, subtle, slightly vulgar, but you always laugh heartily. They are remindful of Bluch.

Once in a while the Fratellinis leave Paris for a few appearances in the provinces but not for long. Huge offers have been made to bring them to America. The old Hippodrome used to raise the sum every season but they refused. They not only feared the ocean but would not be denied their table wine.

Paris pays its clowns little. The Fratellinis who are incidentally Italians, might have been rich in money but they are only rich in the affection of the people. France leaves to America the task of reading cosmic symbols into the buffoonry of their mimes. There is no "Laugh, Clown, Laugh" theme. Clowns are happy.

It is during the intermission the Parisian circus exerts its individualistic charm. The crowds move as one to the animal quarters and to the entrance of the dressing rooms. The Fratellinis come out in costumes and chat with customers. Children feed the animals. The ring master opens a bottle of wine. The circus becomes, indeed, a big family.

Paris in winter is pitch dark at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon. The lights come on at 4. There is a shower almost every day but it never snows. The nearest to the old-fashioned white winter we know is a slight frost. On this mid-winter morning there are many on the streets without overcoats. But none without umbrellas.

No matter how rainy or chilly the day, cafes never fail to set out their sidewalk marble topped tables and wicker chairs. It is as customary as opening the shutters and raising the blinds. In front of the Cafe de la Paix today, for instance, there were tables for perhaps 500, but by actual count only nine customers. Every bare headed, white aproned waiter was at his post, swaying in the sharp wind and looking as though the sadness had begun.

Rue Royale is, to my notion, one of the most engaging streets in Paris, with its short majestic wide sweep from the Madeleine to the Place de la Concorde. It boasts two famous restaurants in Maxim's and Larue. Madame Pompadour persuaded the royal sinner Louis XV to er[illegible] the brooding Madeleine at the head of rue Royale. Inside the historic church there is a funeral service almost every hour, and on the sidewalk outside is always a group of black garbed professional mourners ready to swing off behind the hearse and march to the cemetery for a few francs per march. And at night under a thin strow of stars, the Madeleine, gleaming white in its sepulchral calm, is the most breath-taking view in Paris.

Near the Madeleine today I tried to engage a little fiacre. The cocher looked up from his Paris Midi and shook his head. Turning cute, I exclaimed: "Bon pourboire!"—which meant at least a dime tip. He clucked to his nag, moved on about 10 feet and continued reading. It was typical of a phase of French behaviorism that stumps us all. One minute they want to kiss you and the next kill you.

* * *

The Boeuf a la Mode is a restaurant in rue Valois loved by Napoleon. Also Desmoulins and Dante. It occupies an old mansion built by Cardinal Richelieu and across the street from the Palais Royal where Richelieu lived. A few years ago it was known only to the French. Today it is thoroughly Americanized. So much so the hat check boy looked at my franc tip and with thinly disguised mockery said: "Good night, Mr. Rockefeller."

Tales That Are Told

The Better Part

As he was passing beneath a ladder reaching up to the windows of a recently-built house the irascible colonel was struck on the head by a large piece of putty.

Picking it up, he ran up the staircase of the house and entered the room from which it had been thrown. He was confronted by three stalwart workmen.

"Who threw this?" he cried, angrily.

"I did," retorted the biggest of the three. "What are you goin' to do about it, eh?"

After a moment's sober reflection the colonel murmured, "Oh, I just thought I'd return your putty."

Top Dog

THE stout woman scarcely troubled to look up from her breakfast as the door opened to admit the little man who had been too timid to resist her advances during a leap year of long ago.

"Have you shaved?" she demanded.

"Yes, dear."

"Have you brushed your hair?"

"Yes, dear."

"And cleaned your teeth?"

"Yes, dear."

A podgy hand was waved towards a bundle of fluff that lay on the floor.

"Very well. You may kiss Fido."

Fishy

THE newly-married couple were having turkey for the first time.

"I don't know how it is," remarked the husband, "but this bird's got bones all over it. Just listen to the knife on them."

"Oh, how silly of you, darling! Those are the shells."

"Shells?"

"Yes. Don't you remember you said you liked turkey with oyster stuffing?"

Much From Little

DIMINUTIVE Mr. Minor was introducing his six-foot-three son to friends at the club.

Addressing an old acquaintance, the proud father said: "This is my boy, Peter."

"Really!" said his friend, adjusting his spectacles and gazing blandly at the youthful giant. "Quite a block off the old chip, isn't he?"

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

HERE'S another tragedy story that's supposed to be funny. Somehow, the best laughs seem to come out of disasters and funerals and weddings and such things.

A kid come running to a farmer's house and says, "Here, bring a rope! My pal is stuck in the pond over yonder!"

"Stuck in my pond, is he?" says the farmer. "Well, how far is he into the mud?"

"Oh, clear up to his ankles nearly!"

"Well, you jest tell him to walk out. If he's only in up to his ankles, it won't be much work to walk out, I guess."

"Oh, but you see, he dived in head first!" says the kid.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

THE title of a book caught my eye the other day—

"GAY COURAGE," it said.

I don't know anything about that book, but I'm for it's title a million strong.

I doubt if that title could have happened in the last century. They believed in courage, of course, but it had to be Grim—the Grimmer the better. With a lotta signs of suffering. The uprolled, dampened eye—the painful, indrawn breath—the clenched hand, the gnawed lip—that was the stuff in grandpa's day.

But we're evolving a new morality—and that gallant title is one of its fruits.

BE BRAVE—BUT ACT AS IF YOU LIKED IT!—That's the keynote of the new morality.

BE GOOD—AND SHOW THAT YOU ENJOY IT!

What's the use of righteousness if it makes you act like a dose of hives?

Maybe you'll get your soul saved that way, but how about the other chap? Why take it out on him?

Once upon a time Robert Louis Stevenson made some remarks along this line. If ever a man displayed Gay Courage he did in his desperate flight with tuberculosis. However, his remarks were not particularly popular with his contemporaries. Heavy sacrifice was fashionable at that time. Saved Souls were supposed to be soggy. With all his failing strength, brave R. L. S. fought that sogginess.

"Noble disappointment, noble self-denial," he cried, "are not to be admired, not even to be pardoned, if they bring bitterness. Gentleness and cheerfulness, these come before all morality; they are the perfect duties—if your morals make you dreary, depend upon it they are wrong. I do not say 'give them up' for they may be all you have; but conceal them like a vice, lest they should spoil the lives of better and simpler people."

Sacrifice—suffering—self-restraint meekness—resignation—patient endurance of tribulation—they were the virtues of yesterday. They were the sour heritage left us by the Puritans, and a sorry mess they made of human life. They made a mess because they fought life. They imprisoned life—those attitudes were really founded on fear. They were not virtues at all—they were blights.

Happiness — self-expression — healthy rebellion—gay courage—these are the virtues of today, and they're making a wonderful adventure of human life. They do not fight life—they increase life. They release life. They give men that "life more abundant" which Christ promised.

"IF YOUR MORALS MAKE YOU DREARY, DEPEND UPON IT THEY ARE WRONG"—remember that the next time you get all gummed up with righteousness. A smiling sinner is a lot more useful in this vale of tears than a snivelling saint.

A VIEW ON SCIENCE

By Garrett P. Serviss

I HAVE received from Sadie Whitson MacDonald, of Seattle, two puzzling little brochures which I do not understand, but which hold me like will-o'-the-wisps. One is entitled "A Story of the Constellations," which is all about electricity, but what I like best about it is the imaginative lines under the authoress' attractive portrait:

"I gazed into the sky one night,
And a lustrous star unveiled its light.
Then into my hands fell a golden key
To the bolted door of that mystery."

The opening sentences of the story itself also strike me as original and effective:

"The science of God admits man. The science of man excludes God. What a pity to ignore the skill and intellect of the Great God."

But, as I have said, the rest of it is unintelligible to me. However, it is not the only unintelligible thing in the world that professes to reform science. And then this authoress has, it appears, a plaint against those who are called, and who not infrequently intimate that they really are, the only scientists. In the second of the little brochures, which is entitled "Stolen, Jove's Thunder," the plaint is put into meter, thus:

"What have the scientists done,
Dear God?
What have the scientists done?
You have lately watched
Them tabulate
Those theories one by one,
Of 1911 of the mystic pen,
And far more mystic book,
Which I passed around
That day to them,
And gem after gem they took.
Now what shall I do
For the gems, dear God,
At the end of the lonely way?
Must I further fast
And sacrifice?
'Nay! Nay!'
Said the Great God, 'Nay!'"

And indeed, so far from "fasting," she drives the scientists to the sacrifice. She claims that on December 7, 1910, she sent to "50 registered philosophers" of the American Association for the Advancement of Science her discovery that "Electricity is life; nothing is alive but electricity," and that they adopted it, and then "passed a priority franchise" of her discovery to "Many Eminent Men." "Can 'Eminent Men,'" she demands, "afford to deface the ledgers of their birth-planet with unfair discrimination against its feminine philosophers?"

There is a lesson here which people generally are not prone to learn. All the great master ideas that are the pride of modern science are as old as human thought. They have all been reawakened out of the slumbers of the dreaming mind of man. They have been brushed up, reformed, added to by the results of experience and experiment, and put into modern, up-to-date dress, so that they appear brand new and spick and span with the latest novelties. But look closely and you will find the ancient birth-mark on every one of them.

There is many a moment of astonishment and disillusion awaiting the man who, after accepting at its face value the common assertion that modern science has utterly revolutionized human thought, sets out to read for himself the story of the mind in past ages and among various peoples. Moreover, these ideas are like the air; every intelligent mind breathes them in.

Bible Passages

"Happy Is He"

(Psalm 146)

PRAISE ye the Lord. Praise the Lord, O my soul.

While I live will I praise the Lord: I will sing praises unto my God while I have any being.

Put not your trust in princes, nor in the son of man, in whom there is no help.

His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish.

Happy is he that hath the God of Jacob for his help, whose hope is in the Lord his God:

Which made heaven, and earth, the sea, and all that therein is: which keepeth truth for ever:

Which executeth judgment for the oppressed: which giveth food to the hungry. The Lord looseth the prisoners:

The Lord openeth the eyes of the blind: the Lord raiseth them that are bowed down: the Lord loveth the righteous:

The Lord preserveth the strangers; he relieveth the fatherless and widow: but the way of the wicked he turneth upside down.

The Lord shall reign for ever, even thy God, O Zion, unto all generations. Praise ye the Lord.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Fairer Still

WHAT beauty in the everchanging sky,
With glow of stars or sun;
What wonders in the cloud-shapes drifting by
In pageant never done!

On all the earth what loveliness abounds
In grass and flowers and trees,
What tender, muted notes, what witching sounds
Upon the April breeze!

When golden hazes veil the Autumn day
How bright the tranquil lake,
Where, when the sunset's splendors pass away,
The stars of night awake!

But fairer still than earth's most pleasing place
The wistful smile that lies
Sometimes upon a loved one's dreaming face
To greet adoring eyes!

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

SOMEHOW the old checkbook is a continuous disappointment, isn't it?

You stick to a policy of depositing about so much each month.

You have figured what each weekly amount represents.

At the beginning of each year you have the feeling that one year hence will find the balance greatly increased.

But there is little difference from year to year.

There being nothing wrong with your system of deposits there must be something unbusinesslike about the way you issue checks.

Knowing your weakness, you must correct your system.

With you it seems to be a general state of mind each month in succession that you will curb expenditures and make a good sized saving.

But as the months roll around come entertainments you want, desires to be gratified, and it all ends in disappointment with your bank balance.

If you used a fraction of the effort you put forth to earn money in an effort to save it after you get it the old bank book would tell a different story at the beginning of each year.

How about a certain sum in non-checking account, drawing interest and not so convenient to check out?
